OUR NEW POLICY IN PHILIPPINES IS ATTACKED

NATIVES NOW IN CONTROL

NATIVE HEADS LAND BUREAU

And Admits He Knows Nothing About the Work—Poor Landholders Likely to Suffer.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 17.—Dean C. Worcester, for thirteen years Secretary of the Interior in the Philippine Islands, arrived here to-day on the Pacific liner Manchuria. He resigned his post Sept. 15 last; his successor has not yet been appointed. His arrival has been awaited with interest as he is the first prominent Philippine official to reach here since the induction of the new Governor General, Francis Burton Harrison of New York, and the introduction of President Wilson's policy that whenever feasible the Filipino is to be preferred to the American as an official.

Mr. Worcester said to a representative of THE NEW YORK TIMES this afternoon:

"I left Manila fourteen days after the arrival there of Gov. Gen. Harrison and before he had time to go very far with the development of his policy. Upon his arrival, from a grandstand erected on the Luneta, the public promenade of Manila, he made an address outlining the policy of the new Administration. It did not differ in any important sense, so far as concerns its aims, from the policy which has been steadfastly pursued ever since civil government was established in the Philippine Islands.

"I called on Gov. Gen. Harrison at his request a week before my departure and discussed Filipino affairs with him. I was able to reply to the suggestion of his to the effect that, while we probably represented opposed political views, we apparently represented identical views as to the policy which ought to be pursued, but that the events of the previous week had made it evident that we represented radically opposed views as to the promptness with which that policy could safely be carried out.

Filipino Succeeds American.

"Within that brief time arrangements had been completed to dispense with the services of several of the most competent bureau chiefs and assistant chiefs of the Insular Government. The resignations of Capt. Charles H. Sleeper, Director of Lands, and of Col. Henry McCoy, Insular Collector of Customs, were the first requested. The vacancy created by Capt. Sleeper's removal was immediately filled by the appointment of Manuel Tinio, a bright young Filipino of good character but absolutely lacking in knowledge of public land matters and administrative experience which would fit him to conduct a business enterprise of anything approaching such very large dimensions. Señor Tinio has been Director of the Bureau of Labor, and has been principally concerned in assisting his countrymen to find employment and in the arbitration of labor difficulties. He was a General in the Insurgent Army at 21 years.

"The Bureau of Land has charge of the entire public domain, including the agricultural and mineral lands and the foreshore, and excepting forest lands only. It has been stated in the public press that the appointment of a Filipino to this position meant a radical change in the public land policy. It is greatly to be feared that this is the case.

"Heretofore the policy has been to give to the poor man—the poor Filipinos, who make up the bulk of the Christian population—and to the ignorant wild man as well all possible assistance in securing homestead or free patents or in purchasing the usually small tracts of land which they desire. It has been the hope of the Government that the very large majority of the inhabitants would become land owners, so that some small proportion of the immense areas of rich unoccupied public land might become privately owned and be made productive.

Try to Keep Poor in Peonage.

"Very many wealthy Filipinos who are large land owners dislike to have the less fortunate people secure land, preferring to keep them tenants, as this makes it possible to hold them in peonage, or a state closely approximating it. They have, therefore, diligently sought to mislead the common people as to their rights under the law and have often caused opposition to be made when they sought to obtain land by homestead, free patent, or purchase.

"Capt. Sleeper had generally interested himself in instructing the poor and ignorant as to their rights and in assisting them to assert those rights. By doing this he made himself very unpopular with the Filipino politicians, and a man of their own race will find it very hard to resist the pressure which will be brought to bear by the rich against the poor.

"A second very important function of the Director of Lands was to protect the public domain against the endless and ingenious schemes devised by clever wealthy Filipinos wrongfully to acquire great tracts thereof. Our courts, many of which have Filipino judges, have proved somewhat weak in protecting the interests of the Government and those of the general public, and these interests will suffer if these great tracts should be wrongfully eliminated from the areas open to homesteading, sale, and lease.

Problem of Friar Lands.

"The Director of Lands furthermore administers some $7,000,000 worth of so-called friar lands, purchased by the Insular Government from religious corporations in order that they may be resold to their occupants. All occupants

BOAT GOES THROUGH CANAL

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PANAMA, Nov. 17.—With many prominent canal officials and their wives on board, the small steamer Louise this afternoon had the honor of being the first boat to pass entirely across the Isthmus of Panama through the Panama Canal.

The trip was made possible by the cutting of a channel through the Cucuracha Slide, the last obstruction which has delayed the work on connecting the oceans. Dredges have been at work on the barrier for days, and have made a passage through the slide which is now forty-five feet deep. The dredges will complete the work of widening the channel at this point, and in case of necessity a large ship could be sent from ocean to ocean on very short notice.

SUMMONS B. F. YOAKUM.

Widow of George Henderson Bases Complaint of Realty Transactions.

On the application of Mrs. George Henderson, Benjamin F. Yoakum, Chairman of the Board of the St. Louis & San Francisco Railroad, has been ordered to appear Friday before Surrogate Fowler in connection with personal property of Mr. Henderson's estate.

Mrs. Henderson says her husband bought "Duck Island," an estate in Suffolk County, for $82,500 in 1906, selling Mr. Yoakum a half interest in it. When Mr. Henderson died, she says, she permitted Mr. Yoakum, who had been intimately associated in business with her husband, to take possession of his books and papers in his office and to aid in the settlement of his affairs.

Mrs. Henderson says Mr. Yoakum now controls the Aldeo Realty Company, in which her husband held one-half the stock, and that Mr. Yoakum has denied that Mr. Henderson held any stock in the company. He has refused to return the papers to her, she complains.

HOLD UP TOWER'S DEGREE.

Yale Corporation Fails to Act on Faculty's Recommendation.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 17.—Although the recommendation of the Yale Faculty that a diploma be granted to Charlemagne Tower, Jr., came before the Yale Corporation to-day, the corporation did not vote the degree and incidental diploma.

"Final action was not taken on the matter," said the Rev. Anson Phelps Stokes, Secretary of the corporation, to-night. He did not explan where the hitch arose, but it is assumed that no decision will be made until the suit brought against young Tower by Miss Dixie Burdick, formerly of this city, who alleges that she is his wife, has been disposed of.

Young Tower failed to pass his final scholarship examinations and did not graduate with the class of '13. He has taken special examinations this Fall, however, and the Faculty feels that his degree should be given to him.

500 WOMEN TO LOSE JOBS.

New Law in Pennsylvania Disastrous to Hotel Employes.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 17.—The enforcement of the new law regulating the employment of women in Pennsylvania may result in hundreds of women losing their places in Philadelphia hotels this week.

The main feature of the law is that no woman can work more than fifty-four hours a week or more than ten hours a day; nor can they work more than six days in any one week. According to Mahlon W. Newton, President of the Philadelphia Hotel Association, the number of women thrown out of work will be at least 500, and may be much greater.

The hotel managers, he said, are willing to retain the women, but because of the necessity of hiring extra help where women are employed, wages will be reduced. In consequence, he said, some of the women, unable to live comfortably on less money, will enter other occupations. Men and boys will take the places of the women.

LESS PLUMAGE ON HATS.

Women Abandoning Bird Adornments, Says Col. Acklen.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—Women are abandoning the wearing of bird plumage for headgear decoration, according to Col. Joseph H. Acklen of Nashville, Tenn., who arrived here to-day to assume his duties as chief warden of the United States to enforce the recently enacted migratory bird protection law.

Col. Acklen, who is an enthusiastic bird lover, is to serve the Government without pay. He expects to visit every section and State of the country, enlisting the co-operation of State game wardens and the various sportsmen's organizations in the safeguarding of wild life.

The change in feminine fashions and the gradual abandonment of fur and feathers in the decoration of women's hats, the Colonel believes, are the most hopeful signs he has seen in his work thus far.

AERIAL PATROL FOR WIRES.

Power Company Employs Aviator to Locate Breakdowns.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Nov. 17.—Robert Fowler, an aviator, announced to-day that he had signed a contract with a power company to patrol its lines between Oakland and Oroville in an aeroplane, and will make trips twice weekly, beginning Nov. 30. Headquarters for Fowler have been established at Sacramento.

Because of difficulty in locating broken wires and interrupted power service the power company hit upon the idea of employing an aviator, and when Fowler demonstrated that the plan was feasible, a contract was signed. A patrolman equipped with repair apparatus will ride with Fowler.

SON OF J. P. MORGAN ILL.

Henry a Diphtheria Sufferer in Groton School Infirmary.

Special to The New York Times.

GROTON, Mass., Nov. 17.—Henry Morgan, the youngest son of J. Pierpont Morgan, the New York financier, is isolated in the Groton School Infirmary with a mild attack of diphtheria.

The symptoms became evident Saturday and an injection of antitoxin was administered immediately. Later the lad was removed to the infirmary. His case is a light one, and it is predicted that he will be outdoors again within a week.

He will, however, have to forego a trip to Cambridge, where he was to witness the Harvard-Yale football game with his brother Junius.

TAMMANY SPENT $203,500 IN DEFEAT

Contributions of $152,500 for City Campaign—More Than $50,000 Raised in Loans.

MURPHY BORROWED $25,000

Contractor Bradley and G. W. Plunkitt Gave $5,000 Each—Politicians and Business Men Big Subscribers.

It seems that Tammany Hall was in desperate financial straits in the recent campaign, which resulted in a Fusion landslide, and that on the very eve of the election a hurry call was sent out for more money in an effort to stem the anti-Tammany tide. This unusual condition is indicated by the statement of receipts and expenditures filed yesterday with the Secretary of State at Albany by Philip F. Donohue, Treasurer of the New York Democratic County Committee.

Not only did Tammany spend $50,000 more than the organization received, but it apepars that Tammany Leader Charles F. Murphy went down in his own pocket for $25,900, which he borrowed, and turned over to the depleted treasury. The statement shows that contributions to the amount of $152,500 were received, and that the expenditures were $203,500. The sums lent to Charles F. Murphy and making part of the receipts were:

Oct. 14, from the Empire Trust Company, $9,900.

Nov. 1, from the Commercial Trust Company, $15,000.

Nov. 7, from John A. McCarthy, $1,000.

The borrowing of this money would indicate that the surplus, if there was any in the County Committee's treasury, was wiped out.

The statement is eloquent of the condition of affairs within the Fourteenth Street organization a few days before the election on Nov. 4. On Nov. 1 Mr. Donohue reports $33,390 was raised and on Nov. 3, the day before election, $22,835 more was suddenly rounded up. Even after the election money was raised, for on Nov. 5, the receipts amounted to $7,105. On Nov. 6 there were $600 more in contributions, and on Nov. 7 John A. McCarthy lent Mr. Murphy $1,000 and Robert J. Fox contributed $25.

The Tammany district leaders and those on the "inside" contributed varying amounts, one of the interesting items being a contribution of $5,000 attributed to former leader G. W. Plunkitt. Mr. Plunkitt's name was brought out in connection with John A. Hennessy's charges against Edward E. McCall, the Tammany candidate for Mayor, and it was then said that Mr. Plunkitt was never known to have contributed any large sums to the organization.

How the Money was Spent.

The expenditures show that on Oct. 22, $500 was paid for a reception to the Rev. Dr. Sol Baum; Joseph Praeger received $4,500 for the Hungarian Democratic Club; Walter Russell, $2,500 for the college men's headquarters; Charles J. Crowley, $3,000 for the Irish Municipal League; J. G. Walsh, $1,785 for the Travelers' League; R. N. Wood, $9,000 for the colored Democrats, $5,000 of which was given in a lump sum on Nov. 3. The German League got $3,000 and the Italian headquarters $1,327. Max Praeger received $50 for the Hotel Waiters' Alliance; Robert Carter received $100, Charles Reese $150, and Henry Mayer $200 for cartoons.

On Nov. 1 these expenditures were noted: The Met Company, charity, $25; Mrs. R. Tripp, charity, $25. There were a dozen or more items for literature and postage, but the largest amount for postage alone was on Oct. 31, when $17,000 was paid. The first contribution to the fund was on Oct. 6, when William P. Kelly subscribed $50. On that day the total was $85.

SENATOR LEWIS'S CLERK ARRESTED

Alleged Forger of the Pindell Letter Threatens President Wilson.

On a warrant issued at Washington, D. C., Sidney Moulthrop, the stenographer accused by Senator J. Hamilton Lewis of Illinois of having falsified and published the letter informing Lewis Pindell of the terms upon which he would be made Ambassador to Russia, was arrested last night in the lobby of Smith & McNeil's Hotel in Washington Street by Detective Thompson of tht West 125th Street Police Station. The warrant charges forgery, and on the strength of it Moulthrop was locked up for the night. He refused to make any statement. According to the report of the case made to the police here, he was indicted for forgery by the Grand Jury of the District of Columbia.

The arrest of Moulthrop by a New York detective came as the hunt for him was about to be taken up by Secret Service men in this vicinity, for, according to dispatches from Washington received last night, President Wilson received yesterday a threatening letter purporting to come from Moulthrop. In this letter the writer said that unless the President calls off Senator Lewis from the prosecution of Moulthrop he will make public a letter involving the President himself.

According to the New York police, the actual complainant in the case is Edward Sullivan, private secretary to Senator Lewis, who charges that Moulthrop signed his employer's name to checks and documents. He had been living at the Washington Street hotel under the name of James Mansfield, and Detective Thompson caught him there last night just as he was about to mount the stairs to the second floor.

The letter to the President declared that the writer would watch the newspapers for news of the President's action. The envelope was postmarked Hackensack, N. J. A similar letter to Senator Lewis, sent from Edgewater, N. J., declared that if the Senator persisted in the prosecution letters would be made public involving Secretaries Bryan and McAdoo, as well as Roger C. Sullivan and William L. O'Connell of Chicago.

Other Senators have urged Mr. Lewis to insist upon the prosecution of Moulthrop, to make an example of him. They have told the Illinois Senator that unless he does so, Senators will be at the mercy of discharged clerks, who may have stolen letters from their files which they can sell to newspapers. Senator Lewis declares he will not withdraw the warrants.

SUICIDE FROM A LINER.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—The liner Cymric on her arrival at Queenstown to-day reported a tragedy.

When the vessel was two hours out from New York an Irish-American girl, whose name was given as Delia Sheehan, got behind a lifeboat, climbed the ship's rail, and to the astonishment of the passengers, jumped into the sea. A lifebelt was dropped within a foot of the girl, but she made no effort to grasp it.

Within three minutes a lifeboat was lowered and the liner was stopped, but the girl had disappeared.

Peace Celebration Committee Purchases Washington Home.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—Sulgrave Manor, Northamptonshire, the home of the ancestors of George Washington, has been purchased by the committee, presided over by Earl Grey, which was organized to arrange for the celebration next year of the one hundredth anniversary of peace betwen the English-speaking peoples.

TOWN FIGHTS FOR LAND.

To Start Ejectment Proceedings Over Property in Dispute.

M. Linn Bruce, former Lieutenant Governor, was engaged yesterday by the Town of North Hempstead, L. I., to begin ejectment proceedings against Benjamin Stern, who owns a large estate on Hempstead Harbor at Roslyn, L. I. The town lays claim to the title of two acres of land adjoining Mr. Stern's estate, which for many years was leased to oystermen by the town authorities. The town bases its claim to the land on an old Colonial title giving it the ownership of all lands under water in and around Hempstead Harbor and Manhasset Bay.

The authorities also allege that Mrs. William R. Grace, widow of the former Mayor, who has a large estate at Great Neck, L. I., is using town property. Mrs. Grace obtained her lease of the land from the State Land Commissioners. Mr. Bruce, in a lengthy opinion, says that the State authorities had no right to grant a lease.

TAXI TURNS TURTLE.

Bruised Woman Passenger Found Sitting on the Inverted Ceiling.

Mrs. Catharine Dockrell was driving up Willis Avenue, the Bronx, in a taxicab yesterday afternoon, when the right front tire exploded with a sharp report and the machine turned upside down. Bystanders hurrying to the rescue found her sitting, bruised and startled, on the inverted ceiling of the cab. The chauffeur had been tossed from his seat to the street.

Mrs. Dockrell is the wife of A. E. Dockrell of the undertaking firm of A. R. Dockrell & Co., of 310 Willis Avenue. She was helped from her uncomfortable position and sent home in an old-fashioned horse-drawn cab.

MARCONI TALKS ACROSS THE OCEAN?

Clifden-Glace Bay Wireless Suspended While He Makes Experiments, Reported Successful.

Special to The New York Times.

SYDNEY, Nova Scotia, Nov. 17.—William Marconi has taken up the task of solving the problem of wireless telephony. It became known to-day that last week at the Glace Bay and Clifden stations the business of sending wireless messages was suspended thirty minutes while Mr. Marconi, who was at the Clifden station, made an experiment of talking from Ireland to Cape Breton, approximately, 2,100 miles.

Wireless operators are sworn to secrecy as regards the business of the company when they take office, and, since Mr. Marconi has not seen fit to divulge the result of the experiments, the staffs both at Glace Bay and Clifden cannot be induced to talk about the matter. However, they smiled in a satisfied sort of way when questioned as to how the experiment turned out, as much as to say, "It was all that was expected, but we dare not say a word about it."

It had been expected that Mr. Marconi would open the new station put in operation at Louisburg early last month, but it is understood that he was unable to be present owing to the fact that he is devoting his entire time and attention at Clifden to perfecting his wireless telephone.

Some wonderful innovations have been made recently in wireless telegraphy. At Louisburg dictographs have been installed, which, when affixed to the wireless receiving apparatus, copy a message ticked off in the Irish station with an exactness that could not be excelled if the dots and dashes were ticked off at the home station in the immediate vicinity of the dictograph.

GEMS AND BUTLER VANISH.

Manufacturer Mourns the Loss of $4,000 Worth of Jewelry.

Herman N. Butler is looking everywhere for his butler on the chance that his unexplained absence from the Butler home at Broadway and New Street, Far Rockaway, first noted at breakfast time yesterday morning, had some connection with the fact that during the night more than $4,000 worth of jewelry disappeared from the dressing table in Mrs. Butler's room.

The missing butler was a new one. He had come to the household only ten days before from a Sixth Avenue employment agency, and he made a most favorable impression, for he was deft with his hands, smooth in his manner and soft stepping. He was introduced to Mr. Butler as William Taylor, and it was that name which was given to the police of the Far Rockaway Station yesterday after the jewelry loss had been discovered.

The missing jewels include three gold watches, several rings set with diamonds and a diamond bar pin. Mr. Butler is a manufacturer of cloaks and suits, with offices at 48 West Twenty-fifth Street, Manhattan.

YOUNG HARRIMAN AT DESK.

Will Learn Railroading at First Hand in U. P. Headquarters.

Special to The New York Times.

OMAHA, Nov. 17.—W. Averil Harriman, son of the late E. H. Harriman, is coming to Omaha next week to take a position in the Union Pacific headquarters to learn how to run a railroad at first hand.

Mr. Harriman, who is Vice President of the Illinois Central and a Director of the Union Pacific, wishes to learn the practical end of railroading under the veteran railroad men who served his father on the Union Pacific.

He will spend some time in the headquarters and an uncertain period in the big general shops as well. While it is not his intention to learn the details, he is expecting to learn the broad base of each department.

BLOCKADE NEAR, SAYS GERMAN MINISTER, BUT NAVY HEADS HAVEN'T HEARD OF IT

ADMIRAL BLUE DENIES IT

MANY LEAVE MEXICO CITY

Enough Senators Gathered to Form a Quorum and Elect a Chairman.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 17.—Admiral Paul von Heintze, the German Minister, called resident German merchants and business men together this afternoon, telling them that an American blockade of Mexican ports was to be declared in the next three days. The Minister took the names of all merchants importing goods directly from Europe and the United States and also asked for inventories of such shipments as were expected to arrive in the immediate future. This was done, he said, for the purpose of enabling the merchants to get their goods through the blockade if possible.

The international situation was unchanged to-day, although it was understood that all negotiations were definitely off, and that there was no further possibility of their being renewed, unless President Huerta voluntarily complied with the American suggestion.

It is generally believed here that further action will be delayed until Wednesday, when the new Congress will decide whether or not it is legal and when it elects a permanent Chairman. Then it is expected that the United States will take a definite stand regarding the legality of the Congress, bringing about a crisis.

Politicians pointed out to-day that it was absolutely necessary for President Huerta to present his resignation to the Congress which he has legally recognized. It is believed that in any case he will present a report of his work since he entered the Presidency for the approval of Congress, which may absolve him of any responsibility before the law. Failure to do this would leave him open to prosecution for his acts by any future Government which might be in power.

It is not believed that there is any possibility of his resignation unless this is done.

A rumor was in circulation here to-day that Gen. Blanquet was planning and armed rising to depose Huerta, since the latter was unwilling to resign.

A prominent politician said that he informed Gen. Blanquet several days ago of this rumor, and that the Minister of War then went to see Huerta, accompanied by his informant. He told the President of the report, saying that he did so in order that Gen. Huerta might know the stories which were current, and act as he saw fit.

Many prominent railway men and others who are considered well informed regarding possible developments are sending their families to Vera Cruz. This is causing considerable alarm in the American colony. The manager of a Mexican railroad went to Vera Cruz yesterday on a special train carrying many women and children whom he had advised to leave.

Rebels attacked Victoria, the capital of the State of Tamaulipas, yesterday morning at 8 o'clock. The Federal garrison under Gen. Juan de Dios Arzamendi, with about 800 men, was defending the place. Soon after the attack began a telegram was received here saying that rebels were closing in on the town and the attack was becoming fiercer. The wires were cut soon afterward, and nothing has since been heard from the town. Fear is expressed here that it may have fallen.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 17.—With the departure of Manuel Garza Aldape, late Minister of the Interior, foreigners here feel that the Cabinet has lost one of its most conservative members, whose moderation could be depended upon. His successor has not yet been named.

In the meantime Gen. Huerta is proceeding with his efforts to organize the new Congress, regardless of the notice given to him by John Lind, the personal representative of President Wilson, that serious consequences would follow such a step.

The Chamber of Deputies was ordered to hold a session to-day for the purpose of examining the credentials of its members, and it is expected that, unless the United States Government finds a means to bring about an alteration of the present plans, the first regular meeting of that house will occur on Thursday.

The American Chargé d'Affaires to-day received instructions to continue to advise Washington with respect to developments, but he was not instructed to approach the Mexican Government officials again; nor did his instructions include anything relative to the withdrawal of the embassy.

Rumors that the Chargé had been ordered to leave persisted, although an emphatic denial was made at the embassy, and trains leaving for Vera Cruz were watched anxiously by Americans, who have made up their minds not to delay their departure if Mr. O'Shaughnessy goes.

The Imparcial to-day refers editorially to the organization of the Mexican Congress, saying:

"It appears that this Mexican Congress displeases the mighty personage of the White House, who takes us for slaves, whereas we belong to the noble and fierce race of Cuahtemoc, the last Aztec sovereign of Mexico, crossed with that other indomitable and proud people whose monuments of glory rear themselves on the heights of the Andes.

"A people which loses its independence and dignity without a supreme effort is worse than dead and merits eternal ignominy."

The article closes by saying that the writer cannot believe the Yankees will launch upon such an insane adventure as a war with Mexico.

The organization of President Huerta's new Congress was completed late to-day, when enough Senators were gathered to form a quorum in the Upper House. Gen. Francisco Ponces was chosen Temporary Chairman of the Senate, and a Committee on Credentials was appointed. A similar committee of the Chamber of Deputies to-day began the work of revising the Deputies' credentials, and there is nothing to indicate that the formal opening of Congress next Thursday will be postponed.

President Huerta talked to-night informally to the members of his staff and a few personal friends regarding the possibilities of intervention by the United States. He intimated that he would be ready to resist such a step.

KNOW NOTHING OF BLOCKADE.

Navy Officials in Ignorance of Mexico City Report.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—Rear Admiral Victor Blue, Chief of the Bureau of Navigation and Acting Secretary of the Navy, said to-night that he knew nothing of any report that the United States would blockade the Mexican ports within three days.

The substance of the dispatch was read to him over the telephone, and he dismissed the subject with the general statement of ignorance. Secretary Daniels is in the Middle West for a week's speaking, and his absence is thought to cast doubt upon the report of any course that would involve the activity of battleships.

Secretary of War Garrison said this afternoon that no particular moves were contemplated along the Mexican frontier, and that has been the consistent expression from Major Gen. Wood, Chief of Staff, for weeks past. It has always been assumed that any plan for blockading the Mexican ports would involve a tightening of the lines on the frontier and a material increase in the troops placed there.

Secretary Bryan had retired for the night before the dispatch from Mexico was received. At his home, when the nature of the dispatch was disclosed, it was said it appeared not of sufficient importance to justify rousing the Secretary.

It is suggested here as a possible explanation of the reported statements of the German Minister that he might have consulted with German residents in the City of Mexico as to various measures to be taken in case of various contingencies. An American blockade would have been a contingency that would have naturally been suggested, and it is thought the report might have grown out of that.

The general opinion here has not been that a blockade would be the first hostile movement of this Government against Mexico, although it has been suggested. It has been explained that a blockade is simply an ineffective warfare that would allow the Mexicans every opportunity for wreaking vengeance on Americans within their borders. A blockade, it is suggested, might be a supplement to extensive military operations by land, but it can be stated positively that no such military operations are under contemplation.

BLANQUET OUSTED ALDAPE.

Gave Huerta His Choice Between Himself and His Rival.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 17.—The ousting of Manuel Garza Aldape from his post of Minister of the Interior is believed to have been largely the result of friction between himself and Gen. Blanquet, the Minister of War.

A three-cornered fight has been in progress for some weeks, the three factions having been headed by Aldape, Blanquet, and Moheno. Recently Moheno and Blanquet have been working together to insure the elimination of Aldape. The Blanquet-Aldape fight began when Aldape became Minister of the Interior, and conflicting instructions were given to

WILSON STILL OPTIMISTIC

O'Shaughnessy to Leave Mexico City Only When Ordered to Do So.

1,500 AMERICANS THERE

Apprehension Felt That They May Be Isolated by Wrecked Railroads.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—These are the official statements of fact from high authorities to-day regarding the Mexican situation:

The optimism which President Wilson openly expressed on Thursday has not been diminished, and the situation, as far as he is concerned, is substantially unchanged, though Gen. Huerta's personality is thought to give it a kaleidoscopic appearance.

The cause of the Constitutionalists has been considerably impaired in the eyes of the Administration by the reports of Pancho Villa's executions of Federal prisoners at Juarez.

Nelson O'Shaughnessy, Chargé d'Affaires, has not been recalled by this Government, nor has he received his passports from the officials of President Huerta.

Mr. O'Shaughnessy has not "contingent instructions" under which, in any eventuality, he could withdraw from Mexico City without express orders from the State Department. Nor has he instructions under which he could take any given course, either aggressive or conciliatory, following developments in Mexico, without express instruction from Washington.

The retirement of Manuel Garza Aldape, Mexican Minister of the Interior, and the only active supporter of American policies in Huerta's Cabinet, is confirmed at the State Department.

Fear Mexico City May Be Cut Off.

The State Department has received advices suggesting that communications between Mexico City and Vera Cruz, its nearest port, may be cut in the near future, though this information is not positive. The department apparently inclines to the view that this cutting of communications would be due more to President Huerta's determination to suspend traffic than to the rebels' ability to blow up the lines. The number of Americans who would thus be shut in is known to the department, though it refuses to give out the figures.

The one unexplained feature in these various items of official information is the unqualified statement that the President's optimism has been unimpaired by developments of the last few days. The determination, however, to keep Mr. O'Shaughnessy at his present post fits in with this statement and shows at least that what has been called the Micawber policy of this Government has not been changed. Mr. O'Shaughnessy will remain in Mexico City, and Mr. Lind at Vera Cruz, and both of them are in close and constant communication with Washington, receiving instructions for every movement from the State Department.

The prevailing opinion here is that the dismissal of Señor Aldape from Gen. Huerta's Cabinet yesterday at one blow shattered whatever basis there may have been for President Wilson's optimism of last Thursday. When Mr. Lind left a note with Gen. Huerta's private secretary, saying that he would leave the city if a favorable reply were not received by 7 o'clock to his demand that the new Mexican Congress be dissolved before convening, it was Señor Aldape who held out hopes of Huerta's surrender and pleaded for delay. It was at this time that hope was highest in Washington.

There were suspicions then in various quarters that Señor Aldape's efforts for peace were made without knowledge of his chief. There had been reports for many weeks of friction between Señor Aldape and Gen. Huerta. These reports increased in circumstantiality a little while before Señor Aldape made what now appear to have been at best unofficial advances to Mr. O'Shaughnessy. It was represented that Señor Aldape, with others of the Provisional Cabinet, notably Señor de la Lama, Huerta's Minister of Finance, were working together to induce President Huerta to go so far toward yielding to American demands as to submit his resignation to the new Congress as soon as it could be called together.

Many of these most encouraging events happened while Gen. Huerta was in seclusion. No sooner did the President return to the National Palace and get the reins in his hands than every intimation of surrender was repudiated. He then declared that he, like the rebel Gen. Carranza, would stand fast against any foreign intervention. Unofficially, his statements were still more emphatic until finally Señor Aldape was dismissed. This dismissal of the last member of his original Cabinet is regarded here as being the most emphatic of Gen. Huerta's intimations that he has no intention of surrendering.

Suspicions of Aldape's Motives.

There is unquestionably a strong suspicion here that Señor Aldape's overtures never meant anything more than that he foresaw his own downfall and was preparing a bed to fall upon. His alleged friendship for the United States is of too recent growth to receive full credence here. It must be recalled that the announcement that almost ended John Lind's mission before it began was signed by Señor Aldape. As Acting Minister of Foreign Affairs, he declared that Mr. Lind would be an undesirable sion. It was only after Señor Aldape was replaced by Señor Gamboa in the Foreign Ministry that Mr. Lind received a courteous hearing.

The statement that Mr. O'Shaughnessy had no contingent instructions whatever seems to mark a return to the old drifting policy that obtained prior to last Thursday. Mr. Lind's demands for certain pledges from Gen. Huerta were unaccompanied by any statement of what would follow failure to comply with them. Mr. O'Shaughnessy's communications at the present time are conducted on the same basis. Apparently only one step is decided at a time, and that decision is reached in Washington.

The State Department to-day was unusually reticent regarding the activities of Dr. William Bayard Hale at Nogales, Sonora, where he has been in consultation with Gen. Carranza and his provisional Cabinet. There is every reason, however, to believe that these negotiations continue. The mere fact that they do continue strongly suggests that his proposals to the Constitutionalists must include something besides mediation. That has been stoutly rejected by Gen. Carranza, and Gen. Huerta has echoed Carranza's sentiments in an unmistakable way.

Villa's Executions Worry Washington.

But whether this means that Dr. Hale is offering, in return for certain pledges, to permit the Constitutionalists to import munitions of war from the United States, or even to recognize their Government as de facto in the Northern States, is still unknown. Certain it is, however, according to information here to-day, that President Wilson feels that whatever negotiations were in progress at Nogales have been markedly embarrassed by the reported Constitutionalist outrages in the captured city of Juarez. The President has declared against the blood-stained hand of Huerta, sympathizing evidently with Carranza. Should the reports of wholesale shootings in Juarez, long after resistance was over, be confirmed, it is difficult to see how any dealings of a friendly sort could be continued with the Carranzistas.

At the White House to-day it was said on the best authority that this Government was investigating the reported murders at Juarez. This afternoon, however, the State Department admitted that no investigation was being directed through its officials, and the same statement was forthcoming at the War Department.

However, the routine summary of facts from the State Department announced that good order prevailed in Juarez under the military rule of the Constitutionalist captors.

1,500 Americans in Mexico City.

Unofficial estimates here fixed the number of Americans in Mexico City at 1,500, though the State Department appeared reluctant to excite alarm in this country by giving the precise figures. Six months ago it was estimated that there were 10,000 Americans in Mexico scattered throughout the country, so that the estimate for Mexico City would be moderate.

While press dispatches from Vera Cruz and the City of Mexico indicate no danger to the line connecting those cities, the Department has been advised of such danger. This information is thought, partly at least, to explain the urgency with which some Americans have tried to leave the Mexican Capital.

DANIELS IS OPTIMISTIC.

Expects No Trouble in Mexico, but Says Navy Is Prepared.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 17.—Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy, accompanied by his aid, Lieut. Commander N. L. Jones, was here to-day for the purpose of inspecting the United States Naval Training Station at Lake Bluff, and took occasion to say that, though in his opinion war with Mexico was a remote possibility, if it should come the navy of the United States was never in better condition to meet a foe and give a good account of itself.

Secretary Daniels dwelt upon the fact that 7,000 marines and sailors were gathered on the two coasts of Mexico on seven battleships, four cruisers, and three gunboats.

"What are they there for?" the Secretary was asked.

"To protect American interests," he replied, and then he added:

"I don't believe there is going to be any trouble. I sincerely hope not. I don't want to talk about war with Mexico. I think the sailors already there are ample to protect American citizens. There are on the east coast of Mexico seven battleships, one cruiser, and one gunboat. On the west coast we have placed three cruisers and two gunboats.

"I believe in a good navy, always ready. I am doing my best to make it so."

"How many battleships a year do you favor?" was asked.

"I'd rather tell that to Congress first," said Secretary Daniels. "Before I became Secretary I argued for two battleships a year."

The Secretary predicted that United States warships would pass down the Drainage Canal if the waterway to the Gulf should be completely developed.

"If they keep that creek in good condition, I'm going to send warships down from the St. Lawrence through the lakes to the Gulf," he said. "There is no reason why we should not make use of our most important waterways."

Secretary Daniels said his chief interest centred around making sailors better men by giving them a training in the "Three R's."

"I have come to Chicago purposely to see the new school in which sailors are taught grammar, reading, writing, arithmetic, and the fundamentals that every man ought to have. A man who knows these subjects can better understand electricity and mechanics. He becomes a better sailor. The course is really high school and grammar school work combined. It is my idea. We needed it in the navy."

CARRANZA PARLEYS CRUCIAL.

Hale and Constitutionalists in Constant Sessions—Balk at Demands.

Special to The New York Times.

NOGALES, Mexico, Nov. 17.—With rumors of continued victory for the Constitutionalist arms coming from the State of Tamaulipas and reports of dissension in the ranks of the enemy at Guaymas, matters of far more importance to the rebel cause have been under consideration in conferences held to-day between Dr. William Bayard Hale, President Wilson's representative, and the leaders here. It has been a day of almost constant sessions, but at its close no definite statement can be obtained from any of the principals.

"It is certain, however, that a critical stage has been reached. When the conferences will end can only be surmised, although a Mexican official says that the conferees are hoping to finish to-morrow.

That some important point on which there is a divergence of opinion between the Washington Government and the Carranzistas is under discussion is practically certain. The Mexicans know what they want, and have asked for it, and their requests have been transmitted to Washington to-day, according to the statement of Francisco Escudero, Gen. Carranza's Minister of Foreign Affairs.

In speaking of the conference Señor Escudero said that the lifting of the embargo would be a very desirable thing, "but," he said, "it is not very necessary for the triumph of our principles. Possibly we shall obtain it in a few days, but it is not vital." In this connection he predicted that there would be definite results by to-morrow.

Although the Constitutionalists did not ask for recognition of their belligerency, it is believed that Washington will grant that if it does anything, since it will be very desirable that the rebels assume the obligations of a belligerent State, which would thus be imposed upon them by international law in the event of their later triumph.

Such obligations they evidently desire to avoid. It is hardly probable that Washington would make the mistake of accepting the mere word of Carranza as a guarantee, hence it is pointed out that the requirements of Washington may go even further, so as to include the acceptance of conditions which will vouchsafe to the United States an advisory if not a supervisory relation with respect to some future action if the Carranza movement is to have American backing.

It may also be in the thought of President Wilson that if the American Government is to have a hand in bringing about peace in Mexico, now is the time to secure conditions by which it will be easier to maintain peace after seeing constitutional government re-established.

This may or may not be called a protectorate, but many men well informed as to Mexican affairs believe that there can be no other way to peace and civilization in the Southern republic than through their establishment by the strong hand of the United States.

Official announcement was made here this morning that the troops of Pablo Gonzales had engaged the Federals of Victoria, Tamaulipas, and were fighting in the streets.

An official statement was also made that the seven Federal officers who were executed at Juarez were men who had been previously captured at Torreon and released only to break their paroles and return to the Federal service.

TROOPS DEPORT ALDAPE.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VERA CRUZ, Nov. 17.—Gen. Fernando Gonzales, with a detail of troops, returned to the City of Mexico on a special train to-night, having embarked the deposed Minister of the Interior, Manuel Garza Aldape, on board the steamship Espagne, en route for Europe. Aldape was virtually a prisoner until safely aboard ship.

VERA CRUZ, Nov. 17.—Rear Admiral Boush, on board the United States battleship Louisiana, reports that the Constitutionalist Gen. Aguilar has given the town of Tuxpam until next Thursday to surrender. Capt. Spencer S. Wood, in command of the battleship Nebraska, reports that Aguilar controls all the country south of the Ponupo River. Aguilar, Capt. Wood says, professes to desire to protect American property, but is hostile to the English.

The Constitutionalist leader at Tanguijo says that, in compliance with orders from Gen. Carranza, he intends to control all the oil fields and collect the revenues that now are paid to the Federal Government and prevent the supplying of oil to the railroads. He has notified the Eagle Oil Company that it must pay $200,000 down and $25,000 monthly. The insurgents number several thousand, and have garrisons on all the oil properties.

The American women and children at Tamiahua are expected to reach Tampico to-night.

COWDRAY DENIES RUMORS.

Tells The New York Times Carden Was Not Appointed at His Request.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—Lord Cowdray, head of the Pearson syndicate, operating large concessions in Mexico, has sent the following communication to the London correspondent of THE NEW YORK TIMES to-day:

"I shall be obliged if you will afford me the courtesy of your columns to enable me to reply specifically and categorically to persistent rumors now appearing in the press, more especially abroad, to the following effect:

"1. The rumor that Sir Lionel Carden was appointed his Majesty's Minister to Mexico at my wish or suggestion is untrue. It is a fact that I knew nothing about such an appointment until it had been made.

"2. The rumor that interests in which I am concerned are finding moneys directly or indirectly for the present de facto Government of Mexico is untrue, except in so far as we participated to the extent of less than 3 per cent. in the loan that was negotiated for the Government by the National Bank of Mexico some two months ago.

"3. The rumor that concessions granted to us by the Government of Gen. Diaz some eight years ago were canceled by the Madero Administration is untrue. The fact is that Government specifically recognized those concessions as being legal and valid.

"4. The rumor that we have desired or solicited any oil concessions from the present Mexican Government is untrue.

"5. The rumor that we have or seek to obtain a monopoly is untrue. Our concessions give us no monopoly.

"6. The rumor that we took part, either directly or indirectly, in the overthrow of the Madero Government, is untrue.

"In speaking for myself I also speak for my firm and any company in which I or my firm is interested.

Nuernberg Ordered to Transport German Refugees from Tepic.

BERLIN, Nov. 17.—Admiral Paul von Hintze, the German Minister in Mexico, has ordered the cruiser Nürnberg, now on the Pacific coast of Mexico, to proceed to San Blas, a port in the State of Tepic, in order to take on board any German fugitives from the city of Tepic, which is threatened by insurgents.

Private steamers are to be chartered if the Nürnberg is unable to reach the place in time.

the military Governors by Aldape and Blanquet. This has been the case with other holders of the Interior portfolio, who had to pocket their pride and yield to Blanquet or regard themselves as soldiers and obey his orders.

Until recently it was believed that Aldape was the stronger of the two, aided, as he was, by slight friction between Moheno and Blanquet, which caused the presentation of Blanquet's resignation about a week ago. This was not accepted, however, and the crisis was tided over.

The final friction between Aldape and Blanquet arose over the recent international developments. The diplomats, seeing the futility of attempting to exercise direct pressure upon Huerta, began to work upon the Cabinet officers, principally Aldape, who seemed most amenable to reason. At that time Aldape was counted upon to support Leopoldo Rebollar, Minister of Commerce and Labor, and Adolfo de la Lama, Minister of Finance. The other Ministers, with the exception of Blanquet, agreed half-heartedly that the best course would be for Huerta to resign. Moheno, Garcia, Naranjo, and Lozano laid their plans to be clear of blame whichever way Huerta should decide, refusing to commit themselves. It is also understood that de la Lama was able to clear his skirts in time to avoid being forced out. The resignation of Rebollar, however, will probably be forthcoming soon.

It is generally believed that Huerta drew Aldape out until he was convinced that the Minister was looking toward the Presidency for himself, whereupon his resignation was demanded.

Another report says that Blanquet gave Huerta the alternative of accepting his resignation or demanding that of Aldape and that Huerta preferred the latter in view of possible military developments.

Aldape is wealthy, being a large landowner in the vicinity of Torreon and Monterey. He was prominently connected with revolutionary movements against the Madero régime.

It is rumored that Francisco Olaguibel, now a Sub-Secretary, will become Minister of Foreign Affairs; Moheno of Commerce, replacing Rebollar; that Lozano will change from the Ministry of Communications to that of the Interior; that a new man will probably be appointed to the Communications portfolio, the others retaining their posts.

The principal importance attached to Aldape's resignation is that it practically does away with any possibility of Huerta's elimination through diplomatic pressure. Aldape has been the only hope of the diplomats some time, and has conferred frequently with O'Shaughnessy and the other foreign representatives, presumably regarding the Dictator's resignation.

Aldape does not count sufficient strength to cause any trouble in a revolutionary way. He has always been connected with the Reyes faction, which is as good as dead since the arrest of Rodolfo Reyes, who is unable to carry with him more than that small faction which was headed by his father, who was killed in the bombardment.

Many social engagements have been cancelled, and the society columns are filled with announcements that leaders of fashion will not keep their days at home. Several large social functions have been postponed indefinitely.

Tells Juarez Banks They'll Be Repaid if Rebels Win.

EL PASO, Texas, Nov. 17.—Gen. Francisco Villa threatened to-day to take over the Mexican Northwestern Railroad, a property owned by Canadian capitalists, if the officials did not themselves immediately repair and operate the line. The railroad line has been destroyed by both rebels and Federals and has not been in operation for several months. At a conference with Villa today the railroad officials decided to begin the repairing of the line, instead of permitting it to be confiscated by the rebels.

Loans amounting to about $100,000 were made to Gen. Villa at Juarez today by the two banks of that city. Villa gave the bankers assurances that he would refund the money to them if the revolt was successful.

The money is being used in paying off the rebel troops and buying uniforms and provisions.

A full report of the executions in Juarez within the last few days was forwarded to the War Department today by United States Army officers.

DOUGLAS, Ariz., Nov. 17.—A. L. King, a Chicago mining man, arrived here today from a mine near Temosachic, State of Chihuahua. King said that a band of twenty bandits shot his horse from under him and robbed him of $600. He walked the last six days of his journey. King expressed a determination to obtain Government action in his case if possible, his first step being to make a report to American Consul Frederick Simpich at Nogales.

WHITMAN MAY SIFT OPERA TICKET SALE

Clients of Tyson & Co. Ask Him to Call the Bankers—He Will Answer To-day.

WEEK'S SUPPLY RELEASED

Trust Company Returns Proportionate Sums to Those Who Paid Twice—Replevin Wins Others.

As Chairman of a committee representing more than 200 patrons of the theatre ticket agency of Tyson & Co., 1,122 Broadway, ex-State Senator Frank D. Pavey of 32 Nassau Street went to the office of District Attorney Whitman late yesterday afternoon and demanded a John Doe investigation into all the transactions resulting in the tangle of over $54,000 worth of Metropolitan Opera tickets, which the Metropolitan Trust Company of 49 Wall Street has held as collateral on a loan made to the ticket agency. Mr. Pavey is going back to the office of the District Attorney this morning at 10:30 o'clock to receive his answer.

It is more than probable that District Attorney Whitman will then tell Mr. Pavey that the whole matter is to be put in the hands of the Magistrate's Court, as the usual procedure when a John Doe investigation is started.

Asked what his next step would be in case District Attorney Whitman should announce his intention this morning of starting a John Doe inquiry, Mr. Pavey said that he would, of course, ask the District Attorney to call certain witnesses. When he was pressed to give the names of the men he would request Mr. Whitman to subpoena, Mr. Pavey mentioned first the names of four of the officials of the Metropolitan Trust Company—Beverly Chew, Vice President, now acting as President; Bertram Cruger, Treasurer; George N. Hartmann, Secretary, and Rupert W. K. Anderson, Assistant Treasurer.

Mr. Pavey then said he would ask that the following men be called to tell what they knew about the transactions leading up to the opera ticket tangle: Richard J. Hartman, President of Tyson & Co.; John A. Sullivan and John McNamee, Vice Presidents; Eugene Lucas, Treasurer, and Earl Lewis of the box office of the Metropolitan Opera House.

Richard J. Hartman, President, and John A. Sullivan, Vice President of Tyson & Co., were seen in the District Attorney's office also yesterday. They were in conference for some time with Assistant District Attorneys Lockhart and Train, whom Mr. Whitman directed to make the preliminary investigation into the opera ticket situation.

Release a Week's Tickets.

An arrangement was made by counsel for the Metropolitan Trust Company and Tyson & Co. by which the tickets for this week's performances were released to the ticket agency in the afternoon at 3:20 o'clock. Immediately the tickets were taken to the offices of Tyson & Co. at 1,122 Broadway, where they were delivered to the patrons of that company during the afternoon, and plans were made for delivery in the lobby of the Metropolitan Opera House last evening. Tyson & Co. made no additional charge for the tickets, and the Metropolitan Trust Company has announced that it will refund to the holders of its receipts the money that the subscribers paid in redeeming the opera tickets for the performances this week.

Those who expected that some of the disappointed subscribers would create a disturbance at the Metropolitan Opera House by presenting their receipts and refusing to repurchase or accept a part of the tickets were entirely disappointed. Not one of the subscribers was distinguishable in the regular first night gala crowd. Most of them had procured their tickets at Tyson & Co.'s offices during the afternoon, and only four or five obtained them from the temporary box office opened in the lobby of the opera house. When the performance began only two seats, both held by one subscriber, remained to be delivered at the temporary box office, and the subscriber claimed them before the performance was half over.

An hour after the arrangement was completed by the counsel for the trust company and the ticket agency for the release of the first week's tickets ex-Senator Pavey appeared at the office of District Attorney Whitman. The attention of Mr. Pavey was called to the fact that the tickets were being delivered for this week by the ticket agency, but he only remarked that the remaining twenty-two weeks' season tickets were still in the possession of the Metropolitan Trust Company.

When Mr. Pavey visited District Attorney Whitman he was accompanied by Otto M. Sternfeld, an attorney of 31 Nassau Street, who was also appointed a member of the committee to represent the subscribers in any legal action for the recovery of their tickets or redress for the loss of them. This committee had been appointed in the morning at a meeting of the subscribers held in the Hotel Belmont. At this meeting ex-Senator Pavey, as Chairman, reviewed certain facts he said he had obtained by a private investigation into the transactions in opera tickets.

His request for a John Doe investigation by the District Attorney's office, Mr. Pavey said, was predicated on these same facts, and he was requested by Mr. Whitman to tell all he knew about the transactions to Assistant District Attorney Lockhart. Mr. Pavey and Mr. Sternfeld were in conference for nearly two hours with Assistant District Attorney Lockhart.

Pavey's Version of the Transaction.

What Mr. Pavey told Mr. Lockhart was an amplification of this statement that he made in the morning at the meeting of more than 150 of Tyson & Co.'s subscribers:

"As a result of the investigations which I have made, the facts in regard to the transactions in opera tickets appear to have been as follows:

"Tyson & Co. subscribed for tickets of the total value of $153,000. About Sept. 1 they paid $53,000 to the Metropolitan Opera Company, which left a balance due on the tickets of $100,000. The Metropolitan Opera Company would not deliver the tickets to Tyson & Co. until this was paid. Tyson & Co. had already collected from some of their subscribers. Whether the amount which they had collected was more or less than $53,000 I have no means of knowing. It would probably take an audit of their books to determine points of that character.

"On Sept. 12, 1913, Tyson & Co. opened a special account in the Metropolitan Trust Company by the deposit of $21,063.25. On Sept. 13, 1913, the Metropolitan Trust Company credited the special account of Tyson & Co. with $100,000. This $100,000 was a loan from the Metropolitan Trust Company to Tyson & Co., secured by the pledge of the tickets as collateral. The tickets were delivered to the Metropolitan Trust Company in the following manner: Mr. Hartman and Mr. Sullivan, as representatives of Tyson & Co., went to the Metropolitan Opera House. Mr. Lewis, who is, I believe, Treasurer of the Metropolitan Opera Company, had the tickets packed in a box. The box was put in a taxicab. Mr. Hartman, Mr. Sullivan, and Mr. Lewis went with the box in the same taxicab to the Metropolitan Trust Company. The tickets were not taken to the office of Tyson & Co. When the tickets were delivered to the Metropolitan Trust Company that company certified a check drawn by Tyson & Co. in favor of the Metropolitan Opera Company for $100,000, which was given to Mr. Lewis. My understanding is that the making of the loan for $100,000 to Tyson & Co., the delivery of the tickets, and the certification of the check were all one transaction.

"On the same day, (Sept. 13, 1913,) Tyson & Co. made a further deposit in the special account of the Metropolitan Trust Company of $1,644.50. This deposit was, as nearly as the Treasurer of Tyson & Co. can remember, solely made up of checks of subscribers to opera tickets. From Sept. 13 to some date in October Tyson & Co. continued to deposit in this special account in the Metropolitan Trust Company all checks received by them from subscribers. This at least is their claim.

"Prior to Oct. 1, 1913, Tyson & Co. had no account except this special account at the Metropolitan Trust Company. On Oct. 1, 1913, Tyson & Co. opened, in addition to the special account, a general account. Some time near the end of October or the first of November Tyson & Co. withdrew from the Metropolitan Trust Company a considerable amount of opera tickets. According to the information given to me, the tickets withdrawn were those in the front rows of the orchestra, from A to L inclusive, and tickets in those rows were withdrawn from the Metropolitan Trust Company, regardless of the question whether they had been paid for or not. These tickets withdrawn were taken to the office of Tyson & Co., where they were delivered to subscribers or placed on sale."

Threatens to Jail Somebody.

When he had finished his prepared statement Senator Pavey said:

"Now, I don't know to what extent the Metropolitan Opera Company or the Metropolitan Trust Company knew the identity of the subscribers of Tyson & Co., but from what Mr. Hartman, the President of Tyson & Co., had told me, the Metropolitan Trust Company did know that the tickets they accepted as collateral were subscribed for. I don't believe they would have loaned that much money on the tickets unless they had known that they were subscribed for.

"I don't undertake to say who is responsible, but I do say that somebody is going to jail at some time or pay back my check. I think we can be sure of that if we all take that attitude—and we won't have to miss possibly more than one performance. I understand that District Attorney Whitman is going to take immediate action. In fact, I talked to Mr. Whitman last night, and he made known his willingness to assist us in the matter. Therefore, I shall make a motion that a committee be appointed to co-operate with the District Attorney and give him all the assistance in its power."

Mr. Pavey then suggested that a list be made of all the subscribers who had paid their opera subscriptions to Tyson & Co. before the tickets for which they were subscribed were given into the possession of the Metropolitan Trust Company, because he believed that those subscribers could obtain immediate action by having its committee demand that the trust company turn over those tickets. When he suggested that the committee visit the District Attorney without delay, one of the women interrupted to ask:

"Mr. Chairman, may we not communicate with District Attorney Whitman over the telephone in order to save time?"

Another woman wanted to know whether the tickets would not properly be classified as "stolen goods," and Mr. Pavey assured her that "the Judge would have the last guess at that question." One questioner desired to know whether a subscriber, in repurchasing tickets for a single performance or for a single week, would jeopardize his rights for the rest of his season tickets. Mr. Pavey advised him, in the event of repurchasing tickets for a single performance, to file notice with the trust company's agents that he did so without waiving his rights with respect to the balance of the tickets.

Mr. Pavey grouped a third class of subscribers in addition to those who had paid their subscriptions either before or after the tickets were delivered to the trust company. The third class embraced those who paid for their tickets a second time on Saturday and yesterday. The fourth class were those who refused to pay, and the fifth class were those who bought tickets for single performances.

Replevin Writs Successful.

In order that the interests of each class of subscribers might be taken care of, Senator Pavey thought it advisable to appoint on the committee members representative of each class. He had just started to name that committee when Dudley F. Phelps, an attorney of 96 Broadway, entered the room and announced that he had obtained the release of tickets for several of his clients last Saturday by starting replevin actions. Mr. Phelps explained that he had, in pursuance of legal requirements, obtained bond for twice the amount of the value of their tickets. On account of the lateness with which he started the legal action to recover the tickets, however, he was unable to file bond and merely served a summons on the trust company. According to Mr. Phelps, the summons was sufficient to induce the trust company to produce the tickets.

Mr. Phelps was immediately named by Mr. Pavey as a member of the committee who had merited the right to represent all the subscribers. The other members of that committee were ex-Senator Pavey, Otto M. Sternfeld, attorney, 31 Nassau Street; A. E. Dick, 244 West Seventieth Street; Mrs. Henry M. Bloch, 120 West 11[illegible]th Street, and Edward Bennecke, 1,812 Madison Avenue. Mr. Pavey announced that no bills were to be sent to subscribers for any services rendered, and that each subscriber was free to go ahead with individual legal action.

On the suggestion of ex-Senator Pavey, the gathering, in high spirits, then adjourned to the Hotel Manhattan to inform agents of the Metropolitan Trust Company of the stand they had taken. Mr. Sternfeld acted as spokesman.

Mr. Anderson was explaining that the trust company held that Tyson & Co. never had any title to the tickets except subject to the lien of the Metropolitan Trust Company, when he was interrupted by a heavy set little man, who literally plowed through the packed mass of subscribers, with a larger man following close on his heels.

"I'm from the office of the Sheriff of New York County," said the newcomer, speaking to Mr. Anderson, "and I hereby serve you with a writ of replevin for the tickets indicated in the writ."

The writ was obtained by L. L. Leventritt, an attorney of 128 Broadway, acting for Simon Marx of Port Chester, who was required to give bond amounting to $600. Mr. Anderson asked for a few minutes of grace in which to consult over the telephone with the attorneys for the trust company.

Subscribers Affected.

While he was consulting his counsel, one of the subscribers, who gave her name as Mrs. Grace Huniston, mounted a chair, asserted that she held a check drawn on her bank in payment for a Tyson & Co. subscription, and indorsed by the Metropolitan Trust Company. She asked Mr. Anderson if she was not, therefore, entitled to obtain her seats. The Assistant Treasurer of the trust company started to make another legal explanation, when Mrs. Huniston interrupted him, asking:

"Won't you answer my question?"

"Then, No," answered Mr. Anderson.

Meanwhile Mr. Leventritt had obtained an order for his tickets on the writ of replevin served by the Deputy Sheriff. Sheriff Harburger received another writ of replevin yesterday, the second one, and it was in favor of Jacques Kahn, who had subscribed for tickets valued at $303. Bird S. Wise, as legal counsel for Miss Edith L. Taylor, also started legal action for the recovery of season tickets for his client.

Some of the subscribers, who left their names with the committee representing them before the District Attorney, were Mrs. Edward B. Love, Mrs. Charles Joel Flint, Mrs. Appleton Wade, Mrs. R. W. Nesbit, George C. Taylor, Mrs. C. M. Wray, Mrs. E. D. Schmack, L. Satenstein, Dr. Eleanora M. Arthur, Mrs. Henry Mason Day, Wainwright Parrish, Gardiner S. Dresser, Miss Alice W. Tucker, Mrs. Julius Sternberger, Bermo Cohen, Mrs. Kate E. Henning, Miss Edith H. Taylor, Mrs. James Cockraft, Leonora F. Kohler, B. Fisher, George W. Kosmo, Mrs. J. Adler, Miss E. A. Faber, H. S. Wolf, H. A. Crawford, Louise C. Moheman, W. R. Herschman, Mrs. Rowse Babcock, Mrs. A. R. Annatt, Edward H. Dutcher, Miss Florence J. Mastin, Mrs. W. F. Mastin, Miss Grace B. McCall, Mrs. J. R. Pavey, and M. Goodrich.

Others holding receipts were Adolph Lewisohn, Isaac Guggenheim, Mrs. M. E. Jesup, Otto Jaeger, Mrs. E. R. S. Gould, S. H. Valentine, Albert Kaskell, George C. Heilner, Herbert J. Park, H. L. Smith, Miss L. H. Guardenier, Mrs. Lewis Russell, Mrs. Thomas Mott, Miss Mary Benson, Mrs. Augusta F. Gilbert, Bernard M. Baruch, Mrs. Howard Richmond, Mrs. Annie E. Smith, Mrs. James M. McCoon, Mrs. S. M. Rice, E. Howard Martin, Miss K. Ball, Dwight S. Richardson, Mrs. Harriet W. Biddle, and Charles G. Koss.

Subscribers Hear of Settlement.

The temporary box office of the Metropolitan Trust Company, opened in the Hotel Manhattan on Saturday, was kept open yesterday, and practically all the subscribers whose tickets have been held up were there in person to serve notice that their tickets must not be sold, or sent their legal representatives. It was about 3 o'clock when Robert J. Hartman, head of the ticket agency, appeared in the box office on the mezzanine floor in the rear of the building, accompanied by William L. Marshall of his counsel, Griggs, Baldwin & Baldwin. They were met by R. W. K. Anderson, Assistant Treasurer of the Metropolitan Trust Company, and J. M. R. Lyeth of Carter, Ledyard & Milburn, counsel for the trust company.

These men immediately went into conference, after the subscribers were requested to leave the box office and after the doors had been closed. The doors were closed for nearly three-quarters of an hour, when Mr. Lyeth appeared and was asked by the reporters whether a settlement had been reached. Mr. Lyeth returned to consult for a few minutes with Mr. Anderson, and returned with this announcement:

> The Metropolitan Trust Company will refund to all holders of its receipts for money paid in redeeming season tickets for Metropolitan Opera, pledged with it, proportionate amounts for the tickets for performances for the first week of opera, viz.: Orchestra and orchestra circle seats, $5.50; dress circle seats, $3; front row, balcony, $2.50; rear row, balcony, $2; front rows, family circle, $1.50, and rear rows, family circle, $1.
> All who have taken up tickets for single performances for the first week will receive the full amount paid by them. Checks for the above refunds will be mailed to-night by the Metropolitan Trust Company.

Mr. Lyeth's attention was called to the fact that counsel for the Metropolitan Trust Company, in a statement issued on Sunday night, had said it would not consider any proposition from Tyson & Co. to redeem tickets for a single performance, but that it would accept an offer to release the tickets for the entire first week, by a payment amounting to a little less than $2,800. Asked if that sum had been paid for the release of the tickets by Tyson & Co., Mr. Lyeth replied:

"I can only say that a proportionate amount was paid by Tyson & Co. for the tickets for the first week's performances at the Metropolitan Opera House."

"Did the Metropolitan Opera Company take any part or exert any influence in this preliminary settlement?" Mr. Lyeth was asked.

"So far as I have been concerned, the Metropolitan Opera Company did not," replied Mr. Lyeth.

This announcement was then made by William L. Marshall of Griggs, Baldwin & Baldwin, counsel for Tyson & Co.:

> Tyson & Co. announce that the matter at issue between them and their banking connections have been adjusted, so as to permit of the immediate delivery without further payment of opera tickets to which their patrons are entitled for the performances during the current week. The tickets will be deliverable at the offices of Tyson & Co., 1,122 Broadway, during the afternoon and during the evening in the lobby of the Metropolitan Opera House, where a temporary office will be established by courtesy of the management.

Mr. Lyeth and Mr. Marshall then made this joint announcement:

> Counsel for the Metropolitan Trust Company and for Tyson & Co. are hopeful for an agreeable settlement, which will result in the release of the tickets for the whole season of opera before the end of the present week.

and remember that when you take Sanatogen you have the written assurance of over 18,000 physicians that it does create strength and vitality

Sir Gilbert Parker, M.P., the eminent novelist-statesman, writes from London:

"Sanatogen is to my mind a true food-tonic, feeding the nerves, increasing the energy, and giving fresh vigor to the overworked body and mind."

Colonel Henry Watterson, the famous editor, writes:

"I feel I owe it to truth to state that I have made a thorough trial of Sanatogen, and that I have found it most efficacious and beneficent. I do not think I could have recovered my vitality, as I have done, without this Sanatogen operating equally upon the digestive organs and nerve centers."

Arnold Bennett, the famous novelist, writes:

And Sanatogen will do the same for your Health

IT is literally true that Sanatogen has brought grateful help and a new enjoyment of life to multitudes. Wherever people suffer from nervous starvation, feeling "run-down" and exhausted, Sanatogen daily imparts new strength and vitality.

And Sanatogen will go on doing this so long as the strife and stress of modern life sap our innermost strength. You, who are nervous may well remember that thousands praise Sanatogen for its grateful tonic and sustaining effects, restoring nerve health and vigor—the will and the power to do. You who need building up should remember that as an upbuilder of blood and tissue, Sanatogen is used daily in the best hospitals and sanitariums. And you who may be skeptical, remember that over 18,000 practising physicians, over their own signatures, have recited the remarkable results which they have seen Sanatogen produce in their patients.

Therefore, may we not say: Sanatogen will do the same for your health.

VAST THRONG HAILS OPENING OF OPERA

MANY BRAVOS FOR CARUSO

Mmes. Destinn and Matzenauer, and Amato Win Plaudits—Orchestra and Chorus Magnificent.

The Metropolitan Opera House opened its season last night, and Broadway between Thirty-ninth and Fortieth Streets, which has been for months the one conspicuous dark spot in the Great White Way, woke to bright lights and bustle, taking the place of honor on Broadway it will now occupy through the Winter and until the Spring weather turns New Yorkers away from such things as thrive under electric lights.

The opera was "La Gioconda," and the singers were Emmy Destinn, Caruso, Amato, Mmes. Matzenauer and Duchene, and Messrs. De Segurola, Begue, Reschiglian, and Audisio, while Arturo Toscanini occupied the conductor's desk. Massenet's "Manon," was originally to have been given, with Geraldine Farrar opening the season for the first time since her initial appearance here, but an attack of the grip and her doctor's orders, forbade, so the opera was changed at the last moment.

It is hard to imagine how many more people could have been crowded into the large auditorium than were there last night. The line of intending patrons began to form outside the main doors of the house at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. The first comers were three young girls, who had a libretto with them, and it was not their fault if they did not memorize it completely before the doors of the house opened to them. They were soon joined by others, and by the time that most folks consider their dinner hour had arrived, there were several hundred in line. These were the advance guard of standees who did not hold the magical slips of paper that entitled them to sit in the sections of the house where diamonds sparkled.

Ticket Situation Cleared.

The subscribers arrived earlier than is their wont, and old habitues of the place said it was because they were fearful that the mix-up in the ticket situation would make a delay, which they were anxious to get clear of. As a matter of fact, the ticket situation had been cleared up hours before, and, for all last night's audience as a whole was affected by it, might never have occurred.

By 8 o'clock the line which forms on the curbs of the side streets to watch "society" arriving, was mustered in its full strength. But the line had to wait, for it was not until well after 8:30 that the boxholders began to arrive in any number. The limousines rolled up and deposited their owners at the entrances, while the line craned its neck. There was a brief glimpse of elegance, and then all was over for those who watched from without.

Inside the densely crowded auditorium things moved as smoothly as if it were the middle of the season instead of the opening. The audience was seated early, as has been mentioned, and gave itself up to the task of looking itself over. When the lights were lowered for the overture not a single occupant could be seen in any of the parterre boxes.

Toscanini was seen in the orchestra pit making his way to the conductor's desk through the semi-darkness, and this was the signal for the first applause of the evening. The overture was played, and then the audience settled itself back to wait for the appearance of its favorite singers. Amato was applauded as the receding chorus left him discovered with his back to the audience, and as Destinn made her way through the crowd later clad in her red robe, and when Caruso made his entrance, the music was again momentarily interrupted for applause.

After the first act, when people got through wondering why Caruso had not taken any curtain calls with the others, the bustle which accompanies the turning on of the lights was on in full first-night fervor. Batteries of opera glasses were leveled at the boxes. A great many seemed to be interested in the presence of Vincent Astor and his fiancée, but it was soon seen that the Astor box was not occupied by the family.

Great Applause for Caruso.

At the conclusion of Caruso's "Cielo e mare" aria in the second act the house warmed up to a great burst of applause, in which was mingled a storm of "bravos" and "bis-es"—and they did not all come from the galleries by any means. At the end of the act there were many curtain calls, enlivened by some of familiar Caruso by-play with flowers. Enough of them were passed over the footlights for the various singers to start even an ambitious florist in business.

There was more enthusiasm after the third act, which ended at about 11 o'clock. It was about 11:30 when the opera came to an end, and then came for the first time this season the familiar opera carriage dash, and Broadway and the side streets was once more the scene of the modern prototype of the Ben Hur chariot race, carried on simultaneously in all directions of the compass amid a tooting of horns and squealing of brakes that deprived the humble foot passenger of what little wits the shouting of the taxi drivers had left him.

At last only the traffic policeman remained of the bewildering throng. He gave a last look around, wiped his brow, and made off. The first night of the opera season was over.

"GIOCONDA," WITH GREAT CAST

Conductor, Arturo Toscanini.

Whatever storms may have raged about subscription seats, whatever electric tension may have charged the air, whatever fires there may have been smoldering, more or less fiercely, in orchestra, dress circle, and upper balconies, the opening of the Metropolitan Opera House last evening was brilliant. There was a great throng of what Carlyle, on a similar occasion, called "high-dizened and most expensive persons" and others; there was an urbane air of expectancy to hear a cast of great and favorite singers. Metropolitan audiences, however, are cool and do not forget their coolness, even on an opening night. There was applause, cordial and polite, but there was little more demonstrative welcome for any of the principal singers when they first appeared upon the stage than if they had appeared there the night before. There was applause after the fall of the curtain—such applause as may be heard almost any night of the season.

The management does well to put its best foot foremost on an opening night and to do its utmost to intensify what spirit of the occasion there may be. But the opera that stands upon the bill of an opening night is not of the greatest importance. Illness had prevented Miss Geraldine Farrar from appearing last night, and so instead of Massenet's "Manon," in which she was to sing with Mr. Caruso, there was Ponchielli's "La Gioconda," in which Mme. Destinn sang with Mr. Caruso; also Mme. Matzenauer and Mr. Amato, and Mr. Toscanini conducted.

"La Gioconda" has been useful before in opening the season, and when it has not opened the season Ponchielli's gloomy tragedy has often of late years made an early appearance in the repertory. Opportunity for admired singers to sing effective airs, tuneful, and dazzling, though rather commonplace ballet music, and the unusual chances for the display of elaborate dancing and of a sumptuous stage setting, all argue in favor of "La Gioconda." It has, indeed, theatrical effectiveness and musical traits superficially striking. But Ponchielli's music, important in one sense as it may have been at one of the starting points of a school, is essentially vulgar. It has also lost much of its freshness and the sense of newness, and many of its effects once accounted "modern" are to-day anything but modern. Much of it seems even cheap and tawdry, and it is in the nature of things that it must seem cheaper and tawdrier as time goes on and the opera is kept upon the stage not so much for its own sake as for the advantages it offers for opening nights and the appearance of favorite singers.

It is doubtless much more to the point to note that Mr. Caruso seemed to be in admirable voice, and sang not only with all needed power but also with taste and style; with more of these qualities, indeed, than he has sometimes displayed in the past. His "Cielo e Mar," always one of his best achievements, was given with beautiful art. And yet some of his admirers may have been made a little uneasy by a certain unsteadiness that appeared now and again in some of his sustained tones—an unsteadiness that has been foreign to Mr. Caruso's singing.

Mme. Destinn likewise was in admirable voice; she has rarely sung with greater beauty—how exquisite is that searching and sustained high tone with which she makes her exit at the close of the first act! So, too, were Mr. Amato and Mme. Matzenauer in admirable voice, though Mr. Amato's had not all the smoothness that it should have had at the beginning of the season. His delivery of the dramatic and declamatory solos that are so significant in his part, was masterly. Mme. Duchêne as La Cieca, sang very well, and made a step upward in the appreciation of the Metropolitan's audience. It was indeed a performance of superb verve and sonority, at the same time of finesse, of remarkable finish and power.

Mr. Toscanini has rarely been more in the vein than he was last evening, and his authority and contagious enthusiasm completely dominated the performance. Chorus and orchestra were magnificent in what they accomplished. Such a performance indeed gave no hint of a season's beginning; everything about it was as finished as could be offered in midseason. So far as the quality of the performance was concerned, there could not have been a more favorable augury for the impending months of opera.

SOCIETY IN BRILLIANT ARRAY.

Count and Countess Szechenyi Attend with Mrs. Vanderbilt.

Society was in gala garb last night at the opening of the opera season, although it was 9 o'clock before the boxes began to fill. When the second intermission came around the parterre was a blaze of color and scintillating lights from jewels, but it was a soft color, in which palest pastel shades intermingled with the warmth of cerise, rich brocades, and silvered chiffons. The Oriental note in color, so much in evidence last year, was almost wholly absent this season.

Around 9 o'clock the carriage foyers presented a kaleidoscopic scene, for it is here that the society matron and debutante is seen in their gorgeous wraps, which they remove before entering the boxes. There were many trailing, superb brocaded cloaks, ermine, seal, and cerise velvets seen, and the flash of diamond diadems attracted such a crowd of the curious on the Thirty-ninth Street side that the police had to drive them away.

Just as Mrs. E. T. Stotesbury arrived, wearing her famous jewels, a flashlight was exploded outside the carriage foyer, and several matrons in the line of limousines were considerably frightened until they learned the cause.

Many Distinguished Visitors.

The first intermission gave those who were already seated in the parterre a chance to look around, but it was after 10 o'clock before the changes that have been effected in the occupancy of the "golden horseshoe" could be fully noted. Besides the noted absence of those who are in mourning, there were many distinguished visitors, including the Russian Ambassador and Mme. Bakhmeteff, who were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Henry Warren; the German Ambassador and the Countess von Bernstorff, who were with Mr. and Mrs. James Speyer, and the Spanish Ambassador and Mme. Riano, who were the guests of Mr. and Mrs Cornelius N. Bliss, Jr.

Vincent Astor did not occupy Box 7, as society expected, for everybody was hoping to see Mr. Astor and his fiancée, Miss Helen Dinsmore Huntington, make their first appearance together at the opera. The J. Pierpont Morgans, Mrs. W. Bayard Cutting, Mr. and Mrs. Edmund L. Baylies, George F. Baker and family, Mrs. John Astor, Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, and many other prominent New Yorkers were kept away owing to mourning. The Count and Countess Laszlo Széchényi were there, the guests of the Countess's mother, Mrs. Vanderbilt. Clarence Mackay, who recently returned from abroad, was seen greeting his friends. The newcomer in the parterre was William Ross Proctor, who now owns Box 26.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren, who had the Russian Ambassador and Mme. Bakhmeteff, also had Mr. and Mrs. George L. Rives as their guests. Mr. and Mrs. Speyer, besides the German Ambassador and the Countess von Bernstorff, had J. Coleman Drayton and Frank A. Munsey as their guests. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Iselin were also the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius N. Bliss, who entertained the Spanish Ambassador and Mme. Riano.

Mr. and Mrs. Elbridge T. Gerry and the Misses Mabel and Angelica Gerry had as guests in Box 23 Mr. Leslie and Mr. Grenville of England, and James Barney and Horace Stebbins.

Mr. and Mrs. Kountze's Guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Luther Kountze had as their guests in Box 32 Mr. and Mrs. De Lancey Kountze and Mr. and Mrs. J. Gordon Douglas.

Mr. and Mrs. Pembroke Jones had as guests in Box 11 Mr. and Mrs. John Russell Pope, Pembroke Jones, Jr., Clinton Gray, and Harry Eldridge.

Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Davison, in Box 21, had with them Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Stotesbury and Mr. and Mrs. William D. Guthrie.

Mr. and Mrs. Ormond G. Smith, in Box 22, had Mrs. Moses Taylor Campbell and Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Livingston with them.

Mr. and Mrs. William Ross Proctor, Box 26, had Miss Vouletti Proctor, Mr. and Mrs. Oren Root, and Mr. Stevens as guests.

Mr. and Mrs. John Shillito Rogers, in Box 2, had with them Mr. and Mrs. Earle Stevens, Mr. and Mrs. Dulany Howland, and Frederic Juilliard.

Mr. and Mrs. Edmund L. Baylies did not occupy their box, No. 35, in the grand tier, as they are in mourning for Mr. Baylies's mother. Mrs. Alexander Van Rensselaer and Miss Van Rensselaer occupied it.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Frick, in Box 19, had as their guests Mr. and Mrs. Childs Frick, Mrs. Lawrence Dilworth, and John P. Grier.

George G. Haven had in Box 25 Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Borland, Miss Alice Haven, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Pell, and William Barclay Parsons, Jr.

George Goulds in Clews Box.

Henry Clews, in Box 12, had Mr. and Mrs. George J. Gould, Mr. and Mrs. James Blanchard Clews, Mrs. Herbert Parsons, Sir Courtney Ileson, M. P., and the Hon. Charles R. Crane. Mrs. Clews has not yet returned from Europe.

Mrs. James B. Haggin, in Box 24, had Mr. and Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Perry, and Elliott Gregory.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Bruce occupied Box 13, and had as their guests Mr. and Mrs. J. Sargeant Cram.

Mrs. John T. Pratt, in Box 10, had Dr. and Mrs. Nathaniel B. Potter and Louis C. Clark, Jr., as her guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Cabot Ward, Miss Olivia Cutting, and Miss Hester Chanler occupied Box 28 in the absence of Mrs. W. Bayard Cutting, who is in mourning.

Mrs. E. H. Gary, in Box 15, had as her guests Mr. and Mrs. John D. Little of Atlanta, Ga., and Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Nixon.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney and Mr. and Mrs. Payne Whitney were in Box 30, which they share alternately during the season.

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Guinness occupied Box 7, in the absence of Vincent Astor, and had with her Mrs. Linda Lee Thomas.

Mr. and Mrs. August Belmont, in Box 4, had as their guests Mr. and Mrs. F. Gray Griswold.

Mrs. George B. Hurd, in grand tier Box 45, had with her Mr. and Mrs. Fairfax Landstreet and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur B. Proal.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Dennis had in Mr. Gatti-Casazza's grand tier Box 48 as their guests Mrs. Gonong and Miss Lillian Lee of Toronto, Alexander Webb, Archie Reid, and Mr. Dennis.

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Herbert, in the stall boxes, had Mr. and Mrs. John G. Quimby as their guests.

The Gowns and Jewels.

Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney was in a Venetian red velvet brocaded in dull gold, the top of silver lace. She wore a crescent shaped diadem set almost solidly with diamonds, and a diamond necklace with huge stones.

Mrs. Payne Whitney, in the same box, wore a deep petunia velvet brocade, with different colors showing through, and diamonds.

Mrs. Vanderbilt was in a brocaded mauve chiffon with scarf draperies of pearl-studded white lace falling from the neck at the back and sleeves of the same. She wore a diamond crown with huge stones tipping its points, a diamond necklace and corsage ornaments.

The Countess Széchényi was in pale blue pannier velvet with a square fichu of silvered white lace and the sleeves coming to the elbow were extensions of the fichu and stood out a bit from the arms. She wore a diamond comb and diamond necklace.

Mrs. T. J. Oakley Rhinelander, in the same box, wore a silver gray satin gown with a V-shaped neck, outlined with silver sequins, gray tulle sleeves, and draperies lightly embroidered, and diamond ornaments.

Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish wore a gown of blue satin brocaded in gold and having lace embroidered in gold thread on the corsage and forming the sleeves. She wore diamond bands in her hair and a diamond necklace.

Mrs. Orme Wilson, Jr., who was with Mrs. Orme Wilson, Sr., was in a brilliant coral pink velvet, opening in coat effect over white lace, with a white lace top. Two lines of sable fur outlined the round neck and ran down each side of the front, giving the coat effect.

Mrs. Elbridge T. Gerry was in pale lilac brocaded in silver, with a plastron of brocade coming up the centre of the corsage, which was of silver and crystal embroidered lace. She wore a diamond tiara and necklace.

Miss Mabel Gerry was in a beaded white net over satin, with pearl and diamond ornaments. Miss Angelica Gerry was in pale lilac velvet, with folds of silver lace around the corsage top and silver drapery about the knees.

Mrs. J. Gordon Douglas was in a dull coral-colored chiffon and satin, the neck cut square, draped sleeves, and a large black velvet rose at the left of the corsage. The chiffon skirt drapery was also held with a huge black velvet rosette.

Mme. Bakhmeteff in Blue and Gold.

Mme. Bakhmeteff wore a blue gown brocaded in gold, with white lace corsage having a large pink rose as a decoration. She wore a diamond and aquamarine tiara and plastron of the same jewels.

Mrs. George Henry Warren was in silver gray satin with silver sequined tulle of the same hue and elbow sleeves. She wore ropes of diamonds and diamonds in her hair.

Mrs. Oren Root was in black velvet with the low, square cut corsage of black tulle and elbow sleeves of the tulle. She wore no ornaments.

Mrs. Arthur Iselin was in a light cherry satin velvet with cherry net, with a low round neck and band sleeves. A jeweled band held her flat coiffure, and from the left side sprung a cherry bird of paradise aigrette.

Mrs. Luther Kountze was in sable-trimmed black satin and net, with elbow sleeves and the neck rather high; diamond ornaments in her hair and on her corsage.

Mrs. James Speyer wore pale mauve pink velvet, veiled with silver embroidered net. The sleeves were deep wings of silver lace. She wore diamond hair and corsage ornaments.

Countess Bernstorff was in black velvet with a tunic of black net. The bodice was white chiffon and net, with touches of black, and the white net sling sleeves were edged with black. She wore a diamond corsage plaque.

Mme. Riano wore a lilac chiffon over white, with white net corsage having a cluster of purple flowers. Her coiffure was bound flat with jeweled bands.

Mrs. George Gould was in a white satin brocade, a pannier gown, with the square-cut corsage of jeweled lace with a touch of gold across the back. Her diamond and emerald jewels were oddly arranged in pendant effect at one side of the front of the bodice.

Mrs. Warren in White Satin Gown.

Mrs. Whitney Warren wore a white satin gown, the scarf sash and high pannier drapery brocaded in large red roses. White aigrette in hair and pearls.

Mrs. Ogden L. Mills was in a golden brown satin brocaded in dull gold. The top of point lace. Diamond ornaments.

Miss Anna Sands was in pale blue velvet with the corsage of crystal lace Pearls and diamonds.

Mrs. John Russell Pope was in a grayish-green panne velvet robe, draped in emerald green chiffon, and wore a green tulle scarf and a huge emerald pendant.

Mrs. James Blanchard Clews was in a gown of old pink satin with a tunic of chiffon of the same shade and a girdle of old blue.

Mrs. John Shillito Rogers, in Box 2, wore a silver brocaded gown and her jewels were ropes of pearls and diamonds.

Mrs. William North Duane was gowned in yellow and silver brocade, and Mrs. Charles Sherrill was in a gown of silver brocade and diamonds.

Mrs. Ormond G. Smith in Box 22 wore an aqua marine moire and a tiara and brocade and wore diamonds.

Mrs. John W. Herbert was in silver and blue brocade trimmed with ermine. Mrs. Quimby wore white satin with a crystal tunic.

Mrs. Richard Gambrill was in cream white satin and lace, with touches of black jet and black jet tassels.

Mrs. J. Stewart Barney was in cloth of silver with a long scarf of scarlet chiffon over her shoulders.

Century Opera Has Big Crowd.

The Century Opera House was watched with some interest last night, because of the question that has been raised of late as to whether its patronage would be affected by the opening of the Metropolitan Opera House. The house of opera in English was practically sold out last night, but eighteen orchestra chairs and two boxes failing to be disposed of, in spite of the fact that the Metropolitan was crowded to the limit.

PAVLOWA AT MANHATTAN.

Russian Dancer is Applauded by Large Audience.

Anna Pavlowa and her company of Russian dancers began an engagement at the Manhattan Opera House last night which is to include matinée and evening performances to-day and to-morrow. In spite of the opening of the Metropolitan Opera House there was a large audience at the Manhattan, all the seats visible from the parquet being occupied, and many standing in the rear. There was a good deal of enthusiasm displayed by the audience.

The programme included the "Oriental Fantasy," Weber's "Invitation to the Dance," and a series of divertissements for the last part. The audience demanded repetitions of Pavlowa's dancing of the "Pizzicato" of Drigo, "L'Automne Bacchanale," and the "Gavotte Pavlowa," which was called "Gavotte Directoire" when she danced it at her recent engagement at the Metropolitan.

MRS. HAVERTY'S VICTORY.

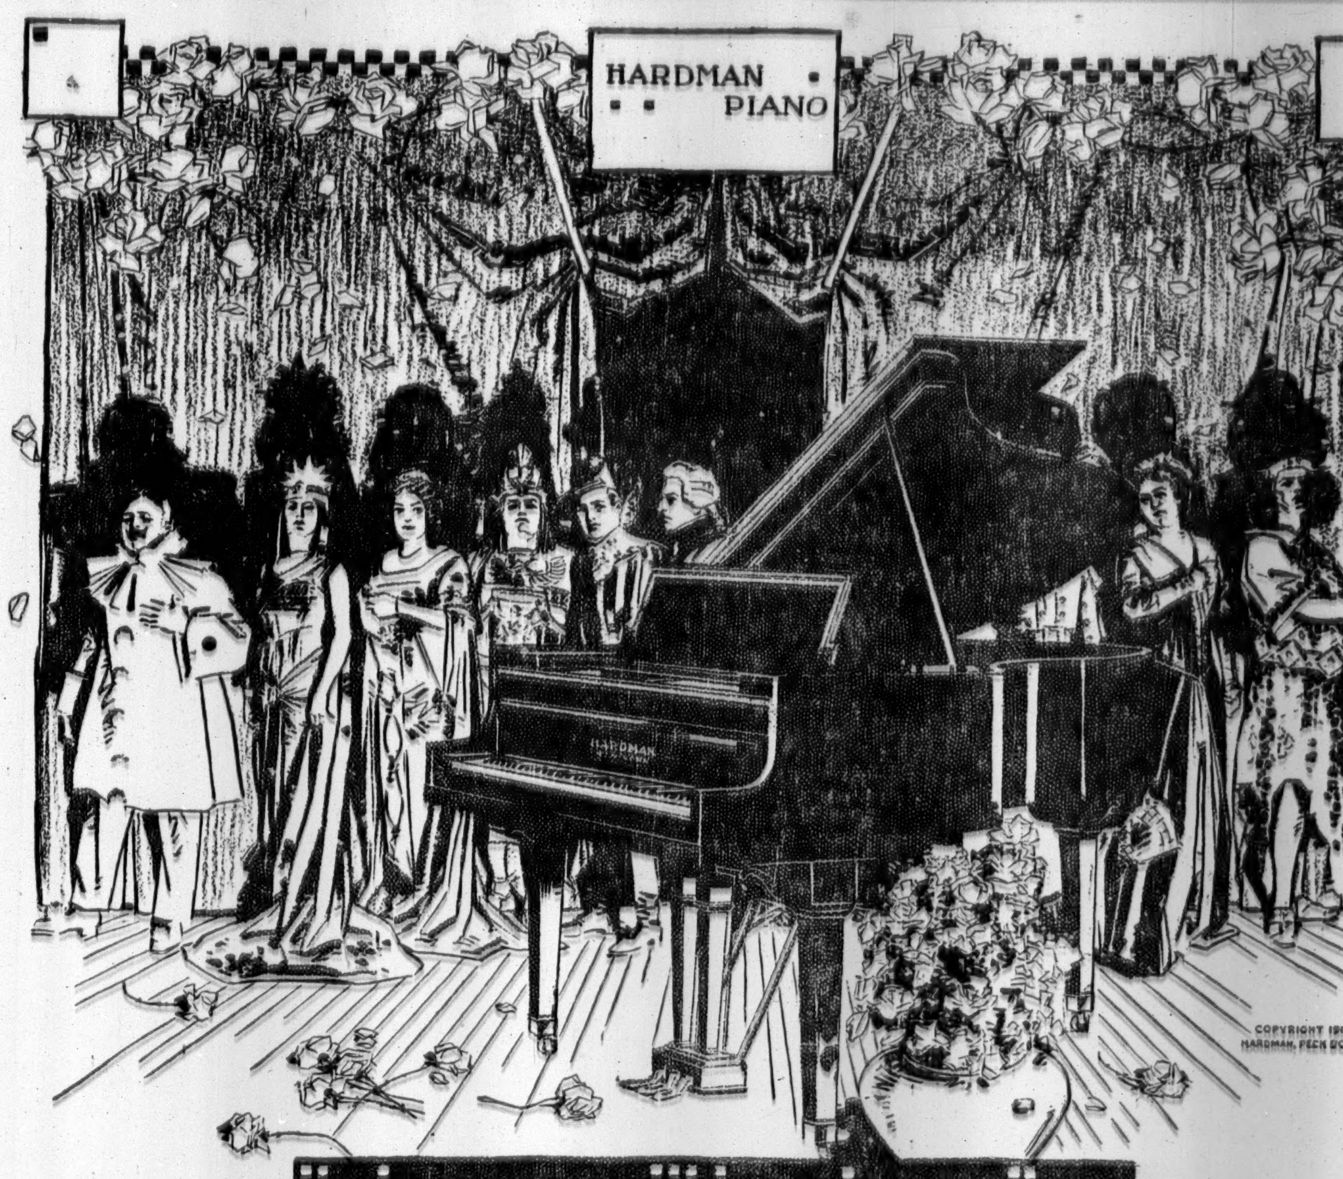
Her Taxicabs Running Securely with Non-Union Chauffeurs.

Mrs. Catherine Haverty, head of Haverty's Taxicabs, Incorporated, directed seventeen of her taxicabs at the stand in front of the Hotel Belmont yesterday without interference from any of the striking chauffeurs who walked to and fro in front of the hotel. Mrs. Haverty superintended the taxicab service from the sidewalk part of the time. Occasionally she went into the hotel and watched from her window. Four of the Haverty taxicabs were running at the Murray Hill stand.

Regarding the strike as practically broken, Mrs. Haverty has decided to have no further dealing with the Chauffeurs' Union, and to run her business hereafter on the "open shop" plan.

"The special guards have been taken off some of the taxicabs," said John W. Browne, counsel for Mrs. Haverty, yesterday. "The men who struck were the aggressors from first to last and had no grievance. In the agreement which expired there was a provision that they should do nothing at the end of the agreement until a conference had been held, but they went on strike before the conference which had been arranged had taken place."

A man who was arrested on the charge of puncturing a tire of one of the Haverty machines, has been held in $1,000 bail for the Grand Jury by Magistrate House in the Yorkville Court.



All of the Great Metropolitan Opera Stars Tune Their Voices to the HARDMAN Piano

THOSE priceless voices whose melody and art are worshipped by music lovers the world over, rehearse day by day to the correct and artistic tones of the HARDMAN Piano.

Think of a billion people on this earth and only twenty or thirty supreme voices among them all!

And ALL of those sublime voices—possessed by the greatest artists of melody that the world has ever produced—are heard daily in harmony with the HARDMAN Piano.

The instrument in which true artistic TONE is supreme.

A piano is the purchase of a lifetime—if well selected.

The purchaser should have the best advice possible when making this artistic investment.

Who would you rather ask than all others possessing real musical knowledge? Whose opinion would be most convincing to you?

The word of the possessor of the most marvelous voice that ever dwelt in man's bosom, to bless with supreme melody the world in which we live—

Would you ask the opinion of Signor Enrico Caruso?

His answer, over his own signature, is:

"The HARDMAN is my favorite piano."

Would you like to hear Mme. Destinn's opinion? She says:

"The HARDMAN is a perfect instrument."

Do you value the estimate of Riccardo Martin? He writes:

"The HARDMAN is the best piano made."

Look for the word of your own particular favorite, on the side of this page; for ALL have paid their tribute of praise to the instrument that commands universal love and respect of all true musical artists.

These world-famous opera stars use only the beautiful HARDMAN—the Piano of the Opera. Would they use any but the BEST?

Just as there are but few voices that ever reach the supreme heights of artistic achievement, so there are but few pianos that attain superlative excellence, and can be acclaimed worthy to accompany the silver voices of grand opera art.

The Hardman is such a Piano.

It has stood the test of generations, and has won the enthusiastic favor of the world's greatest musicians.

To possess a HARDMAN confers distinction upon the owner—the hall-mark of the connoisseur who knows real merit, and has the discrimination to own nothing but the truly artistic.

The superlative HARDMAN graces and honors the homes of wealth and refinement all over the world.

But it is also within the convenient reach of artistic people of most moderate means, and most acceptable terms of payment will be arranged at the purchaser's desire.

For those who do not play by hand, there is provided the same matchless piano, in player form—

The HARDMAN AUTOTONE

Thus the Piano of the Opera may be possessed by every music-loving family, to dispense its marvelous melody, at the touch of every hand, whether musically educated, or with no musical technique at all.

We invite you to come and see and hear these superb instruments, in their Fifth Avenue home.

TANGO IS TABOOED BY KAISER'S ORDER

Naval and Military Officers Dancing It in Uniform Will Be Dismissed.

ONE-STEP ALSO VETOED

Emperor's Dislike of New Dances So Great That Members of Royal Opera Ballet Have Been Warned.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

BERLIN, Nov. 17.—The tango, the two-step, and the one-step have been officially forbidden by the Kaiser to all officers of the German Army and Navy when in uniform. The decree, sent to all commanding officers, reads, according to The Berliner Salon:

"Officers of the army and navy are hereby requested to dance neither the tango nor the one-step nor two-step in uniform, and to avoid families where these are danced."

The Berliner Salon asserts that dismissal will be the punishment for infringement of this order.

The Berliner Tageblatt learns that the Kaiser's objection to the tango and one-step is so pronounced that members of the ballet of the Royal Opera House have been warned against taking part in charity entertainments at which tango competitions are included. Mme. Arnstadt, a well-known member of the company, was recently informed by Count von Hülsen-Haeseler, the Director of the Imperial Opera Houses, that although he could not refuse permission to her to attend a tango tournament, he warned her against taking part in it.

The Kaiser's edict, if correctly reported, will upset the arrangements of the majority of Berlin hostesses, who have accepted the tango. Almost the first society function of the season was a tango tea given in the official apartments of Countess Schwerin in the Prussian Houses of Parliament. It was attended by the American Ambassador and many young military officers.

Some young women who were to attend a course of tango lessons with German Lieutenants were informed to-day that the officers had canceled the arrangement, as they had received an intimation that their efforts to learn the tango would be regarded with disfavor.

KAISER SNUBS FERDINAND.

Bulgarian Ruler, at Coburg, Told Visit to Berlin Would Be Useless.

BERLIN, Nov. 17.—King Ferdinand of Bulgaria, who arrived to-day in Coburg, is passing through such a crisis, according to well informed circles in Coburg and Berlin, that his abdication of the throne in favor of his son is possible, and even probable, in spite of a denial published by the Bulgarian Legation here.

Austrian statesmen are understood to be doing their utmost to discourage the King's surrender of the throne, because they consider the young Crown Prince Boris likely to be influenced by the element among the Bulgarian Ministers that is friendly to Russia.

King Ferdinand at the same time is receiving little encouragement in Germany, which is indisposed to assist a monarch whose star is believed to be setting. Emperor William and the German Government have expressed themselves openly as friendly to Greece, and it is understood that King Ferdinand, who desired to come to Berlin, received an intimation that such a visit would be useless.

King Ferdinand, who is residing incognito at the palace in Coburg, spent this morning in prayer at the graves of his ancestors. He is the youngest son of the late Prince Augustus of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, and was elected Prince of Bulgaria in 1887. He declared himself King in 1908, and was recognized as such by the powers.

PANAMA CHINESE STRIKE.

Shut Up Their Shops as a Protest Against the New Laws.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PANAMA, Nov. 17.—A crisis was reached to-day in the controversy between the Government of Panama and the Chinese in the country over the new anti-Chinese laws which have gone into effect. All Chinese stores, laundries and manufacturing plants in the country closed their doors to-day as a protest against the law which would force many of the members of that race to leave the Republic, and which puts a heavy tax on those who remain.

As the Chinese have a monopoly in most of the lines in which they operate, the situation is serious, and the general public to-day was shut off from buying many necessary supplies. The Chinese seem to hold the whip hand, and strong pressure is being brought to bear upon the Government to make the law less drastic, but so far no concessions have been made.

NOT TO EXCLUDE ULSTER

But Government Will Submit Certain Proposals to Opposition.

LONDON, Tuesday, Nov. 18.—The statement in The Times yesterday to the effect that the Government had decided to arrange a compromise with the Opposition leaders in Parliament on the Home Rule bill has provoked much discussion. Apparently, however, it goes beyond the actual facts.

According to an inspired statement issued last night, "the Government will submit certain proposals to the Opposition leaders for the special treatment of Ulster, subject to the acceptance of Home Rule by all parties. The scheme will only be submitted as a basis for discussion, and it is clearly impossible to insert a clause excluding Ulster."

This is held to mean something in the nature of home rule within home rule, as recently suggested in a speech by Sir Edward Grey, the Foreign Secretary.

$3,485 FOR TEAKETTLE.

Big Prices for Old Silver at the Fitzhenry Sale in London.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—The sale of the collection of English and foreign silver, formed by the late J. H. Fitzhenry, the greater part of which has been on loan for several years at the Victoria and Albert Museum, was begun at Christie's to-day.

A Commonwealth porringer, maker's mark "W. G." with pellet above and below, dated 1657, was knocked down for $1,110. A smaller porringer, made by Christopher Shaw in 1650, brought $1,450.

English Court Decides in Favor of Creditors of Aberheim & Co.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—The ownership of a parcel of sixty valuable diamonds alleged to have been taken illegally by a bank from the Yokohama branch of the firm of Richard Aberheim & Co. of New York, London, and Japan at the time of the failure of the London firm was decided in the High Court to-day.

The trustee in bankruptcy of the Aberheims asked the court to order the Chartered Bank of India, Australia, and China to return the diamond for the benefit of the Aberheims' estate. It was urged for the plaintiffs that the gems were not those hypothecated with the bank as security for a bill of $9,070.

On the witness stand Richard Aberheim, who came from New York to fight the case, testified that the bill, which did not fall due till the April following the failure of the London firm in February, would have been met in due course.

The court held that Richard Aberheim had not acted in any way dishonestly, and ordered the bank to return the jewels. The Aberheims' creditors will therefore be the richer by the distribution of the proceeds realized from the sale of the diamonds.

250 SAILORS SEE THE POPE.

Seamen and Petty Officers from Our Battleships Blessed by Him.

ROME, Nov. 17.—Pope Pius to-day received in his private apartments 250 seamen and petty officers, including thirty Filipinos, belonging to the vessels of the United States fleet now in European waters. The sailors were conducted into the presence of his Holiness by Chaplain Evan W. Scott of the battleship Kansas.

The Pope imparted the Apostolic Benediction to the bluejackets. He urged them to be good Christians and good citizens, as well as good sailors and brave men.

Rear Admiral Badger, Commander in Chief of the Atlantic Fleet, gave a dinner on board the flagship Wyoming this evening in honor of Ambassador and Mrs. Page. The guests included Admiral Cattolica, ex-Minister of Marine, who had officially welcomed the American battleships to Italian waters, and ten other Italian naval officers, as well as the officers of a Dutch warship that is now here.

All the warships in the harbor were beautifully illuminated to-night.

M. KOKOVTZOFF IN BERLIN.

Russian Premier Confers with Chancellor—Kaiser to Entertain Him.

BERLIN, Nov. 17.—The Russian Premier and Minister of Finance, M. Kokovtzoff, arrived here to-day and conferred for some time with the Imperial Chancellor, Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg.

The object of the visit is generally assumed to be the discussion of the financial side of railroad construction and development in Turkey and also Russian finances, although the general European political situation will probably be touched upon.

As the Russian statesman is accompanied by M. Davidoff, his principal subordinate in the Ministry of Finance, color is given to this belief.

The Russian Premier will be the guest of Emperor William at luncheon on Wednesday, and will dine with the Imperial Chancellor to-morrow. He will depart on Thursday.

TO TRY ZELAYA FIRST.

If Convicted, Nicaragua Will Demand His Extradition.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—The disclosure that the United States Government might be asked to extradite Gen. J. Santos Zelaya, ex-President of Nicaragua, to Managua, the capital of that country, in connection with charges now pending there accusing him of robbery and assassination was read with keen interest in Washington to-day. At the State Department it was learned that Gen. Zelaya's extradition had not yet been asked.

The Legislative Assembly of Nicaragua has instituted charges of robbery and assassination against Gen. Zelaya before the Supreme Court at Managua. The understanding is that if that tribunal should find him guilty of the charges the Nicaraguan Government will formally ask for the extradition of Gen. Zelaya not for trial, but for sentence. The Nicaraguan code permits the trial and conviction of an accused person in his absence, though the absent principal is allowed to be represented at the trial by counsel.

Gen. Julian Irias, Minister General of Nicaragua during the latter months of the stormy régime of ex-President Zelaya, who has been living in exile in Costa Rica since the flight of himself and Gen. Zelaya from Managua, arrived in Washington to-day and is registered at a leading hotel. Gen. Irias declined to be interviewed on the ground that he could not speak English. The statement was made, however, that he came to Washington on a "peaceful visit."

'SWEATERS' VICTIMS AT DUCHESS'S HOME

COUPLE GET $2 A WEEK

Movement to Abolish Sweating Inaugurated—Duchess Quiets Suffragette Interrupters.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—Led by the Duchess of Marlborough, a great call for the abolition of "sweating" among women workers went forth to-day from a conference of influential persons at her London home, Sunderland House, Mayfair. Representatives of society, of the Church, and of every political party united with those of the workers themselves in demanding the abolition of sweating.

C. F. G. Masterman, Financial Secretary to the Treasury, urged that this was no party question. Lord Lytton condemned this "dry rot sapping the strength of the nation." J. R. Clynes, a Labor Member of Parliament, pleaded for "a place in life for the worst-paid worker." The Bishop of Oxford was another speaker.

No speech brought home the conditions of sweating more forcibly than that of the Duchess herself. She said that when it was remembered that 2,000,000 women and girls were employed in factories and workshops in Great Britain, and at least 100,000 were working for wages in their own homes, the question of sweating became, surely, a matter of great importance. She went on:

"The number of women workers is increasing. A single woman needs, in order to obtain the minimum requirements to live, 15s. ($3.75) a week, yet in organized industries there are probably over 300,000 women who earn less than 12s.

"In London many women earn only 6s. a week, and we are bound to admit that there are thousands of women and girls suffering actual hunger, want, and destitution, although they work every available hour the full year out."

Afterward some workingwomen told their stories to justify the call. A matchbox worker held up two boxes, for making which she gets 6 cents a gross. A shirtmaker produced a man's colored shirt. "I get 9d. (18 cents) a dozen," she said. "Last week I and my husband worked from 5:30 A. M. till 11 P. M. and made 10s. 6d. Out of that we had to pay 1s. 6d. for the machine and 1s. 10d. for cotton."

A young widow who works in a sugar factory said her wages were $2. She gave her mother $1.25 and had 75 cents to live on. Out of this she bought her meals and clothes for her two children. Her dinner cost her 2 cents a day—"a ha'porth of fish and a ha'porth of potatoes."

When Mr. Masterman rose to speak, it was discovered that suffragettes were present. Several women at the back of the room greeted him with cries of "Votes for women!" As the interruptions continued, the Duchess of Marlborough appealed to the suffragette element to desist, with the desired effect.

SUFFRAGISTS RIOT.

Stewards Kicked and Bruised Trying to Eject Them.

SHEFFIELD, Nov. 17.—A wild suffragette disturbance occurred here to-night.

Philip Snowden, Socialist Member of Parliament for Blackburn, attempted to address a "no conscription" meeting arranged by the Labor Party, but was howled down by suffragettes. Stewards promptly took a hand, and in the resulting scrimmage were attacked not only by the women, but also by male sympathizers. Some of the stewards were kicked and badly bruised.

In spite of the fact that many of the disturbers were ejected, the uproar persisted to such an extent that at the end of half an hour the meeting was abandoned.

A large section of the audience displayed anger at the Chairman for calling the police to his aid, declaring that the working classes had "had enough of the police."

LONDON, Nov. 17.—Sylvia Pankhurst, addressing an open air meeting at Bow to-night, announced that the next suffragist campaign would be a "no rent strike," among the workingwomen of London.

Two bands described by Arthur Hopkins, the Police Magistrate, as "raving women," appeared in police courts of London to-day in connection with Saturday's outrage at the Old Bailey, where hammers were thrown at Mr. Justice Lawrence, and with yesterday's disorders near Premier Asquith's official residence in Downing Street.

The four women charged with assaulting the Judge were sentenced to terms varying from one month's to two months' hard labor.

In the second case Miss Boyleau and Mrs. Kerr were bound over to keep the peace, while the proceedings against the Misses Murray and Boyle were adjourned.

It was noticeable that the police took the precaution of depriving all women of their baskets or parcels as they entered the Police Courts, evidently fearing that they might carry concealed weapons or missiles.

Notes of Foreign Affairs.

BOGOTA, Nov. 17.—Thaddeus A. Thompson, United States Minister to Colombia, left here for Barranquilla yesterday to sail for New York, owing to the illness of his wife. Leland Harrison, Secretary of Legation, will act as Chargé d'Affaires during his absence, and will continue the negotiations between the United States and the Colombian Government in connection with the claims of Colombia arising out of the partition of Panama.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—The announcement is made by Ambassador Page that a presentation is to be made to Harry Brittain by the members of the Pilgrims' Club of England and America, to mark their appreciation of his ten years' work for the club. Mr. Brittain, with Lord Roberts and two or three Americans, founded the English section of the club in 1902, and has been an energetic Honorary Secretary ever since. The presentation is to take the form of a portrait of Mrs. Brittain, which is being painted by J. J. Shannon, R. A.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—The Right Hon. James Bryce, ex-Ambassador to the United States, was received in audience to-night by the King. The relinquishment by Mr. Bryce of his post at Washington was discussed.

$9,200 GOLD ROBBERY.

Ingots Vanish from a Consignment from Constantinople to Paris.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

PARIS, Nov. 17.—Officials from the Ottoman Bank were engaged last night at the Gare du Nord in unloading a bullion wagon which had just arrived from Constantinople, when they discovered that one of the cases containing specie had been tampered with in the course of the journey and £1,840 ($9,200) had been abstracted.

One of the cases appeared somewhat light and was found to be under the contract weight. The leaden seal on the lid had been damaged and the iron band which fastened the box had been severed with a file, lifted, and subsequently hammered down again. The case should have contained five sealed bags of Turkish sovereigns. Only three were found.

The other cases, numbering sixty, containing gold coins to the value of £184,000, were weighed. They had not been touched. Either the thieves worked in a hurry or else they feared to burden themselves with too heavy a weight of gold.

The gold was in a sealed wagon. Its arrival had been privately signaled to railway officials along the route, and from the moment of its entry into French territory it had been specially watched by officials of the Nord Railway Company.

Several robberies of gold similar to that reported from Paris yesterday have been under investigation by the police of the European capitals for some time. In November, 1912, $50,000 in English sovereigns was extracted from a large consignment sent from London to Alexandria, Egypt, and last January $25,000 was stolen while on the way from Hamburg to Rio Janeiro.

The police believe the robberies have been committed by the same band of thieves, and that it has ramifications all over Europe.

WOMAN DETERIORATING?

Views of Dr. Claye Shaw—He Thinks the Present Trend Disastrous.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—Dr. Thomas Claye Shaw, who is a Fellow of the Royal College of Physicians, an authority on medico-psychology, ex-President of the Society for the Study of Inebriety, and ex-Medical Officer of Banstead Asylum, read a paper to-day on "The Nervous Factor in Woman's Health" at the Institute of Hygiene before an audience mainly composed of women. He had a good many things to say about modern women which are likely to be resented. He said in part:

"The type of woman has changed. She has become harder in feature, more wrinkled. Her complexion has been affected by outdoor life. She is more independent, has less reverence for authority, fewer home interests, is less of a stay-at-home.

"If, as seems to be the case, women's desire is to be what men are, to do what men do, then I think I can see some reason for the present style in women's dress, in its display of the figure. This is a mistake, as doing away with the mystery in woman.

"Sport is a bad marriage market. An athletic girl becomes too like a man, exposes her character to him too much. Besides, as a rule, she neglects her home. You can tell an athletic girl at home. Bicycles are thrown together and never cleaned. Hockey sticks are heaped together. Ill-shaped, muddy shoes are without lasts. Meals are at casual intervals. Then there is an acquired bucolic look and athletic carelessness of deportment.

"Proper sex development is necessary for full mental development, and if it is interrupted or tampered with this leads to most disastrous bodily and mental results. Many women restrict their families, trying to combine the care of a home with the freedom and irresponsibility of a single life. This is a fatal mistake. If they marry they ought to accept the full responsibilities. They must not try to balk nature.

"Are women more emotional than men? I think they are, because for ages they have been used to deference and adulation. This has made them live in rivalry, to be fond of notoriety and advertisement, jealous of interference. As emotion is necessary for the spread of their new ideas and propaganda, their emotional trend in this direction is bound to increase, but it is not in a healthy way, because it tends to make them harder, more wrinkled, more like men, whereas they have more need of tender sentiment."

FOXHALL KEENE FINED.

Called Himself Maximilian Agassiz When Arrested for Auto Speeding.

Magistrate Murphy looked hard yesterday in the West Side Court at the defendant, charged with speeding in an automobile, who came forward when the name of Maximilian Agassiz was called.

"How do you do, Mr. Keene?" asked the Magistrate.

The accused man laughed and admitted that he was Foxhall Keene. When he was arrested last Saturday afternoon for speeding on upper Broadway on his way to the Yale-Princeton football game he had given the name of Maximilian Agassiz, for the reason, he told the Magistrate, that he did not want to be annoyed by seeing his real name in the newspapers.

Policeman Gulderman, who made the arrest, testified that Mr. Keene had at first refused to give any name, but upon being threatened with arrest he had abused the policeman roundly and finally described himself as Maximilian Agassiz, 55 years old, of 27 West Forty-third Street.

Magistrate Murphy imposed a fine of $25. Mr. Keene was before arrested on the night of July 19 of this year on a charge of disorderly conduct because he refused to give his name to a policeman who sought to serve him with a summons because his automobile, which stood just outside of Hotel Astor, bore a 1912 tag. On that occasion he was discharged by the Magistrate with a reprimand.

Fines or Imprisons Auto Speeders.

Seven men were fined or committed to jail for two days in the West Side Court yesterday for speeding automobiles. They were John Archbabbeau, 29 years old, 158 Brookfield Avenue, sent to jail for two days; Russel Durand, 24 years old, Fifty-first Street and Broadway, fined $25; George Farrell, 27 years old, 156 West 100th Street, committed to jail for two days in default of $25 fine; William Riley, 19 Greenwich Street, 21 years old, jail for two days; John J. London, 36 years old, of the Brooklyn Navy Yard, paid $25 fine; William J. Allen of Peekskill, N. Y., 32 years old, paid $25 fine, and Vincent J. Falasco, 150 West Tenth Street, 25 years old, fined $25.

HINDUS IN NATAL BURN PLANTATIONS

PROBLEM IS EMPIRE-WIDE

Indians Are Being Kept Out All Over the British Dominions—Imperial Government Worried.

DURBAN, Nov. 17.—The East Indians in Natal to-day declared a general strike, which was accompanied by rioting and the burning of sugar plantations.

The police force is insufficient to deal with the rioters, and white women and children are in a state of terror.

Troops have been ordered to some of the disaffected districts.

In this city practically the whole East Indian community struck work and became so aggressive that a demand was made for the proclamation of martial law.

In the country districts hundreds of acres of sugar cane were burned.

The revolt of the East Indians was brought about by the exclusion laws in force against them here. Their resentment had hitherto been passive, but it developed to-day into violent action.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—The question of the British East Indians has again reached an acute stage, nearly every dominion and colony to which these British subjects emigrate either barring them or having legislation which very effectually prevents them from entering or remaining.

The Imperial Government, having more to say in the government of the crown colonies than it has in that of the dominions, has taken steps to make the life of the East Indians in those colonies more bearable. A commission composed of a member of the British Indian Government and an East Indian of industrial experience is visiting the crown colonies to which indentured immigration is still permitted for a thorough investigation into the conditions of employment of East Indians and generally into their position and treatment.

In the dominions the Imperial Government, which would have Indians treated as are other British subjects, is faced with exactly the same difficulty as the Federal Government at Washington has to deal with in connection with California's anti-Japanese legislation. The people of the dominions insist upon having "white men's countries."

In Australia East Indians, like all other Asiatics, are being barred out under the operation of a new law which empowers the State Governments to make the entry of Orientals conditional on their ability to pass an examination in a European language, which they may not understand, and in New Zealand legislation of a similar nature is being prepared. ## DOUBLE TRAGEDY IN UNION SQUARE

REFUSED TO RETURN TO HIM

Both Had Sought Death—Marital Discord Grew Out of Grief Over Child's Death.

The workers who as they hurried home through Union Square just before 6 o'clock last night slowed their steps to watch the outcome of a stormy dispute between a man and woman sitting on one of the park benches had started on again at the sight of the woman departing in anger when they were halted abruptly by the action of the man. As the woman left him, he drew from the pocket of his overcoat a short-handled axe, and springing after her, struck her twice upon the head. She dropped in a heap in the path, and two women who had witnessed the attack ran out into Broadway, screaming the news that a woman was being murdered in the square.

The hurrying crowds of the rush hour swarmed into the Park, led by Traffic Patrolman Clark. When he reached the point in the path he found the man lying with his throat cut by a long-bladed knife still clutched in his hand. The axe lay beside him on the path. Both man and woman were unconscious as they were carried through the crowd to an ambulance. He died on his way to Bellevue Hospital, and the surgeons there said there was no hope for her recovery. One blow had fractured her skull.

From papers in his pocket and in her purse, the police of the East Twenty-second Street station surmised that the [illegible]

[illegible] man and woman was furnished by a clipping in her purse. It was a short newspaper story of his attempt at suicide on election day, and of his assertion then that he no longer cared to live since his wife had left him. This, with the discharge slip from Lebanon Hospital found in his pocket, satisfied the police, and the record was complete when her brother-in-law made the identifications.

LIMITS DIAMOND OUTPUT.

BERLIN, Nov. 17.—The German Government to-day placed a limit on the quantity of diamonds from German Africa put on the market, the large production of which had threatened to bring about a break in prices.

German producers had hitherto favored holding the Antwerp syndicate to its contract to take over the entire output from German Africa, but the Government evidently converted them to the policy adopted by the British diamond trust of withholding stones from the market in bad times and thus maintaining prices in the hope that conditions will improve.

ADMINISTRATORS NAMED

Three Sets of Litigants Have Started Proceedings to Break the Will of General's Widow.

Surrogate Southard of Putnam County appointed yesterday John R. Yale of Brewster and William H. Berrigan of Cold Spring as temporary administrators of the estate of Mrs. Julia Lorillard Buttefield, widow of Gen. Daniel Buterfield, which is being contested by three sets of litigants. Eight wills are said to be in existence which were made before the one offered for probate on Aug. 14. This will disposed of an estate said to be worth nearly $2,000,000, most of which Mrs. Butterfield left to the Army and Navy Branch of the Y. M. C. A.

A preliminary estimate puts the value of the estate at $1,998,528, which is more than $1,000,000 less than an estimate made by others. The estate is chiefly in personalty, and $1,811,128 is the sum given under that classification. In the preliminary estimate all securities are valued at par.

The total par value of bonds of different railroad, gas, and municipal corporations is $303,000. Among the bonds are $30,000 Missouri, Kansas & Texas Railway; $25,000 Central Railway of Georgia, $50,000 Union Pacific Railroad, $20,000 Fort Worth & Denver, $69,000, Guatemala Central Railroad, $25,000 United States Mortgage and Trust Company. The total par value of stocks is $382,100, including $50,000 United States Rubber Company first preferred, $40,000 Minnesota Railway Construction Company, $20,000 International Paper Company preferred, $87,100 Western Union Telegraph Company, and $91,400 P. Lorillard Tobacco Company preferred. The stocks include twenty-two shares of the Coney Island Jockey Club and two shares of the Rider and Driver Publishing Company.

The largest item of personalty is a block of bonds secured on first mortgage on real estate in Manhattan, estimated to be worth $871,000. Mrs. Butterfield's jewelry is estimated at $100,000. Household furniture, paintings, pictures, bric-a-brac, books, silver, and wearing apparel in New York and Cragside, the Butterfield estate at Cold Spring, are valued at $74,750.

The amount of money on deposit in four banks is not estimated. The banks are the Cold Spring Bank, the Hamilton Trust Company, the Lincoln National Bank, and the Equitable Trust Company. Certified checks for interest on mortgages represent $16,872. Miscellaneous checks are for $4,580. Coupons due since Mrs. Butterfield's death call for $5,423. A one-twenty-fourth interest in the personal estate of F. J. James is valued at $5,000. Other items are: Automobiles and carriages, $5,000; mortgage on property in Sioux City, Iowa, $3,900.

The interest in the real property of the estate of Frederick P. James is estimated at $100,000. This includes a one-twenty-fourth interest in these properties: Nos. 39 West Twelfth Street, 41-43 West Twelfth Street, 44 West Twelfth Street, 47 West Twelfth Street, 48 West Twelfth Street, 106 West Thirtieth Street, 128 West Thirtieth Street, 130 West Thirtieth Street, and 132 West Thirtieth Street. A one-sixth interest in Cragside, Cold Spring, and a one-forty-eighth interest in the Deerfield property in New Hampshire are the other items in the James estate. Mrs. Butterfield also left real estate in Michigan, the value of which is unestimated. A Columbia College leasehold on 616 Fifth Avenue, expiring twenty-one years after July 1, 1908, is valued at $80,000. The other realty is two vacant lots in Sioux City, Iowa, $2,400, and property in Utica, N. Y., $5,000.

The litigants, who are trying to have the will set aside, are: Daniel Butterfield, 2d, son of Theodore Butterfield, who alleges undue influence; four grandnieces, who were cut off by one of the clauses of the will, and several cousins, who allege that they were not cited in the probate proceedings. The four grandnieces allege that the will was obtained by fraud and undue influence on the part of Albert F. Hagar, Mrs. Butterfield's lawyer, who received $100,000 and other property under the will.

GRAB EIGHT MALE FLIRTS.

Ogling Men Fall Victims to Waldo's Second Raid.

Eight male Subway flirts were arrested last night in the second raid made within a week by Commissioner Waldo's special squad. The first raid upon these pests occurred several days ago, when Lieut. Costigan and a half dozen detectives visited the women's waiting room in the department store of Gimbel Brothers in Sixth Avenue and took eleven prisoners.

Following this raid letters began to reach Police Headquarters from indignant parents, who complained that girls of tender years were subjected to insult and annoyance at the hands of oglers who infested the neighborhood of the Subway station at 181st Street and St. Nicholas Avenue.

Lieut. Sherb and Detectives Judge, McCann, Graham, and Waterhouse, known as Central Office Squad No. 3, last night were ordered to investigate conditions. They grabbed eight youths, who, they said, had accosted young girls. The arrest of the nine men caused a commotion in the crowd, and it was only with considerable difficulty that they finally were corralled and brought to the St. Nicholas Avenue Police Station.

They gave their names as Ejnar Szendhen, 17 years old, of 1,253 Ogden Avenue; John J. Frawley, 19 years old, of 1,678 Nelson Avenue; Andrew Tierney, 20 years old, of 109 East 176th Street; Jacob Stafford, 22, of 2,263 Walton Avenue; George Benjamin, 26, of 1,303 Sedgwick Avenue; Harry Jacobs, 20, of 977 Summit Avenue; Andrew Wood, 20, of 101 Summit Avenue, and Robert MacWhinney, 20, of 1,372 Ogden Avenue.

GLASS NAMED AS SENATOR.

Alabama Governor Appoints Editor in Johnston's Place.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Nov. 17.—Frank P. Glass, editor of The Birmingham News and President of The Montgomery Advertiser, was to-day appointed United States Senator by Gov. O'Neal to succeed the late Senator Joseph F. Johnston. The term expires March 3, 1915.

Mr. Glass is a native of Alabama, and an alumnus of Princeton. He founded The Blade, in Bibb County, in 1880, a year later bought The Selma Daily Times, and in 1886 acquired a half interest in The Montgomery Advertiser. He became editor of The Birmingham News two years ago. Mr. Glass is 55 years old.

MRS. BELMONT HEADS SHOP UNION FIGHT

With Mrs. Pankhurst, Mrs. Boissevain, and Others, She Descends on Department Store.

POLICE CURB ON CRUSADE

Stop Circulation of Printed Demand for Shorter Hours—Mrs. Belmont Did Not Speak.

Led by Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, and Mrs. Inez Milholland Boissevain, a dozen suffragists and members of women's labor unions who are trying to organize the employes of the department stores into a union concentrated their efforts last night on the clerks and employes of Gimbel Brothers department store in Sixth Avenue. At 5:30 o'clock in the evening Mrs. Belmont, Mrs. Pankhurst, and Mrs. Boissevain arrived at the side entrance to the store in Mrs. Belmont's automobile. They made a tour of the store before the employes stopped work.

Two other automobiles brought the union organizers to the side entrance to the building. The women stayed in these autos until the employes began to depart at 6 o'clock. Then they started to make speeches urging the girls and men to join the Retail Clerks' Union. Mrs. Pankhurst departed after the trip through the store, and Mrs. Belmont did not take part in the speaking. She stayed within the inclosed part of her auto while speakers took turns in addressing the crowd from the front seat.

The speakers had arranged to address the workers as they came through the doors reserved for employes and the autos had been drawn up close to these doors. Not many employes came out that way, though. The police ordered the chauffeurs of the automobiles to move away from the vicinity of the store, and they stopped further to the west, between Sixth and Seventh Avenues. The police did not interfere further except to keep one side of the street clear for traffic.

When Mrs. Belmont learned that the employes were being sent out by the main entrances, half a block away, she directed some of her followers to go to Sixth Avenue and direct the attention of the shop workers to the meeting arranged for them in the side streets. Some 300 employes, men and women, gathered finally around the automobiles and listened to the speeches.

Mrs. Herbert Warbasse, one of the suffragist leaders, was warned by the police to stop distributing a printed letter issued by the Retail Clerks' Union, of 140 East Nineteenth Street, in which the store employes were urged to organize, and demand fifty-four hours as a working week with double pay for Sundays and evenings, a vacation of one week with full pay, and equal pay for men and women for equal work.

Miss Helen Schloss, one of the leaders in the shirt waist strike, the first speaker from Mrs. Belmont's auto, said: "You girls deserve more wages. You are required to dress well, to look attractive, and must smile even though your face may be cracked with weariness."

Miss Dorothy Miller, an organizer of the dry goods clerks, told the employes that the stores would not dare to discharge them for joining the organization, because the public was in sympathy with the employes. Mrs. Boissevain, another speaker from Mrs. Belmont's auto, asserted that all the comforts provided by the store managers, including rest rooms, roof gardens, and other things for the benefit of the employes did not compensate for the lack of pay.

"To get better pay you must help yourselves," she said. "Any one who will not do that, deserves to be underpaid. You have nothing to fear. Lose your position, if necessary; the public is with you."

ASSAILS UNITED CIGARS.

Representative Reilly Asks for Congressional Inquiry.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—The initiative in the direction of endeavoring to bring about a Congressional investigation of the United Cigar Stores Company was taken in the House of Representatives to-day by Representative Thomas L. Reilly of Connecticut, who introduced a resolution calling for such an investigation by the House Judiciary Committee. This is the committee which will have charge of the Administration measure, or measures, dealing with the trust situation during the coming regular session of Congress. Judge Henry D. Clayton of Alabama is its Chairman.

"There are many independent tobacco dealers in my district," said Mr. Reilly to-night. "I have been appealed to by them so strongly that I consider it my duty to do everything I can to have such an investigation and learn the facts. The final decree of the Circuit Court in the American Tobacco Company case did not take cognizance of the United Cigar Stores Company, and many are of the opinion that it is still connected with the American Tobacco Company or with men dominant in that concern.

"It appears to be the opinion of many of the independent cigar dealers that the United Cigar Stores Company is a combination in restraint of trade. The purpose of the investigation for which I asked to-day is to bring out the facts as to its status, control, ownership, and operations throughout the country."

Mr. Reilly thinks the action of the court, in its dissolution of the American Tobacco Company, in leaving the United Cigar Stores Company practically as it was before, was contrary to the original views of Attorney General Wickersham, who, in his argument before Judge Lacombe, cited the United Cigar Stores Company as being one of the worst features of the old tobacco trust combination.

S. M. Stroock, counsel for the United Cigar Stores Company, said last night: "The American Tobacco Company formerly owned two-thirds of the stock of the United Cigar Stores Company. This it was required by the dissolution decree to distribute to its own common stockholders, which it did on Dec. 1, 1911. Within six months thereafter George J. Whelan and his associates, who were the owners of the United Cigar Stores Company before it was affiliated with the American Tobacco Company, had acquired a very large majority of the stock formerly held by the American Tobacco Company, including every share held by any of the twenty-five individual defendants in the dissolution suit against the American Tobacco Company.

"These facts are well known and were officially announced by the United Cigar Stores Company a year and a half ago."

MORGAN SAVED NEW HAVEN.

Got Loan for Railroad from France in 1907 Panic, Says Robbins.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Nov. 17.—That the late J. Pierpont Morgan saved the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad from disaster during the panic of 1907 by securing from France on short notice a loan of millions was told to-day for the first time by E. D. Robbins, General Counsel for the railroad and one of its Directors, at the hearing before Judge Sheldon in the Supreme Court on the appeal of ex-Gov. Morgan G. Bulkeley of Connecticut and other stockholders from a decree of the Public Service Commission authorizing the issue of $67,552,000 in convertible bonds. Had that loan been delayed a week, said Mr. Robbins, the consequences would have been disastrous. It was in view of such situations, he said, that New York and Massachusetts had clothed their Public Service Boards with highly discretionary powers to meet an emergency.

Nathan Matthews, who appeared for the appellants, said that the policy of the Commonwealth was at stake in the matter of issuing stock and bonds, and that the unlawful exercise of authority by the commission would tend to do away with the limitations that have existed since 1893 to prevent stock inflation and to regulate indebtedness.

Charles F. Choate, counsel for the railroad company, and Attorney General Swift, for the Public Service Commission, both argued that the action of the commission was legal under the legislative acts of 1913.

If the papers can be printed in time the case will be heard by the full court this week.

An increase in transportation charges which would give the Boston & Maine an additional annual income of $3,000,000, the sum which officials of the railroad declare is needed, is "absolutely impracticable," according to Interstate Commerce Commissioner Prouty. In a statement published here to-day Mr. Prouty is quoted as saying:

"The rate schedules of the Boston & Maine at present are filled up with all sorts of inconsistencies. What ought to be done, and what they propose to do, is to apply a uniform mileage scale. It will work advances in some sections and reductions in others. The road asks to increase its class rate revenue by $800,000 to $900,000, but it should not be allowed an advance of much if anything over 50 per cent. in such rates. The commission will permit the Boston & Maine to put into effect soon whatever class rate increases are approved."

Attacked from Behind, Say Witnesses—General Absent from Trial.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HAVANA, Nov. 17.—Four new witnesses, who say they saw Gen. Felix Diaz attacked, testified and were examined by the Judge to-day. Their evidence favored Diaz, saying that the attack was from behind. One witness said he saw perfectly when [illegible] fired at Diaz and shot Pedro Guerrero instead.

Diaz was supposed to report to the Judge to-day, as the indictment requires. Instead he sent a medical certificate of his inability to attend owing to his wounds.

The private prosecutor again insisted to the Judge that the indictment charged "attempted assassination," and that Diaz be held without bail, or, if bail be admitted, that it should be $10,000.

OUR NEW POLICY IN PHILIPPINES IS ATTACKED

have been given the opportunity to repurchase their holdings, and most have elected to do so, buying on the installment plan. Being Asiatics, and inclined to put things off, they need constant but kindly encouragement and stimulation, or they are liable to fall sadly behind in their payments and get into serious trouble. The management of the Friar lands alone is a very large business enterprise, demanding not only technical knowledge and wide experience, but also first-class ability, and on it depends the power of the Insular Government to meet the bonds issued for the purchase of the lands in the first instance upon their maturity without levying a special tax. Furthermore, the provinces and municipalities in which these lands are located have repeatedly sought to get control of them for their own special benefit, and the Philippine Assembly has twice passed acts to turn over to them the administration of these lands. The Commission killed these acts and thus saved the taking of the whole country for the benefit of a few provinces and municipalities.

"As in the case of the public lands, wealthy Filipinos have repeatedly tried to prevent poor people from purchasing holdings in the Friar lands which they themselves [illegible] and they [illegible] tenants [illegible] landowners [illegible] appointment [illegible] Tinio [illegible] knew nothing about the work. [illegible] I must say that he is utterly incompetent to perform the work. John R. Wilson, Assistant Director of Lands, [illegible] resigned [illegible] probable that any competent [illegible] this position to tell Tinio what to do.

"Cause for Grave Alarm."

"There is cause for grave alarm that the placing of the balance of power of the Commission in the hands of Filipinos will work irreparable damage to the stupendous work the Land Bureau [illegible] Collector of Customs [illegible] capable official [illegible] that office. His removal was strictly political.

"On the heels of these events [illegible] Bureau of Printing [illegible] Director John Leech [illegible] training of Filipinos [illegible] industrial school [illegible] young men [illegible] Americans [illegible] ultimately 95 per cent. of the work of the bureau.

"Immediately after Mr. Harrison's arrival there were rumors of sweeping salary reductions. Some American employes [illegible] promotion [illegible] alarmed, and [illegible] consulting Mr. Leech sent [illegible] protesting against any such reduction. Without consulting Mr. Leech they also sent a telegram to the President of the International Typographical Union of the United States, protesting against the reduction and requesting him to secure a hearing.

Demanded Leech's Resignation.

"Both messages, in my opinion, were perfectly proper. Copies were promptly sent to the Governor General, who seemed to be incensed because they had been sent. He closely examined Leech as to his knowledge of the matter, and asked him the names of the employes who had conferred with him. He demanded the Director's immediate resignation when he refused to give them. The resignation of the Assistant Director of the bureau was demanded at the same time.

"Another matter is the Department of Public Health. A skillful surgeon has been asked whether he would accept the Directorship of Public Health. He is thoroughly competent to operate upon individuals, but without [illegible] to safeguard the public health in a country of 8,000,000 people. Realizing this, he has declined to consider the proposition, but the fact of the offer conclusively demonstrated the gross incompetence and complete failure to grasp the situation on the part of whomsoever authorized it.

"No living sanitarian has a better record for ability and efficiency in coping with great sanitary problems than Victor G. Heiser of the United States Public Health Service, who has been Director of Public Health in the Philippines for nine years. He has practically eliminated smallpox, bubonic plague and cholera and has excluded beri-beri from public institutions, has built the best general hospital in the tropics, and has isolated the lepers while arousing only a minimum of opposition by so doing. He has reduced the death rate of American officers and employes to less than five in 1,000, and among Filipino officers and employes to four in 1,000; he has made Manila more healthful than many of the larger cities of America and has materially reduced the death rate throughout the islands. His place simply cannot be filled for years. Should Dr. Heiser be transferred to make way for a politician, he doubtless would heave a sigh of relief, but it would be a sad day for the Philippines.

Harrison as a Partisan.

"Prior to my departure I was informed that the Governor General had cabled to Washington for advice as to how far he could go with removals without violating the letter of the Philippine Civil Service act. It is a fair conclusion from his first week's work that he intends to go the limit.

"While en route to the islands he gave out an interview in which he stated in effect that for years he had seen Democrats badly treated, [illegible] now being able to accord similar treatment to Republicans. Hitherto the Filipino service has been kept remarkably free of this sort of thing, [illegible] concern to all advocates of capable and honest administration.

"By far the most important and dangerous thing which has been done is the appointment of a majority of Filipinos to the Philippine Commission. [illegible] passed [illegible] by the Assembly [illegible] effectiveness of the Government.

Filipinos to Control Moros.

"There is another reason why this change should not have taken place. When the existing Legislature was established its jurisdiction was limited by Congress to the regularly organized provinces inhabited chiefly by one or another of the Christianized peoples, known collectively as the Filipinos, while exclusive legislative jurisdiction over the territory inhabited by the Moros and other non-Christian tribes remained vested in the Commission. It was unquestionably the purpose of Congress thus to continue American control of legislation for the non-Christians, of whom there are slightly more than 1,000,000.

"Without violating the letter of the law the spirit has been trampled upon. Every true friend of civilization familiar with the facts must view with gravest concern the placing of legislative control over the wild tribes in the hands of their bitter enemies, who have viewed with disgust the efforts heretofore made to improve the condition of these backward peoples. The Filipinos have never ceased to warn them that American occupancy was only temporary, and to threaten them with dire punishment for the present subordination when they, the Filipinos, gained the whip hand.

"Governor General Harrison assured me in the strongest terms that the results of the work for the wild tribes would be kept intact, that the former policy of kindliness and justice in dealing with them would be continued, and that the highly competent and experienced men through whose personal influence hordes of savages and head-hunters have been turned from head-hunting into paths of peace and progress would be retained in their positions and supported in their work as heretofore. His intentions may be the best, but how can he make his promise good? The Legislature has only to decrease the salaries of these men below the living point in order to paralyze the work, and he is utterly powerless to prevent this or any other vicious measure adopted to gain the same end.

Valuable as a Demonstration.

"The present situation has one satisfactory aspect: It will result in speedily demonstrating to the American people certain important facts relative to the present fitness of the Filipinos to maintain an independent government, one for which the United States could afford to be responsible. Unfortunately, while the demonstration will be highly instructive, it is the poor [illegible] in the fields who will pay the freight. If the consequences could be made to fall on the Filipino politician only, one might welcome the demonstration.

"The proposal to merge the Bureau of Forestry with the Bureau of Lands cannot be successfully carried out without permission of Congress. By the act of Congress of July 2, 1902, certain duties were prescribed for the Director of Forestry. The Philippine forests constitute a national resource of enormous potential wealth. In the past they have been ruthlessly sacrificed. Under the present policy of conservation an immense lumbering industry can be built up, while at the same time the forests can be increased and protected. The Filipino has always been ready to kill the goose that lays the golden egg. He has ever favored this policy, established in his own interest.

"The Assembly has long sought to minimize the importance of this bureau and to cripple its work. The average Filipino likes to fell valuable timber and burn it where it lies in order to save himself the trouble of fighting weeds, making new clearings at frequent intervals, [illegible]

SHOOT YOUNG LEADER AS HE ENTERS CLUB

Two Men Whom He Does Not Know Wound Delane Mortally and Then Escape.

FRIEND'S CHASE IN VAIN

Companion of Italian Politician Pursues His Assailants Until They Enter a Tenement in the Bronx.

John J. Delane, a leader among the younger Italians in the Bronx, was just entering the hallway of the clubrooms of the John J. Delane Association, at 655 Morris Avenue, the Bronx, when two young men stepped up behind him on the sidewalk outside and from a distance of only three feet discharged revolvers at him. Two bullets entered his lungs and he dropped to the floor as his companion, John Duza, jumped by him to the street.

Duza was just in time to see the two gunmen retreating east in 153d Street, and he ran after them, but half way up the block they disappeared into the dark hall of an Italian tenement, and Duza was afraid to follow them. He returned to Morris Avenue and there met Patrolman Curtin and two detectives of the Morrisania Police Station who had run up the avenue at the sound of the shots.

They carried the wounded Delane to the corner drug store, where he retained consciousness long enough to tell Detective Schueing that he had no idea why the men had tried to shot him, and that he did not know who they were. Duza had seen them both, and he asserted that both were strangers in that part of town. Duza, who lives at 248 East 150th Street, was born and brought up in the district, and the police were sure he would recognize any of the young Italians of the Bronx's Little Italy.

The men who shot Delane, he said, seemed to be not more than 23 years old, and they wore ragged caps pulled down over their foreheads. For men of this description the police hunted through all the tenements in the block, but they knew their task was idle. The two gunmen had succeeded in getting away.

An ambulance carried Delane to Fordham Hospital, where, soon before midnight, he lapsed into unconsciousness and the surgeons said his recovery was improbable.

Delane, who is 28 years old, as a very young man built up a real estate business, and the Delane home is an attractive house at 696 Cauldwell Avenue, the Bronx. His father and mother brought him here from Italy when he was a baby, and he grew to manhood in the Bronx.

His leadership among the naturalized Italians and among the American born of Italian parents was recognized long ago. As the standard bearer of the social club that bears his name, at election time he could be counted upon to swing a large vote to the candidate of his choice. His club stands in the Thirty-third Assembly District, and in the last election he supported Tammany.

GEORGE TIGAR SENTENCED.

New York Autoist Gets Two Months in Boston, but Appeals.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Nov 17.—George Tigar of New York, who was arrested a few days ago by Policeman John H. Boyle on a warrant charging the operation of an automobile on Nov. 23, 1912, in a manner such as to endanger public safety, was sentenced to two months' imprisonment by Judge Parmenter in the Municipal Court to-day.

According to the policeman's testimony, Tigar, whose machine ran down Patrick Gallagher at Cambridge and Charles Streets, gave Boyle a fictitious name and address at the time of the accident. Tigar was also fined $10 on a charge of having no license. He appealed both cases.

KILLS WIFE AND HIMSELF.

Retired Diamond Setter Despondent, Fearing Blindness.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ROCHELLE, Nov. 17.—George D. Newman, a retired diamond setter, formerly employed by Tiffany, shot his wife four times this morning as she was preparing his breakfast and then blew out his own brains. He died instantly. His wife died three hours later in the New Rochelle Hospital.

The Newman home was at 220 North Avenue. For more than a year Mr. Newman's eyesight had been failing, and he brooded over it. He said he feared he would go blind and be a burden to his wife.

His son William, a teller in a bank here, was dressing in his room when he heard the shots. He rushed into the kitchen just in time to see his father turn the revolver on himself.

The marriage of William Newman and Miss Esther Leary, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius J. Leary of New Rochelle, which took place in New York City on July 4 last, was announced last night. Mrs. H. L. Warner of Houston, Texas, who is the only other child of the deal couple, was injured in the tunnel wreck about eleven years ago when a Harlem Division train crashed into the New York, New Haven & Hartford train in the Fourth Avenue tunnel in New York, and she received a large sum from the railroads.

MEN'S WINTER OVERCOATS
With Distinction as Their Keynote

Keeping out the cold is merely one of several duties of an Overcoat, although an important one. Equally essential is its obligation to give to the man who wears it the air of being well-dressed.

Taking the first requirement for granted, it is in the second that GIMBEL Overcoats for Men excel.

Even the most modestly-priced Overcoat in the fine collection—at $17.50—gives an excellent account of itself in looks and service.

And at the top of the range are the magnificent and genuine Sedan Montagnac Overcoats—the Beau Brummels of their tribe—at $65 and $100.

But the great middle ground of Overcoats at $30, $32, $35, $37.50 and $40 is where we shall interest most men who wish dignified materials, distinguished styles and perfect tailoring. (Certain new double-breasted styles of about knee length, some with braided edges, are attracting great attention.)

The Young Men's Overcoats At $22 to $35

for youths of 16 to 20 years, have the same merit, but with an intentionally youthful cut to their lines. Here, again, the Double-breasted Overcoats are great favorites.

RECORD DAY RAISES FUND TO $2,556,426

Subscriptions of $172,291 Received Yesterday by Workers for Christian Associations.

WOMEN WERE IN THE LEAD

President Wilson Telegraphs Good Wishes to Miss Dodge—Markham Reads a Poem.

Breaking the record for any one day of the campaign, the workers of the Young Men's and Young Women's Christian Associations, who are trying to raise $4,000,000 by Nov. 24 for a building fund, announced new contributions amounting to $172,291 at the luncheon held at noon yesterday at the headquarters, 25 Broad Street. This makes the grand total to date $2,556,426.

Much enthusiasm was manifested at yesterday's meeting of the workers, which was in honor of Miss Grace H. Dodge, President of the National Board of the Y. W. C. A., and in memory of Mrs. Janet McCook Whitman. President Woodrow Wilson sent a message of congratulation to Miss Dodge, and, it being Woman's Day at the headquarters, Edwin Markham, author of "The Man with the Hoe," read a poem written for the occasion.

Among those present at the luncheon were President and Mrs. Burton of Smith College, Mrs. Cleveland H. Dodge, Mrs. Charles R. Crane, Miss Ilbert, daughter of Sir Courteney Ilbert, Clerk of the English House of Commons; Mrs. George Lorillard Rollins, Mrs. George P. Duncan, Mrs. Dave Hennen Morris, Mrs. Whitman Hoff, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Markham, and Miss Florence Sullivan. George W. Perkins, Chairman of the Executive Committee, presided.

It was considered appropriate that the Women's Committee should make the best record for the day, with contributions amounting to $57,848. The Executive Committee came second, with contributions of $52,050, and the Clark Committee was a strong third, with $40,224. Of the individual teams, that of Mrs. Francis Louis Slade made the best showing, with contributions of $27,190, while John Sloane's team made the best record for the men, with $10,260. It was announced that the $50,000 given anonymously last Friday came from Mr. and Mrs. George W. Perkins, and was made in honor of Miss Dodge.

There wtre a number of surprises in the list of contributions of $1,000 or more, which was announced as follows:

|---|---|
| New York Telephone Company | $25,000 |
| Mr. and Mrs. C. H. McCormick, Jr. | 25,000 |
| Mrs. Cyrus McCormick, Sr. | 25,000 |
| James Stokes | 15,000 |
| Mr. and Mrs. Morris K. Jesup | 10,000 |

| Malcolm D. Whitney | 1,000 |
| Alfred M. Post | 1,000 |
| Mrs. Horatio L. Bigelow | 1,000 |
| George W. Collard | 1,000 |

The Chairman of the Bronx Committee said that $25 of the sum he reported had been given by a Catholic priest. Selfridge of London sent a check for $500, as did George W. Baker, Jr. The gift of Mr. and Mrs. Jesup was the second they have made.

Miss Dodge received this message from the White House:

> May I not express my deep interest in your campaign and convey my sincerest congratulations on your very promising success so far? WOODROW WILSON.

President Burton of Smith College made a short address after the luncheon. He said that he was amazed at the restraint exhibited by the two organizations in not striving for $5,000,000. "From the wonderful way the money is pouring in," said President Burton, "I am sure you could have got a fifth million as easily as you will four."

Mr. Markham's poem was received with enthusiasm. It was entitled "The Friendly Door," and was dedicated to the courageous New York women who are struggling to raise $3,000,000 with which to construct Y. W. C. A. buildings as homes for working girls. This is the poem:

What is the word on the wind to-day?
What is the rumor of dare and do?
Women, you come with a dream, they say,
Banded to see that the dream comes true.

Then gather as one to your rallying camp;
To light the march of the coming days.

Women, you work for the girls that strive,
You are helping them keep their souls alive

You are working for unborn sister-bands,
You are reaching hands to their unseen hands
To level the way and lighten the load.

And this be your praise as the years go by,
(And enough it will be for a soul's renown!)
You opened a door when there came a cry,

And then at the end of the ways that wind
One joy will stay through a world's defeat—
To know as you go that you left behind

It was announced yesterday that Messrs. Jesse I., Percy S., and Herbert N. Straus of R. H. Macy & Co. had given permission to the Young Women's Christian Association to use one of their large show windows for an exhibition picturing the many activities of the organization. Miss Martie Leonard, the pageantry expert of the Y. W. C. A., who owns and manages a theatre in Mount Kisco, held a long conference yesterday with W. F. Allert, chief of the window display department of R. H. Macy & Co., who will help in arranging the exhibition. They were joined by Miss Mabelle M. Ford, leader of the new recreation centre of the Y. W. C. A. at 21 West Forty-fourth Street, who came here from Cleveland recently to teach New York girls how to play.

After the conference it was announced that the display would open at 8 o'clock to-day in the big window south of the main entrance to the store, on the Broadway side, between Thirty-fourth and Thirty-fifth Streets. Taking part will be nine girls, each one representing a branch of the local Y. W. C. A. In selecting the types and costumes, Miss Leonard was assisted by Mrs. William Fellowes Morgan and Mrs. James Stewart Cushman. Pupils in the dressmaking and art needlework classes of the Central, Harlem, West Side, and other branches worked all day yesterday getting the costumes ready for a dress rehearsal which was held last night.

One of the girls will wear a cap and gown, representing the Intercollegiate Alumnae; another will be dressed as a Hungarian peasant; another will represent Camp Bluefields at Blauvelt, N. Y., where 1,000 girls spent vacations last Summer, at a cost of $7.95 each for two weeks. The Blauvelt girl will wear an outing costume and carry a canoe paddle in one hand and a football under her arm. Still another girl will wear the indoor costume of the recreation centres—a middy blouse and bloomers. A hospital nurse will exemplify the work of the Y. W. C. A. in caring for the sick, and the other girls will depict other phases of the work. Above them will be this sign in large letters:

Y. W. C. A.—Y. M. C. A. $4,000,000 BY NOV. 24
FOR THESE.

Every girl will carry a pennant with the name of the branch she represents, or will have explanatory letters on some part of her costume.

"Owing to the immense amount of detail in connection with the campaign, it is impossible for the newspapers, kind though they have been to our movement, to record even a small proportion of the many small contributions made to the fund every day. Lest an erroneous impression be formed by the public, I should like to say that not only are small contributions welcome, but that they are desired most eagerly. It is the object of the Joint Committee not only to obtain the $4,000,000 building fund for the two associations, but also to interest as many persons as possible in their prosperity, to the end that we shall obtain for them the double friendliness of financial support and lively concern in their welfare.

"Three thousand contributions have been received to date, of which 2,531 are classified as small, though only to distinguish them from the big gifts that have done so much to swell the total so rapidly. It is believed by members of the Joint Committee that, although the large contributions will continue, the total of smaller gifts will increase steadily in a way which will prove to all New York that the work of the two associations strikes deeply into the hearts of the people."

ACTON DAVIES LOSES SUIT.

He Sued Because Short Story of His Was Made Plot of a Play.

Acton Davies, the dramatic critic, lost the copyright suit yesterday that he brought some time ago in the Federal District Court against Edward J. Bowes, the producer of the drama known as "Kindling," the name of the author of which was given as "Kenyon."

In June, 1908, Mr. Davies published in an afternoon newspaper, under the headline "News of the Theatres," a short story. It was supposed to describe a pathetic scene in a court room in a little Massachusetts town, in which Mr. Davies was present through the chance of having missed his train. This Kenyon picked up and made the plot of his play, "Kindling." Mr. Davies then sued the producer for breach of copyright.

Judge Hough, in deciding against the plaintiff yesterday, laid it down that it was impossible to copyright the news. He quoted the case of Wright versus Tullis, in which it had been held that the fact that the author, in order to arouse interest in a copyrighted work, said that it was a translation from a well-known foreign autnor, vitiated the copyright. In the same way the Court held the fact that the incident had been published as a true happening made it impossible to copyright.

"The pretense here," said the Court, "was for the purpose of attracting attention and lending interest to an alleged occurrence, which if told as fiction would have been tawdry and unconvincing. The man who used the episode swears that he thought it at least as true as most journalistic news items—and I may add that I remained under the same impression until the argument of counsel enlightened me."

TO RECALL COLONIAL WARS.

Other Organizations to be Represented at Patriotic Society's Dinner.

Speakers at the twenty-first annual dinner of the Society of Colonial Wars in the State of New York, to be held to-night at Delmonico's, will include Martin W. Littleton, the Rev. Howard Chandler Robbins, and Frederic R. Coudert. Col. William Whitehead Ladd, the Governor of the society, will preside. Howland Pell, the Governor General, will speak for the national society.

Among societies which will be represented at the dinner will be the Society of the Cincinnati, the St. Andrew's Society, the St. George's Society, the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick, the New York Historical Society, the Society of the War of 1812 and the Veteran Corps of Artillery, the St. Nicholas Society, the Sons of the Revolution in the State of New York, the New York Commandery of the Military Order of Foreign Wars, and the New York Chapter of the Society of the Colonial Order. A business session of the General Society of Colonial Wars will be held this morning at the residence of Howland Pell, at which most of the twenty-seven State societies will be represented.

FOUND DEAD AFTER FIGHT.

Man's Skull Fractured by a Blow or by a Fall.

A milkman, stopping on his round at sunrise yesterday morning to make a delivery at 446 West Forty-seventh Street, came upon the body of a man lying at the entrance of the tenement. He had died of a broken skull, that might have been due to a blow or to a fall down the stairs leading into the building.

The body was identified later as that of Louis Lambert of 439 West Forty-second Street, whose business it was to go to 442 West Forty-seventh Street every morning at 3:30 o'clock to waken Herman Grieme, son of the proprietor of a Tenth Avenue saloon. He was bound on this mission, apparently, when he met his death.

The janitress of the tenement recalled having been wakened just before 4 o'clock by the sound of a fracas on the sidewalk that indicated the presence of several men in some violent altercation, but, as the noise subsided suddenly, she dozed off again.

PUT STRIKERS IN TOMBS.

Nine Mail Chauffeurs, Failing to Get Bail, Are Locked Up.

Of the eighteen mail chauffeurs who have been indicted for obstructing and retarding the mails in connection with the recent strike against the Postal Transfer Service, Incorporated, nine were arraigned yesterday before Judge Hand in the United States District Court. They were David Hockberg, Patrick Johnson, Timothy Kennedy, William J. Simpson, Louis Terry, William D. Eusillis, William P. Glock, Frank Gillece, and George T. McGrath.

They pleaded not guilty and Assistant District Attorney Roger Wood asked that the $5,000 bail set by Commissioner Shields in their cases be continued. After argument by their counsel, Mann Trice, Judge Hand reduced the bail to $1,500 each. In default of bail the men were returned to the Tombs.

The Federal authorities are looking for the other nine strikers who were indicted.

Cashier Loots Bank, Gets Long Term

PONTIAC, Mich., Nov. 17.—Ralph E. Jossman, defaulting cashier of the E. Jossman State Bank, of Clarkstown, near here, was to-day sentenced to serve from seven to twenty years in the State prison at Jackson. He admitted having taken for his own use more than $100,000 of the bank's funds. The affairs of the bank are now in the hands of a receiver.

$30,000,000 MUSEUM A PEACE MEMORIAL

American Committee for 100th Anniversary Celebration Has Funds to Begin It.

A GROUP OF 20 BUILDINGS

It Is Proposed to Preserve the Records of Industrial and Scientific Advance for Posterity.

At a meeting and luncheon of the sub-Executive Committee of the American Committee for the Celebration of the One Hundredth Anniversary of Peace Among English-Speaking Peoples, held yesterday at the Lawyers Club, 115 Broadway, Dr. George Frederick Kunz, President of the American Scenic and Historic Preservation Society, made announcement of the fact that steps had been taken for the founding of a group of museums in this city consisting of twenty buildings, which will be known as "The Museums of the Peaceful Arts." The group when completed will constitute the greatest institution of its kind in the world.

According to John A. Stewart, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the organization, funds for the foundations of the proposed museums have already been pledged in large part by citizens of this country, but the names of the individual donors and the amount given will not be made public until after the articles of incorporation have been filed in Albany, which will be within a few days. The list of incorporators includes these names:

Dr. M. T. Bogart,
Charles A. Coffin,
Thomas A. Edison,
Elbert H. Gary,
H. A. Hardenberg,
A. B. Hepburn,
Dr. A. C. Humphreys,
R. U. Johnson,
George F. Kunz,
Col. E. D. Meier,
Rear Admiral Robert M. Peary,
Calvin W. Rice,
Dr. L. L. Seaman,
Charles M. Schwab,
Melville G. Stone,
Charles H. Strong,
John A. Stewart,
Nikola Tesla,
Henry R. Towne,
F. A. Vanderlip.

It is proposed that the museums shall be divided into the following branches:

Electricity,
Steam,
Astronomy and Navigation,
Safety Appliances,
Aviation,
Mechanical Arts, Agriculture,
Mining,
Labor,
Efficiency,
Historic Records,
Health and Hygiene,
Textiles,
Ceramics and Clays,
Architecture,
Scenic Embellishment,
Gardening,
Roads and Road Building Materials,
Commerce and Trade,
Printing and Books.

According to the present plan there will also be established a central library building containing books and periodicals giving full information concerning the subjects covered by the museums.

Record of Modern Inventors.

"The purpose in founding the museums," Mr. Stewart said yesterday, "is to preserve the records of our industrial, mechanical and scientific progress for posterity. For example, there are still existing valuable models of the first aeroplanes invented in this country and later models, which portray clearly the advances made in the conquest of the air. These models, if not properly collected and preserved, must eventually be destroyed or disappear. They will be of incalculable interest to posterity, and will help to keep alive the names and memories of the great men of our day. Similarly the plans of our architects and engineers, together with those of their predecessors, which are still extant, should be properly preserved and tabulated."

On this point the report of Dr. Kunz says:

> In regard to time, there is no time like the present. We have still with us Edison, Thompson, Houston, Tesla, one of the Wrights, Alexander Graham Bell, Marconi, and many others whose inventions have revolutionized the mode of living of the entire world, and their original, experimental work should be preserved forever.
> We have still with us many of the generals of industry, through whose leadership some of the greatest incorporations have been formed, the men who see visions, who believe in the possibility of higher industrial education. What may we not safely trust to see created eight years from to-day, if adequate encouragement is given, and if the materials already secured are properly grouped together, so that they illustrate one another and suggest new and greater developments?

In regard to a proper site for the proposed building, Mr. Stewart said that this matter had not yet been considered. He explained that only one or two of the projected buildings would be attempted in the beginning, but that land would be acquired sufficient in area to accommodate the entire group of twenty buildings. According to the report of Dr. Kunz, the cost of erecting the group of museums will be about $30,000,000, and it is esimated that their maintenance would call for an annual expenditure of between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000.

Appeal for 1915 Fair.

In the course of the meeting of the committee yesterday resolutions were introduced by Jacob H. Schiff and were unanimously approved. They asked support of the British section of the committee to get a British exhibit at the San Francisco Fair and said:

> The American Committee for the Celebration of the One Hundredth Anniversary of Peace Among English Speaking Peoples 1914-15, and of unbroken peace with Germany, France, and other great nations, views with deep regret and much concern the decision of the Government of Great Britain, acting in concert with Germany, not to be represented officially on the occasion of the Panama-Pacific Exposition in celebration, in 1915, of the opening of the Panama Canal, through which the commerce of the whole world will be so vastly benefited;
> And, inasmuch as the official celebration of the centenary of the Ghent Treaty in America will terminate at the San Francisco Fair in a week of ceremony and public exercise—a fitting and impressive finale of the period of international rejoicing over the end of war between America and Great Britain—our Committee deems it unfortunate for the peace celebration, and an incongruity, that our principal associate in the celebration should remain officially unrepresented at America's celebration over the completion of the Panama Canal, a situation likely to be misinterpreted and misunderstood;
>
> Now, therefore, we greet our friends and associates in the Peace Celebration cause in Great Britain—the British Committee for the Celebration of the One Hundredth Anniversary of Peace Among English speaking peoples—and beg their good offices and influence in seeking to secure from the Government of Great Britain their reconsideration of their decision not officially to participate in the Panama Exposition, to the end that Great Britain and Ireland may be adequately represented among the exhibitors.
> Resolved, That the Chairman be directed to lay these resolutions and this matter before the British Committee in London, and to take such steps in furtherance of this desired end as may be necessary.

A telegram was read by Chairman Stewart from Charles C. Moore, President of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition, accepting in behalf of the exposition authorities the suggestion of the committee that the concluding ceremonies of the hundredth anniversary of peace celebration be held in San Francisco in 1915. President Moore suggested to the committee that one week be set aside during the exposition to be known as "International Peace Week," during which an International Peace Congress should convene in the fair grounds. Peace week at the exposition will end with an international peace pageant and the dedication of an American-English peace monument.

On the motion of Robert C. Morris resolutions of thanks were extended to the British committee in charge of the celebration in England of the Peace Centennary for its generous offer to set aside from the proceeds of the American-British Exposition to be held in 1914 at Shepard's Bush, London, the sum of £40,000 ($200,000) for the foundation of scholarships. The British committee's offer, which was accepted, provides for the establishment of scholarships in commercial and social economics in both countries, in equal proportions to each nation, to be called "The American-British Exposition Scholarships."

It was announced that a conference of the members of the American committee would be held in Richmond, Va., on Dec. 3 and 4. The conference will close with a banquet given to the conferees by the City of Richmond and the Chamber of Commerce of Richmond. Gov. William Hodges Mann will preside at the opening meeting on Dec. 3 and Andrew Carnegie will act as Chairman at the subsequent sessions. Delegates will be present from all of the States and from the eighty-six city committees. The conference will arrange to celebrate on special days and in special occasions the peace which has endured between the United States, France, Germany, Norway, Sweden, Holland, Italy, and other nations. Robert Laird Borden, Premier of Canada, will be a guest of the conference.

At yesterday's meeting of the Sub-Executive Committee the City of Richmond was represented by T. M. Carrington, President, and R. A. Dunlop, Secretary of the Chamber of Commerce. Among the other members present were Alton B. Parker, Jacob H. Schiff, Bayard Henry of Philadelphia, James Brown Scott of Washington, D. C.; Gen. Frank S. Streeter of Concord, N. H.; Albert Gallatin, George T. Wilson, R. A. C. Smith, William Church Osborn, William Curtis Demorest, Austen G. Fox, Charles Stewart Davison, Dr. George F. Kunz, Andrew Humphrey, Louis Livingston Seaman, Oscar S. Straus, Job E. Hedges, George William Burleigh, E. R. L. Gould, William B. Howland, T. Kennard Thomson, Albert Shaw, Nicholas Murray Butler, Robert C. Morris, James L. Wandling, and John A. Stewart.

Commissioner Says He Can't Haggle Over Cost of Saving Lives.

As the result of hearings and investigations which have been in progress since 1909, the Public Service Commission has ordered the B. R. T. to equip its street cars with wheelguards and fenders, and in the opinion accompanying the order Commissioner Maltbie has expressed the opinion that the increased safety to the life and limb of pedestrians is worth the $150,000 which he estimates the company will have to spend.

The matter was taken up by the commission in January, 1909. The first order in relation to it was to take effect on July 1 of that year, and was to be fully complied with by Nov. 1, 1909. But it was not obeyed, and a series of rehearings and fresh investigations followed. Commissioner Maltbie in his opinion says "the record shows the long delay and determined resistance which the commission has encountered in its efforts to compel the installation of adequate safety devices and appliances," and he quotes from the evidence, taken during one of the hearings, the statement of Mr. Marsh, counsel for the B. R. T., that the company would be willing to operate the old style of fender, "because it would not touch our pocketbook."

Commenting on this, Commissioner Maltbie says: "If the company is willing to operate its present defective type of fender, why should it object to operating a more efficient type? Clearly the answer is the one given by Mr. Marsh, that it 'touches the pocketbook,' and, therefore, the order is contested. * * * But, after all, we are dealing in this matter with the lives and limbs of pedestrians, many of them little children. The yearly toll of the dead and maimed is far too great to warrant us in haggling over an expenditure of $150,000, if that be the cost of installation, to save children from being maimed, to prevent breadwinners from being deprived of their ability to support themselves and their families, and to avoid the death of some mother beloved in her family circle."

APPEALS TO PRESIDENT.

Woman Asks Wilson to Intercede for Connecticut Murderess.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 17.—A letter was sent to President Wilson to-day by Mrs. Sarah Devlin of the Fair Haven Political Equality Club requesting him to use his influence with Gov. Baldwin in favor of commuting the death sentence of Mrs. Bessie Wakefield to life imprisonment. Last week Mrs. Devlin's letter to Miss Jessie Wilson asking her to use her influence with Gov. Baldwin was referred to the Governor.

Mrs. Devlin yesterday directed the circulation of her petition among the churches of the city, where it secured about 400 signatures. She believes that on President Wilson's appeal Gov. Baldwin will commute the sentence.

BLOOD GIFT FAILED TO SAVE MISS THOMAS

ILLNESS DUE TO OYSTERS

Father Called on Daughter's Friends When Physicians Said Blood Transfusion Was Only Hope.

Miss Edith Thomas, 20 years old, the only child of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Thomas of Savannah, Ga., and member of the senior class of Barnard College, died early yesterday morning in the Presbyterian Hospital from an attack of typhoid fever, which she suffered less than four weeks ago. Her physicians strove desperately to save Miss Thomas's life, and on Sunday night a pint of blood was transfused into her arteries from those of Thomas Pinkerton, a former student of Columbia University; but, although the patient seemed to gain strength after the operation, she suffered a relapse a few hours later, and she died before another operation for blood transfusion could be performed yesterday morning.

Miss Thomas was taken ill on Oct. 23. She was transferred at once from her room in Brooks Hall, the Barnard College dormitory, to the Presbyterian Hospital. Her physicians attributed her illness to oysters which she ate while dining with friends outside the dormitory. Her parents were notified as soon as the nature of her illness was known, and they came to the city from Savannah at once, and stayed with their daughter until her death.

On last Sunday the physician attending Miss Thomas saw that she was sinking from anaemia, and it was decided to perform an operation for blood transfusion. Mr. Thomas told the physicians to spare no expense to obtain the blood. An offer to pay any man well who would submit to his part in the operation was sent to the officers of the United Charities and to the Salvation Army. No person could be found, though, who answered the requirements.

Mr. Thomas decided to call upon his daughter's friends. One of these who had known Miss Thomas well for three years, was Francis Scott, a graduate of the Columbia law school in the class of 1911. He has a law office at 115 Broadway, and lives in the Phi Kappa Psi fraternity house. Mr. Thomas telephoned to Mr. Scott Sunday night, and he went to the hospital at once with three other members of his fraternity.

After testing the blood of the four men the physicians decided to use that of Thomas Pinkerton of Duluth, Minn., formerly a student of Columbia and a college athlete. He is employed by the General Electric Company. Although Mr. Pinkerton did not know Miss Thomas he consented readily to give as much of his blood as the doctors needed. One pint was taken. All of the fraternity men were eager to undergo the transfusion operation, and the physicians had intended, if Miss Thomas had lived, to call upon another man yesterday.

A bed in the hospital was offered to Mr. Pinkerton after the blood was drawn from his arteries and he was advised to spend two days in rest.

"Why?" he asked. "I feel fine. There's nothing the matter with me. I'm glad I could help." Then he turned to his friends and said, "Come on, fellows."

He drank a glass of egg-nog and departed from the hospital, as well as ever, seemingly. The two young men who went to the hospital with Messrs. Scott and Pinkerton were Thomas E. Huser and Ashley Dickinson, both students of Columbia University.

Miss Thomas was very popular at Barnard, and, besides receiving many honors from the students, she stood high in her classes and was much esteemed by the college authorities. She was a member of the Kappa Alpha Theta Fraternity, Chairman of the Sophomore Dance Committee, Vice President of the student government body of Brooks Hall, in which she lived, and President of the Société Française. She had dramatic ability and appeared in several college plays, among them "The Road to Yesterday," given in 1911, and the annual French play given in 1912. She was proficient in languages, and French was her favorite study. She was noted also among her friends for her grace as a dancer.

John M. Thomas, the father, lives at 312 Bolton Street, Savannah. He and Mrs. Thomas departed for their home yesterday afternoon with Miss Thomas's body. The funeral will be held in Savannah next Wednesday. Many flowers were sent to them by friends of Miss Thomas.

After a thorough inspection of Brooks Hall yesterday, a representative of the Board of Health and the Columbia University Health and Sanitary Officer said that Miss Thomas caught typhoid fever outside of the dormitory. They found the hall in perfect condition. There have been no other cases of typhoid fever among Barnard students.

WHITMAN WILL PUSH FIGHT ON FOWLER

IS HELD IN $5,000 BAIL

Great Array of Counsel Is Promised—Whitman Will Take No Dare in Graft Inquiry.

Everett P. Fowler of Kingston, indicted on a charge of extorting $250 from Seneca P. Hull, a State road contractor of Cortland, decided yesterday that he would stand trial on the charge. William D. Cunningham, District Attorney of Ulster County, who, it was said, advised Fowler to tell all he knew about the up-State graft ring, was dismissed summarily as Fowler's attorney yesterday.

With the dropping of Cunningham the graft situation underwent a decided change. Fowler went before Judge Crain and pleaded not guilty to the indictment, at the same time challenging District Attorney Whitman to place him on trial. Since Saturday Fowler had considered Mr. Whitman's ultimatum—to tell all or go to prison.

Fowler was expected to arrive in this city shortly after 11 o'clock yesterday morning, and it had been agreed that he should give the District Attorney his answer at noon. Mr. Whitman as late as Saturday night received assurances from Kingston that Fowler would tell him what he knew about what John A. Hennessy called the "sandbagging" of State contractors.

Who was responsible for the change of plans is not known, but the fact is that Fowler got up at 4 o'clock yesterday morning and hastened to New York on an early train. By 10 o'clock he was in conference with Martin W. Littleton. About the same time Mr. Whitman heard from District Attorney Cunningham that Cunningham was out of the case.

Mr. Littleton had not been Mr. Fowler's attorney long when it became known that the case was to be fought bitterly in the courts. Several of the lawyers in whose learning Tammany Hall puts the greatest reliance, it was learned eventually, will be retained. They will make the contention that District Attorney Whitman has no jurisdiction over Fowler, and they will assert that he has no jurisdiction in similar cases that may arise out of the present graft investigation. The fight is expected to be a long one, and probably will be taken to the highest court in the State for final adjudication. The fight, it is expected, will involve not only Mr. Whitman's right to prosecute in this county but also will question the validity of the John Doe investigation now under way before Chief Magistrate McAdoo.

Whitman Will Not Halt.

When District Attorney Whitman learned of the plan to block his investigation and the trial of Fowler, he made it clear that he would agree to no delay. His answer to the Fowler challenge was that he would go right ahead and seek other graft indictments. He had expected, he admitted, that the question of jurisdiction would be raised. That was the only question that possibly could be raised, he insisted, in a case which was as simple and as strong as that against Fowler. There was no doubt about his jurisdiction, he said, adding that he was willing to fight all the lawyers in New York on the issue.

Mr. Littleton said that he would begin his active fight for Fowler within a week. First he will demand the minutes of the Grand Jury which indicted Fowler. In case the court refuses him permission to inspect the minutes Littleton will appeal. Littleton then will move to quash the indictment on the ground that Mr. Whitman has no jurisdiction.

"When a crime is committed, partly in one county and partly in another, or the acts or the effects thereof, constituting or requisite to the consummation of the offense, occur in two or more counties, the jurisdiction is in either county."

It was under this section that Mr. Whitman sought the indictment of Fowler. The contractor, Hull, alleged that Fowler had extorted $250 from him in the Syracuse office of William H. Kelly, Democratic boss of Onondaga County. Hull, as alleged in the indictment, paid the money after Fowler had threatened him. Hull drew a check payable to Norman E. Mack. The check reached the Democratic State Committee at 1 West Thirty-fourth Street. It was indorsed by Mack, then by Democratic State Treasurer Arthur A. McLean, and then was cashed at the Fourth National Bank in this city. Mr. Whitman's point was that the crime was extortion, and was not completed until the check was cashed. As the check was cashed in this city, that fact, he maintained, gave him jurisdiction.

Littleton Disputes Jurisdiction.

Referring to the same section, Mr. Littleton asserted yesterday that he would try to show by argument before the courts that the crime of extortion, if it was committed, was committed in Syracuse. The passing of the check into New York County, he maintained, was only a method employed for getting the check back to Hull. The crime, he said, if there was one, was begun and completed in one transaction.

If Mr. Littleton should win in the fight, the indictment, of course, would be quashed. To continue the case against Fowler, it would be necessary to obtain his indictment in Onondaga County. Fowler, it is said, is well known in Onondaga County. It is known that Mr. Whitman will fight vigorously every move to transfer the case to that county. If, however, the case should be taken there, Gov. Glynn still could command the situation by appointing a special Attorney General to try it. It was suggested yesterday that Mr. Whitman, as Special Attorney General, might try the case himself. The District Attorney of Onondaga County is George H. Bond, a Republican. Mr. Bond lives in Syracuse.

If Mr. Whitman wins in his fight to have Fowler tried in this county it is expected that the trial will be rushed. Mr. Whitman, it was said, would ask for a special panel from which to select the jury. The punishment on conviction for extortion is imprisonment in a State prison for not more than fifteen years.

Fowler reached the Criminal Court Building at 11:30 o'clock yesterday morning. With him came Mr. Littleton, Joseph M. Fowler, his cousin, who is a lawyer, and F. A. Palen, a lumber merchant of 464 Riverside Drive. Mr. Littleton conferred with Mr. Whitman, leaving Fowler outside. Fowler posed willingly for the photographers. He referred all inquiries to his lawyer.

Mr. Whitman, it is understood, briefly viewed his case against Fowler to Mr. Littleton, and told Mr. Littleton what [illegible] might expect if the case went to trial. Upon behalf of his client, Mr. Littleton then told the District Attorney that he would fight the case.

Fowler appeared before Judge Crain shortly after 12 o'clock, and stepped briskly to the bar when the clerk called his name.

"Everett P. Fowler," said the clerk, "you have been indicted for extortion. Do you plead guilty or not guilty?"

"If your Honor pleases," replied his counsel, addressing the Court, "the defendant desires to plead not guilty with leave to withdraw that plea within the usual ten-day period, and to make such motions as may be deemed necessary."

Fowler Gives $5,000 Bail.

District Attorney Whitman assented, and asked that the defendant be held in $5,000 bail. There was no objection to this, and Fowler was taken to the bail department.

The [illegible] bail bond was furnished by the United States Fidelity and Guaranty Company. This is the company which George H. McGuire testified bonded over two-thirds of the barge canal and highway contractors who obtained their bonds through his office in Syracuse.

"Will your client make a confession?" Mr. Littleton was asked while the arrangements for bail were being made.

"Who said confession?" replied Mr. Littleton. "Did you ever see me on a confession side? I have known Mr. Fowler for many years, and when I took this case it was with the understanding that Mr. Fowler would stand on his rights. What we are going to do now is to prepare our defense. Mr. Fowler has no confession to make."

In a later talk with Mr. Littleton, the lawyer said that he did not want to be understood to say that Fowler's case positively would be brought to trial. There might be exigencies, he said, which would make this unnecessary. But that did not mean, he added, that Fowler had anything material to say. He might have an interesting story to tell, Mr. Littleton said, but it would be a story which would fall far short of the popular idea of a confession.

Littleton Promises "Real Trial."

"If this comes to trial it will be a real trial," said Mr. Littleton, "and Mr. Fowler will tell his story on the witness stand. There is nothing to hide."

At this point Mr. Littleton admitted that an attack would be made upon Mr. Whitman's jurisdiction. Fowler's friends in Kingston, it was said yesterday, were enraged over his indictment. They picture him as an honest, home-loving church-going man. These friends hinted at Fowler's possible line of defense. It ran something like this: That the one man in Kingston who had the admiration of everybody was Everett P. Fowler. He was the most charitable man in Kingston. Whenever a new church was to be built, Mr. Fowler hustled around and raised the necessary money. Perhaps Mr. Fowler did collect a little money for the Democratic State Committee. Perhaps he collected, say, $5,000. But if he did he just did it because he wanted to do his share for the party. He couldn't have extorted it from any one, and he did everything above board. That is why he used checks.

This story, if told on the witness stand, will be subject to sharp attack. It was said yesterday that Mr. Whitman would be able to prove that at least $40,000 had been collected by Fowler in Rochester, Buffalo, and Syracuse. Fowler, the District Attorney will try to show, was the official "bagman" among the contractors on the State highways. Most of the $40,000, it was said, had been collected in 1912, but there were some collections in 1911.

Norman E. Mack, in a statement issued on Sunday, said that only $35,000 had been collected for the State Democratic Committee in 1911. That was the year that Mack was Chairman of the State Committee. Mr. Mack did not say how much was collected in 1912.

SEEKS GRAFT FLOOD'S PATH.

Whitman Hears That $5,000,000 Was in One Golden Stream.

Assistant District Attorney John K. Clark started yesterday afternoon on another of his flying trips up State. He left the Criminal Court Building within a half hour after Mr. Whitman had had a conference with Alexander Otis. Mr. Otis as a lawyer has acted in an advisory capacity for the Republican State Committee for several years, and it was admitted after his departure that the conference had related to certain phases of the graft investigation. Mr. Clark, it was learned, would visit Albany to check the new evidence furnished by Mr. Otis.

This evidence, it was said, related to graft in the letting of contracts for road repair work. It was said that $5,000,000 in graft had been divided in State highway work.

If the information given by Mr. Otis can be substantiated, it was said last night, a State official will be involved. Evidence against this official, it was said, had been piling up in Mr. Whitman's office for several weeks. Mr. Clark carried with him a number of subpoenas, which will be served on persons named in the Otis revelations.

In the letting of some road repair contracts, according to the information which reached Mr. Whitman, there was discrimination. When contracts were about to be let word was passed around among the favored contractors. These contractors then conferred with their County Chairmen. Each favored contractor carried a letter of introduction from his County Chairman when he presented himself as a bidder. The holders of letters could not be distinguished, of course, from the horde of unfavored contractors who assembled in Albany when contracts were let and to weed out the favored ones there was a countersign. This countersign was "Go to the Hampton," meaning the Hampton Hotel in Albany.

At the Hampton Hotel, according to the information obtained by Mr. Whitman, secret meetings were held by the favored ones. Here, it was said, the contractors got assurances that they would get the bids provided they put up a 10 per cent. contribution "for campaign expenses." They were reimbursed for this 10 per cent., it was said, in "overcharges." Bills for this purpose were rushed through the Legislature.

It was learned that Mr. Otis had given the names of many of the "favored contractors" to Mr. Whitman, and Mr. Clark, in his trip through the northern part of the State, it was inferred, would serve subpoenas upon those named by Mr. Otis.

When Mr. Clark returns from his trip it is expected he will have the names of the 300 contractors who have done work on the Barge Canal and on the State highways in the last three years. Mr. Whitman, according to present plans, will call all of the 300 as witnesses in the investigation.

BURGARD MAKES DENIAL.

Did Not Attend Syracuse "Sandbag" Conference, Buffalonian Says.

Special to The New York Times.

BUFFALO, Nov. 17.—Henry P. Burgard, Chairman of the Democratic County Committee, to-day emphatically denied having participated in a conference held in Syracuse last year, the alleged purpose of which was to exact campaign contributions from barge canal and good roads contractors.

"The story sent from New York is a malicious lie," he said. "The man who inspired the story did so with malicious intent, and I think I know where it originated. I did not attend the conference referred to, and do not know that such a conference was held. It's a downright malicious lie."

YOUNG REPUBLICANS SAY BARNES MUST GO

SAYS COLONEL WANTS HIM

Ottinger, in Defending His Chief, Asserts Roosevelt Tried to Bring Barnes Into His Camp.

The New York Young Republican Club gave a smoker at the Prince George Hotel last night and wrangled over a perennial Republican tangle—the fitness of William Barnes to continue as Republican State leader. When the time arrived for light refreshments the young Republicans, after a debate which had lasted more than two hours, decreed by a vote of 38 to 17 that Mr. Barnes must go.

A report presented by the Committee on State Leadership, appointed several months ago by the Young Republican Club, started the discussion. It was learned that the action of the club in bringing up the debate when the Republican Assembly was about to organize did not meet with the approval of Herbert Parsons or any of the "elder" Republicans who are opposed to the leadership of Mr. Barnes.

Several Republican Assemblymen-elect, including Thaddesus C. Sweet of Oswego, who is one of the Republican candidates for Speaker, had been invited to attend the meeting, but representatives of the Republican organization met them in the lobby of the hotel, and when they learned what the topic of discussion at the smoker was to be, they took the advice of the organization men and stayed away from the affair.

The report was presented by Walter T. Arndt, Chairman of the Committee on State Leadership. In the report the committee asserted that its investigation had shown "a strong and growing dissatisfaction with the present leadership of the Republican Party in every county of the State."

"We therefore recommend," the members of the committee said, "that the New York Young Republican Club take such steps as will help to bring about a change in the State leadership, and that it enter at once on an active campaign to put these recommendations into effect." The report was signed by Walter T. Arndt, Alfred Conkling Coxe, Jr.; Charles E. Hughes, Jr.; Frederick P. Keppel, Philip J. McCook, and E. Stagg Whitin. Albert E. Ottinger, who is prominent in the Republican party councils in the Fifteenth Assembly District, arose when the report had been read by Mr. Arndt.

"If it hadn't been for William Barnes," he said, "Mr. Taft would never have been renominated at Chicago last year, and the party would have been turned over to Roosevelt. It does not lie in the mouth of the Republican organization in this city to find fault with the up-State Republicans who have indorsed Mr. Barnes's leadership, for the Republican organization in this city is a joke. If it hadn't been, we would have nominated and elected a Republican Mayor this year.

"It has been said here that Mr. Barnes is pre-historic in his views and methods; that he belongs to a bygone age, and that he ought to be apologized for. But what are the facts? Roosevelt sought Barnes's aid, and Barnes said: 'No, I am a Republican.' Roosevelt would take Barnes into camp to-day if Barnes would only give him a chance. He has made overturnes, and I know what I am talking about."

Mr. Ottinger wanted the report tabled, but this motion was defeated by a viva voce vote. After his speech, Mr. Ottinger was asked to elaborate on his assertion that Mr. Roosevelt had approached the Republican State leader privately whom he had so often assailed in public.

"I have Mr. Barnes's statement for that," said Mr. Ottinger. "Better see him."

Philip J. McCook, who presided at the smoker, answered Mr. Ottinger. He said Mr. Ottinger was in error when he asserted that the report was an indorsement of Roosevelt, the Bull Moose boss.

"What reference is made in the report to Roosevelt is to the old Roosevelt, the Republican Roosevelt, we used to know and love—the Roosevelt who owed everything he had politically to the Republican party," said Mr. McCook.

Ex-State Senator Martin Saxe urged that action on the report be deferred to a later meeting and that in the meantime Mr. Barnes should be invited to come before the club and answer the allegations made in the report. Chester Mayer of the Thirty-first Assembly District said that the opposition to Mr. Barnes did not come from the rank and file of the Republican party, but from the Progressives.

"Roosevelt started this cry against Barnes, and by keeping it up you are only playing into the hands of Roosevelt," he said. "I have heard no complaint voiced against Mr. Barnes by the prominent men of our own party. Senator Root does not complain. Mr. Taft does not complain. Are you going to help lift the cry against Barnes they now are against Murphy? You are just playing into the hands of the Progressives. If you want a change in leadership start your fight after the Gubernatorial election next year, and do not spoil our chance of success then."

Ormsby McHarg, who was active in corraling colored delegates in the South for Roosevelt before the Chicago Convention, is a member of the club. When his turn to speak came last night he said he was "for Barnes the Chairman and against Barnes the cynic." He said it was foolish to try and beat Barnes with an idea, as long as there was no man to put up as a candidate for the leadership.

"I freely admit the deplorable condition of the party in this State under the leadership of Barnes," said Mr. McHarg. "But I know also that there are men in this room who helped elect Sulzer in the name of Republicanism."

For a time it looked as though those opposing the adoption of the report would prevail. Then E. Stagg Whitin spoke.

"If you wish to continue to bow under the yoke any longer," he said, "then heed the counsel of those who for the last three or four days have been moving heaven and earth to prevent this report from being made."

When the debate was at an end a vote was taken on a motion to re-submit the report of the committee to give Mr. Barnes an opportunity to be heard. This was beaten by a vote of 30 to 18. The report was then adopted.

NEW WIRE-TAPPING TRAIL.

Whitman Looking Into Purchases of Police Officials.

New evidence concerning the alleged collusion of the wiretappers and the police reached the District Attorney's office yesterday, and materially strengthened the State's case in the investigation which is being made by Assistant District Attorney Frederick J. Groehl. The investigation by the Grand Jury was to have been begun to-day, but it seemed probable last night that it would be postponed until the latter part of the week, in which case the subpoenas issued to twelve or more witnesses will be extended.

Among the evidence to be submitted, it is understood, are the records of raids made upon different wire-tapping establishments in this city. By means of these records the testimony of some of the wiretappers that they paid $2,500 a month and 15 per cent. of their profits to police officials will be checked up. The investigators will seek to corroborate in this manner a story which has come to them regarding the purchase of a house by a high police official. It is asserted that shortly after raids were made upon different establishments certain interests got to work, with the result that the sale price of the house was cut in half.

Mr. Whitman is investigating the story of a visit paid by a civilian attaché at Police Headquarters to a private detective agency which has been active in the wiretappers' disclosures. The visit followed an interview last Friday morning between Mr. Whitman and a man brought to him by the head of the agency.

It was said yesterday that if the connecting links in the mass of information which has already been collected by the District Attorney's office are supplied before the case reaches the Grand Jury, as many as twelve indictments may follow. Of these, nine are detectives and three are officials. The purchase by one official of two automobiles within six months this year is regarded by the prosecution as significant.

J. C. MARTIN'S WILL BROKEN.

Court Holds Proponents Needed to Prove His Sanity.

Probate of the 1912 will of John Calvin Martin, who died on Sept. 3, 1912, was refused yesterday by Surrogate Fowler. This will, which was executed on July 31, eight days before the testator was adjudged insane and while he was visiting at Portsmouth, N. H., among total stragers, disposed of property estimated as close to $1,000,000. It gave $20,000 each to the Society for the Prevention of Vice and the Board of Home Missions of the Presbyterian Church, $20,000 each to seven sisters, a gold medal only to a brother, and the residuary estate to the John C. Martin Educational Foundation, which he had established a few years before.

The contest of the will was brought by Mr. Martin's sisters on the ground that the testator was suffering at the time of the instrument's execution with "manic depressive insanity." Witnesses said that in their opinion Mr. Martin was sane at the time of the signing of the will. These persons, however, were acquainted with the testator only during a few days previous to the making of the will. Surrogate Fowler decided that this testimony was overbalanced by the fact that Mr. Martin had at various times in 1912 and 1911 shown undoubted signs of insanity, and had been adjudged an incompetent.

The decision of Surrogate Fowler establishes a precedent, since it is the first case in which the contest is brought on the ground that the testator at periods suffered from insanity, the proof of the testator's sanity at the exact moment of executing his will being placed upon the proponents and not on the contestants.

NO ONE IS EAGER FOR MURPHY'S JOB

O'Gorman Says He Won't Take It and Smith Asserts Talk of Him as Boss Is Silly.

THINKS MURPHY WILL STAY

Leader Won't Abdicate Voluntarily or from Pressure Within the Organization, in Secretary's Opinion.

Apparently nobody in Tammany covets the mantle of Boss Murphy. It was draped gracefully on the ample shoulders of United States Senator James A. O'Gorman, and on those of Thomas F. Smith, Secretary of Tammany Hall, yesterday, by would-be inside reorganizers of Tammany. Senator O'Gorman was in town yesterday. When asked about the report that he would take up the burden of leadership, Senator O'Gorman said the job of United States Senator provided him with all the work he could perform. Secretary Smith, when the same question was addressed to him, put up his hands and said that so far as he knew Mr. Murphy would not either voluntarily or as the result of pressure from within the organization vacate the leadership.

"It was said that Mr. Murphy was through, and that he was going on a long vacation," said Secretary Smith. "Mr. Murphy will seek his usual after-election rest undoubtedly, and I believe he intends to go to Hot Springs, Va. But I doubt whether he will go this week. He is too busy with the affairs of the organization. Mr. Murphy will be on the job here to-morrow, and I should not be surprised if he stayed here for the rest of the week. There is no truth in this silly talk that I am to become the leader of Tammany, either for myself or as the understudy for Senator O'Gorman."

"Would you accept the leadership of Tammany Hall if Mr Murphy was eliminated and the offer came to you in the proper way?" Senator O'Gorman was asked at the Manhattan Club yesterday afternoon.

"That proposal is simply impossible," said the Senator. "There isn't a circumstance on earth that would induce me to accept political leadership while I am a Senator. There is enough work for me as a Senator to keep me busy. I am not mixing in politics, all rumors to the contrary."

George Gordon Battle, law partner of Senator O'Gorman, who on last Saturday called upon all Democrats, whether they had supported McCall or Mitchel in the Mayoralty election, to take an interest in the Democratic organization in this State and bring it abreast of the times in leadership and ideals, said yesterday that in voicing that summons he had spoken for himself alone.

"And now that you ask me," said Mr. Battle, "I want to emphasize the point that, such as it is, the Tammany organization exists under the law, with its leaders elected under the law. The way to reorganize it is not to start a new organization, but to have those on the inside work under the rules established by the law for a change in the leadership, if such a change is desired, as I believe a majority will admit it is. The law as it stands on the statute books provides ways and means for such a change."

CITY BREVITIES.

As Mrs. Helen Pelouze, wife of an electrical engineer of 55 East Fifty-eighth Street, did not appear yesterday in the Federal District Court to alter her tentative plea of not guilty to an indictment charging her with the failure to declare furs, laces, and jewelry she had brought from Germany, Judge Hand set her trial for next Monday.

Ten members of the Committee on Local Transportation of the City Council of Chicago arrived in New York at 6:40 P. M. to make a brief study of transportation methods here. They were entertained at dinner at the Imperial Hotel by Robert Rideway, engineer of the Public Service Commission, and Travis Whitney, Secretary of the commission.

Three Bulgarians who arrived in this country on Thursday were found yesterday overcome by gas in a room in the Carmel Hotel, 32 Livingston Street. They will recover.

$1.50 SECURITY FOR $850.

Creditor Dismayed When Ralston Strong Box Is Opened.

William S. Searing, an automobile man of 494 Jefferson Avenue, Brooklyn, decided yesterday that it was time to claim the security for $850 which he had lent to William L. Ralston of Hempstead, L. I. Ralston, who said he was the manager of the Salvation Army at Hempstead, and that he had recently inherited $70,000,000 from his father in Pittsburgh, presented two keys to Mr. Searing when the money was advanced. The keys, Ralston said, opened his two strong boxes in the Long Island Warehouse Company.

Mr. Searing felt that he had plenty of security at that time, but when the safe was opened yesterday it contained contents which Searing estimated to be worth $1.50. Ralston has disappeared.

Ralston recently offered an automobile as a tip to a porter named Crowe at the Hotel York. The machine, however, happened to be Searing's and he refused to give up the car when Crowe presented Ralston's order for it.

CANADIAN HORSE WINS OVER JUMPS AT GARDEN

WESTERN GIRL A WINNER

Miss Long of Kansas City Shows Skill in Handling Splendid Roadster—First Cavalry Trooper Wins.

International jumping formed the feature of the programme yesterday of the Horse Show at Madison Square Garden. The competition for a cup valued at $100 and $150 offered by Judge William H. Moore attracted seventy of the finest jumpers in the United States and Europe and produced one of the most sensational contests in the history of the National Horse Show Association. The event furnished a series of thrills that continued for two hours, and culminated in a Canadian victory for Capt. W. T. Rodden's black mare Sarah Moore over the famous $30,000 French entry, Amazone, ridden by Lieut. Baron de Meslon of the First Cuirassiers, which captured the first international jumping event on Saturday night.

A brilliant throng of interested spectators watched the event, which was continued until long after midnight. The class, which was limited to officers of all branches of the service of all nations, was the first real test of jumping ability of specially selected horses from the armies of America, France, England, Canada, Belgium, and Russia. By the process of elimination the entries were reduced to twelve on the second round of the jumps. Six of these made a clean score, and the judges ordered a third round. This resulted in reducing the field to four, and two of the horses failed to qualify.

From the big field of entries Canada and France alone were represented in the fourth trial. Capt. Rodden of Canada piloted Sarah Moore successfully over the eight jumps, and Lieut. Meslon on Amazone accomplished the same feat. The judges were in a quandary, and suggested that the two foreign officers toss for the first prize. The sporting spirit predominated, however, and it was agreed that a further trial should be held. Meanwhile the spectators were wrought up to a high state of excitement, and the building rang with cheers when it was announced that a fifth trial would follow.

International pride influenced the decision of the rival competitors, and the appearance of Capt. Rodden was greeted with a salvo of cheers. The Canadian carried his horse over the course without a mistake, and when he completed his task the cheers were renewed. Lieut. Meslon followed, and to the spectators it appeared as though he had successfully emulated his Canadian rival. The two officers stood in the centre of the arena awaiting the result of the decision.

The huge building was wrapped in silence for a while, but when the judges finally selected Capt. Rodden's entry as the winner, the applause was deafening. Capt. Rodden and Lieut. Meslon, with military precision, stepped back two paces, saluted, and then shook hands, thus bringing to a close the most spectacular and best contested event in the history of New York horse shows.

Miss Long Clever Whip.

Women owners, drivers and riders, played an important part on the second day of the show, Miss Loula Long of Kansas City achieving a best on record as a whip. She drove her black mare Aspiration to winning honors in a novice class for trotting roadsters which had twenty-one entries, after one of the closest contests between light harness horses ever seen. Aspiration did all that a horse could do by fine manners and a beautiful style in action to gain the blue, and Miss Long supplemented its excellent qualities by a clever handling of the reins.

As to the best on record, no woman has ever driven the winner in a roadster class before in the long years of the show; moreover, few whips, men or women, are equally capable on the box seat of heavy harness traps and in a speeding road wagon behind a soft-mouthed trotter, which is another distinction for Miss Long. With the saddle horses, Mrs. F. Ambrose Clark won on her gelding, Supplement, and Mrs. John J. O'Donohue, wife of the M. F. H. of the Watchung Hunt, on Harry J. Graham's Black Prince, scored a blue for the further honor of the feminine sex. Also, Miss Viau of Montreal sent a winning highstepper into the ring, not to speak of other successes for the fair patrons of the show.

Rival attractions did not tempt the fashionable supporters from the equine contests, and in the afternoon and night the Roman concourse was the gathering place of the many prominent persons who have given year after year a loyal allegiance to the fixture. Their ranks, too, were recruited by countless visitors from out of town and the girls and the young chaps who have gained recent renown as drivers or riders at the many country shows. Features of especial interest at night were the contest between women drivers in rumble phaetons, the most distinctive park one-horse equipage of fashion, and the first of the international sequence of jumping competitions in which the riders will be officers in uniform.

All the world, women and men, join with the Duchess of Gerolstein in the praise of military men in their glorious cloth and gold braided uniforms, and the jumping contest had the added interest of being a stimulus to patriotism, for Uncle Sam's representatives were matched against the picked men of England and the Continent.

Militiamen Win Over Regulars.

The militia scored in one class over the regulars of the United States and from abroad. It was for officers' chargers, the judging being on the good looks and good manners of the horses and no jumping being required. Major Howard K. Brown of the First Cavalry, N. G. N. Y., better known as Squadron A, carried off the blue with his big bay gelding Trooper amid the cheers and rail rapping of his fellow-guardsmen. Uncle Sam's regulars rode in second and third place.

Hunt teams of three, the riders to wear hunt regalia, only had two entries—from Peapack, N. J., and Ottawa—which seems a reproach to the sporting spirit of the many hunt clubs of Long Island, Westchester, and Staten Island, but possibly these riders are too busy chasing the elusive aniseed bag 'cross country to don their pink coats in town.

Tandems, that elongated style of driving which is not seen so often now on Fifth Avenue or in Central Park as in the days of the New York Tandem Club, when all New York's young swells under the tutelage of Burton Mansfield thought it high fashion to drive "at length," had a remarkable showing in one class. It may be a revival—who knows—and the tandem meets will take the place of the vanished coaching Spring meet. No less than nine were in the tandem whirlings, and Judge Moore, driving with a control and style to reveal he has kept his eyes open on his recent trips to the crack British shows, won out with his champion hackneys, Lord and Lady Seaton.

Under the mellow glow of the golden electrollers, the women and their beautifully appointed phaetons, glistening as brightly with varnish as the sleek coats of the horses that drew the vehicles, made a pleasing picture before the crowded boxes and seats at the night session. The exhibit of J. Sumner Draper of Boston, Rillington Nimble, [illegible] having been eliminated from the [illegible] class through the [illegible] antics of [illegible] Miss Belle Beach, who [illegible] driver, and those who [illegible] were Mrs. Edith Webb, driving the horse of [illegible] Vanderbilt, Miss [illegible] Rasmussen [illegible] all who drove were exquisitely attired in carriage gowns and hats.

Canadian Hunter Wins.

It is no slight task for a hunter to carry a man well over 200 pounds in weight over the six formidable jumps of the Garden ring. [illegible] the hunters here [illegible]. Hackneys [illegible] are now being [illegible] in all parts of the United States and in Canada [illegible] for the hackney is the natural high-stepper in harness, and by this [illegible] it may not be long before the champions will be [illegible] here, instead of being imported from the winners at Olympia. To bring home the point, four of the winning hackneys in the classes for the breeder were owned in different parts of Pennsylvania, and other wins were scored for Virginia, Illinois, Canada, and New York. The latter blue was captured by Clarence H. Mackay with Miss Burns, a filly bred at his Roslyn estate.

DAY WITH THE JUDGES.

From a horseman's standpoint the second day's judging at the Garden brought out many of the horses which will figure prominently in the awards during the week. With the completion of the novice classes the more important events came in for attention at the hands of the ring officials. It was a day of triumph for the women, and, while the classes in which they competed were somewhat limited, they made a splendid showing in the events in which they were opposed by men.

One of the most notable victories scored by women was that of Miss Loula Long of Kansas City, a newcomer in horse show circles in the East. Miss Long won the roadster class with Aspiration from twenty-one competitors. This is the first time a woman has driven a winning horse in the roadster class, which heretofore was considered to be the exclusive province of lovers of the light harness horses, although Miss Kathryn Wilks of Galt, Ont., furnished the winning roadsters in pairs and singles some years ago, but her trainer drove. Miss Long is identified with horses as a whip and rider. She handles every type of horse with equal facility and drives in a light harness rig as cleverly as when tooling a heavy harness pair, tandem or four-in-hand. This is Miss Long's first appearance as an entrant at New York, but she exhibited at Long Branch and Washington this year, besides being for several seasons the best known horsewoman in the Middle West.

Miss E. Viau of Montreal defeated Judge W. H. Moore, A. G. Vanderbilt, and other prominent exhibitors in the class for harness horses over 15.3 hands with the bay gelding, Earl Grey, although she did not drive herself. It was a pronounced victory over the American horses. In this event Miss Long secured the white rosette with her bay gelding, Appreciation.

Another blue ribbon went to Mrs. F. Ambrose Clark in the saddle horse class, which attracted twenty entries. Mrs. Clark rode her own horse Supplement against several European entries, but the victory was largely due to the manner in which Mrs. Clark rode her entry. It was one of the most important classes of the day, and the victory earned the rider unstinted applause from the spectators. Mrs. J. J. Donohue, Jr., carried off the premier honors in the competition for the Colin Campbell Cup for saddle horses with Harry J. Graham's Proud Prince.

Nine tandems in the class won by William H. Moore, with Lord Seaton and Lady Seaton, was the greatest showing of the "at length" sort of teams since the palmy days of the New York Tandem Club in the '90's, when Charles A. Baudoine, E. Berry Wall, who once harnessed a team in white; John H. Shults, Jr., Frank Beard, H. K. Bloodgood, and Charlie Bates were leaders in this style of driving.

The Plaza Cup contest displayed the good training of the American militia and regular service mounts. Trooper, the entry of Major Howard K. Brown, First Cavalry, N. Y. N. G., won over the regular army entries, which included several foreign horses.

Max, the jumper, entered and ridden by Lieut. N. K. Herberg of the Akershus Dragoon Regiment of Norway in the international jumping competitions, was made lame through bolting, striking one of his forelegs. This happened on Saturday while the horse was being led from the Garden to the stable. Max was frightened by the elevated trains, and the injury may keep the horse out of competition during the show.

William H. Moore scored several victories during the day's judging. In the class for heavy harness horses over 14.2 hands Raeburn, a strapping bay gelding, won the blue ribbon from a number of high-class performers, including Ringing Bell, a former Garden champion, and Lady Dilham, another famous winner of blue ribbons when in the stable of Joseph W. Harriman.

Very little class was shown in the competition for the cup presented by Mrs. N. J. Hess for saddle horses over 14.2 hands and not exceeding 15. The premier award went to M. O. Ranger's chestnut mare Dainty Lady, which carried herself in good style, but lacked the qualities of a good saddler. Godfrey Preece sent the second ribbon winner into the ring in Belle Stewart.

In the appointment class J. Sumner Draper was represented by Rillington Nimble, which behaved so badly in the saddle class. Rillington Nimble was on her best behavior and made an impressive appearance, while the appointments were perfect. Miss Belle Beach handled the ribbons in splendid fashion and earned the premier award for Mr. Draper's entry. Broadview Farm's Summit was placed second.

The first award for militia mounts went to Alden S. Blodgett's bay gelding Justice from the First Squadron of the New York National Guard Cavalry. Twelve horses competed, but the splendid training of Justice was apparent from the first display of evolutions necessary for militia mounts. Covington, entered and ridden by Sergt. Charles McDougall of the Second Cavalry, found favor with the judges for second award.

Thoroughbred hunters occupied the ring for nearly an hour, with America and Canada as the only representatives. It was an interesting class, and the horses made a splendid exhibition over the jumps. Canada carried off the honors with the Sifton Stables, which captured first and second ribbons. Cleveland, a slashing chestnut gelding, captured the first prize and Elmhurst the second. Both horses were ridden by Jack Hamilton.

The first hackney class for two-year-old fillies went to Auburn Snowflake, a chestnut mare by Aquinas-Litcham Daisy, exhibited by the Auburn Hackney Farm of Pennsylvania, after a close competition with Princess Patricia, another representative of the Auburn farm. The winner is a splendid son of the 1911 winner of the Challenge Cup and carries many of the characteristics of her sire. Reginald C. Vanderbilt's Sandy Point Fascination secured the third ribbon and Clarence H. Mackay's Miss Burns the fourth. In the three-year-old class Mr. Mackay carried off the premier honors with Lady Burns, a well-built chestnut mare with plenty of fire and action. Kalmia, another of the Aquinas family, was placed second.

R. C. Vanderbilt Hackney Defeated.

Canada carried off the honors in the four-year-old hackney mare class for horses over 14.2 hands and under 15.1. The victory was an unexpected one, as Reginald C. Vanderbilt's Silfield Venus was expected to win. There was little to judge between the pair, but the [illegible] England's Pride [illegible] a well-built daughter of Rowthorpe Performer, influenced the judges in their decision. In the big division the Broadlawn Farm, owned by [illegible] sent [illegible] into the ring Bury Surprise, a magnificent specimen [illegible] Gerald Bury [illegible] Grandy, which [illegible] Willisden Farm's Copper Rosette and William du Pont's Kirkburn Lady.

The evolutions of fifteen officers' chargers brought out representatives from the United States Army, France, Belgium, and England [illegible] the road [illegible] of control and varied [illegible] This class [illegible] was followed by [illegible] thirty-four chargers from all nations [illegible] of the service. The final of this class will be judged this afternoon.

The Colin Campbell Cup for ladies' saddle horses over 15.2 hands went to Harry J. Graham's black gelding Proud Prince, which [illegible] possesses [illegible] and [illegible] ridden by Mrs. J. J. O'Donohue, Jr. Miss H. D. Atterbury's Nickel Plate [illegible] but [illegible] which [illegible] Walter H. Hanley's Sir Evelyn, with Miss Helen Rasmussen in the saddle, was placed third.

[illegible] scarlet regulation coats and [illegible] black velvet hats made a gallant show in the class for three qualified hunters from the hunt [illegible]. Only two teams appeared in the arena, and [illegible] a triumph for America over Canada. The Essex Fox Hounds were represented by G. Maynard, A. A. Fowler and W. Cleland, while the Canadian riders were Jack Hamilton, Capt. J. W. Sifton and Jack Sutton. The latter trio made a perfect score over the jumps, while one of the Essex club entries struck the top rail of the gate. As the conditions called for uniforms, appointments, and general excellence of the horses, the latter qualifications carried the New Jersey entry to victory.

The Dominion, however, evened up the score in the next event, which was for qualified hunters, when Capt. W. T. Rodden's bay gelding Outpost won the blue rosette after a keen competition from Mrs. Sidney J. Holloway's Caesar, formerly Dreadnought. Outpost returned a perfect score over the jumps and showed to advantage when lined up with the other entries. Col. Clifton Sifton's Ravello was third, and England secured its first ribbon of the show with Capt. R. M. Stewart Richardson's Dan Leno, which was placed fourth. The summary:

SOCIETY MAKES FINE DISPLAY.

Russian Ambassador and Mme. Bakhmeteff in Gay Throng.

There was a large and brilliant assembly of society at both the afternoon and evening sessions of the Horse Show. The afternoon performance drew a larger gathering of well-known society people, probably owing to the counter attraction of the opera at night.

The Russian Ambassador and Mme. Bakhmeteff made their first appearance at the exhibition during the afternoon, occupying Box 49, which the Ambassador has taken for the week. Mme. Bakhmeteff wore a tailor-made costume of brown and a small black velvet hat with beautiful sables. She had large and superb diamond earrings.

Mrs. Stotesbury in Blue.

Mrs. E. T. Stotesbury of Philadelphia appeared for the first time in Box 46, which Mr. Stotesbury had taken for the week. She wore a costume of gobelin blue and a blue velour hat topped with bluish ostrich plumes. Her earrings were large pear-shaped pearls and she wore several strands of pearls, a necklace of diamonds, and gray fox furs.

Mrs. Hermann Oelrichs, in black velvet; Mrs. Sydney E. Hutchinson, (Miss Edith L. Stotesbury,) who was in black with ermine, and Lady Hadfield, occupied the box with Mrs. Stotesbury.

Lady Hadfield wore a stunning costume of chiffon velvet of a bluish pastel shade, with a broad drooping hat of the same shade, and an ermine cloak. Preston Gibson, Harry Black, and Ralph Bloomer were visitors in the box during the afternoon.

Mrs. Alfred G. Vanderbilt, as usual, received her friends in Box 13. She was in black velvet with a broad black velvet hat edged with sable. Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell Henry and Mrs. Frederick Martin Davies were with Mrs. Vanderbilt during the afternoon. Mrs. Henry, who was with Mrs. Vanderbilt at Newport last Summer, wore a costume of black velvet, with a minaret tunic, with touches of ermine, and a large black velvet hat. Mrs. Frederick Edey, who was in black and purple, with a purple velvet turban, visited Mrs. Vanderbilt for a while.

Mrs. Joseph Wright Harriman had a party of young people for the afternoon session, including her débutante daughter, Miss Miriam Harriman. The Misses Adelaide Cannon and Mary McCagg, a débutante of the season, were in the party. Mrs. Harriman wore a costume of raspberry red with a black velvet hat, and Miss Harriman was in peacock blue with fur.

Mrs. R. Francis Hyde was in blue brocade velvet with a black velvet hat. At the evening session Mr. and Mrs. Hyde had Mr. and Mrs. George H. Church as their guests in Box 22.

Mrs. Henry Seligman, who was in bottle green velvet with a black velvet hat, [illegible] Box [illegible] Samuel S. [illegible] Mrs. Philip Lewisohn, [illegible] Stout, and Miss Waterman. [illegible] Melina, the latter being in taupe, with a black velvet hat.

Among the Promenaders.

There were many who promenaded during the afternoon, among them being Mrs. Charles de Loosey Oelrichs, who was in black velvet with white fox furs; Mrs. Stuart Duncan, in dark blue with sables; Mrs. Walter Watson, in black, and her daughter, Miss Mai Watson; Miss Elise Ladew, in a gray checked suit; Miss Marie Taller; Miss Mimi Scott, a débutante of the season, who paid her first visit to the show, and was with Miss Ladew, wearing a [illegible] frock of [illegible] velvet; Mrs. [illegible] Wilkes Cary, George Morris Phelps, in black; Mrs. Henry L. D. Pratt, Miss Pratt, [illegible] Coddington, Miss Angelica Brown, Miss Julia Robbins, Reginald Vanderbilt, Thornton Wilson, [illegible] Creighton Webb, who was with the Russian Ambassador and Mme. Bakhmeteff for a time; Louis [illegible] Mr. and Mrs. Berry Wall, [illegible] Henry [illegible] Barclay, [illegible] Watson, Miss Margaret Overton, Mrs. [illegible] Washburn, (Miss Paulina Clarkson,) Miss Vera Van Buren, Mrs. Johnston Livingston, Mrs. J. Gordon Douglas, in black with sables; James M. Breese, Mrs. Frederick Brooks, Miss Mary Brooks, [illegible] Miss Susan Fish Dresser, Miss Leonie Burrill, one of the season's débutantes; Mrs. George E. Nichols, Foxhall Keene, and Harvey S. Ladew.

Boston Man Elected as Head of Amateur Body to Succeed Kirby.

Alfred J. Lill, Jr., of Boston was elected President of the Amateur Athletic Union yesterday at the twenty-sixth annual convention of the national governing athletic body at the Waldorf-Astoria. The Bostonian was opposed by George F. Pawling of Philadelphia, the men having been for the last year respectively first and second Vice Presidents of the body. The vote was 23 to 9 in favor of Lill. At the request of Mr. Pawling the vote was then made unanimous.

The only man at the top of the ticket who held over, his selection being unopposed, was James E. Sullivan, as Secretary-Treasurer, a position he has held since he surrendered the Presidency some years ago. The Vice Presidents chosen were: John Elliott, Pacific Association; Theodore R. Bland, Western Association; George J. Turner, Middle Atlantic Association, and Fred W. Bauer, South Atlantic Association.

The report of Mr. Sullivan showed a most encouraging state of affairs in the financial department, a net gain of $3,161.56 being recorded for the year, with a complete capital in the general account of $24,877.52, attesting the strongest condition the Union has attained. The two greatest money getters proved to be the boxing and indoor championships, as these respectively netted $3,086.84 and $2,594.19.

The report of the outgoing President Gustavus Town Kirby, in which was incorporated in modified form his recently much heralded scheme for the joint competition of amateurs and professionals, was read and referred to the incoming Board of Governors for action without discussion. In connection with it was a scheme for the government of amateur sport in the United States and contiguous territories, in which it was said there were many good points well worthy of absorption by the governing body.

The plan contemplates the organization of a body to be known by the name of "The American Federation of Amateur Sports," or some similar name, with its chief objects being the agreement on the fundamental rules of amateurism. The outline of the plan follows:

That an amateur is one who competes for sport's sake, or, as laid down in the rule recently accepted by the International Athletic Federation, the following:

1. An amateur is one who competes for the love of sport.
2. Competing for money or other pecuniary reward in any sport makes the competitor a professional in all sports.
3. In track and field athletic sports one who knowingly competes with or against a professional thereby becomes a professional.
4. In the event of an amateur competing with or against a professional in sports other than track and field athletics, or for money or other pecuniary reward, then the member of the federation to which the athlete belongs shall be the judge of such competitor's status according to its own rules, and its certificate as to the competitor's status shall be accepted by all other members of the federation.
5. One who teaches, trains, or coaches in any sport for money or other pecuniary considerations is a professional, except, however, that an employe or representative of any school or other educational institution, who teaches, trains, or coaches as an incident to his main vocation or employment, may or may not be a professional, as the member of the federation governing such sport shall decide.

The suggestion of the New England Association that the governing body should take action which would prevent the participation by professionals of cooperation as members of the Board of Governors or as members of the various registration committees was referred to the incoming board, as was their request for a change in the constitution and by-laws of that association, the delegates being instructed to return their request in piecemeal, so that each section might be taken up separately. The New England delegates particularly sought the right through the Board of Governors for a particular time for the holding of their sectional titular events, a power which is now vested in the Championship Committee.

The Record Committee, headed by Frederick W. Rubien, attested to the acceptance of ninety-two new records. Seventy-eight of these were made on track and field and fourteen in swimming. Of those awarded for track and field excellence, forty-three are credited to Hannes Kolehmainen, who made thirty-one in outdoor events and twelve in indoor running, the record number made by an individual in any season.

There was some slight contention over the 42-pound stone record awarded Pat Ryan of the Irish-American Athletic Club, 28 feet 11¼ inches, it having been suggested at the eleventh hour that Ryan had fouled after his delivery by falling over on his hands. The game being essentially an Irish one, it developed that there was no rule on the books to govern the event, so the committee accepted it.

Dr. Otto E. Herschman, President of the Austrain Olympic Association, who is studying athletics in this country, was the guest of honor last night at the annual dinner of the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States held in the Waldorf-Astoria.

The newly elected Board of Governors and the associations they represent are as follows:

Dr. Herschman Marvels at Perfection of American Athletic Plants.

The great interest evidenced by Continental nations and others abroad in American athletics, and the desire for instruction in the best ways and means to further the competitive sides of the foreign teams which have only until recently taken a seemingly passive concern in the Olympic games, has taken a decided step forward with the appearance here of Dr. Otto Herschman, the emissary of the Austrian Government, who is studying American methods in track and field and kindred sports.

Realizing the wonderful progress made by the Swedish athletes through the medium of the adoption of the system of athletic training which obtains here, and which has been, since the revival of the games in Athens in 1896, marked by recurring successes, the Germans, who will have the honor of staging the next Olympic games in Berlin in 1916, have but recently been made aware of the conditions here which argue for such excellence by the German Imperial Commission, the members of which left for the fatherland a short time ago.

With the desire in view of being prepared for that time when Austria might be called upon to stand sponsor for the world's championships in all the sports in the Olympic catagory, that nation by its intention to take time by the forelock is now represented by Dr. Herschman, who was one of the contestants for his country at the first revival in Athens, his forte at that time being swimming.

Dr. Herschman is enthusiastic in his ideas of the possibilities of his country in regard to its absorption of the American scheme for betterment, and while he admits that his countrymen are only in the kindergarten stage as concerns their knowledge of the proper methods of perfecting themselves for such top-notch contests as occur in the athletic battles which concern the world, he feels that the time is not far distant when Austria's track and field men will put their country on the athletic map.

The Austrian envoy, who has been for a week past kept on the jump in his viewing of the various playgrounds, recreation centres, and similar projects of the city, under the mentorship of James E. Sullivan, the American Olympic Commissioner, Dr. E. W. Stitt, Daniel J. Ferris, and others, has marveled at the wonderful hold all kinds of sport have on the youth of the city. That it was this foundation work which almost aided in the telling of the story for the reason of American supremacy was not overlooked by the visitor was attested by his assertion that immediately upon his arrival home he would urge the establishment of similar schemes, which he was sure would aid in the physical betterment of the youth of his country.

While he admitted that Austria did not have athletes in such numbers as exist in some of the other continental nations, their sports being soccer football, swimming, and fencing, he is of the opinion that, with the rendering of his report to his Government, he will be able to awaken what he states is just a dormant condition, and one which only needs such a system as he has in mind, to show that his countrymen have the making of champions in those games which now attract the world to successive Olympiads.

Dr. Herschman has stated that that wonderful phase of collegiate athletic interest which exists here is practically unknown in his country, and that it will only need the right sort of practical example, through which the correct and easiest means of arriving at the end of athletic excellence is demonstrated, for the latent desire for track and field supremacy to become awakened.

As a practical athlete, and one who has continued some sort of exercise since his first introduction to competitive sport, he views the possibilities of his countrymen, and particularly the university men as second to none of the nations on the Continent who have been similarly handicapped up to date, because of the lack of proper tuition along the lines best calculated to develop them.

Lehigh Eleven Goes Stale.

Special to The New York Times.

SOUTH BETHLEHEM, Penn., Nov. 17.—The first day of the last week of football practice at Lehigh University saw the orders of resident Coach Keady carried out in full, viz.: that for the next two days the 'Varsity is to forget that there is such a thing as football and that the men, as predicted yesterday, have been told to abandon the training table until Wednesday. A change of diet and absolute rest from practice are the heroic measures that the coaches have adopted to take the edge off the 'Varsity. Meanwhile the regulars are finding diversion in various ways, a popular one being an effort to catch up in their studies; also to digest a new code of signals to be used against Lafayette. To-day the coaches had the full second-string squad out in an effort to develop men needed for substitute material, principally ends, and with this end in view there was an extensive punting practice, with Crawford doing the kicking. It has been rumored that among the coaches who will be on hand to help whip the 'Varsity into shape this week will be Frank Cavanaugh, the coach at Dartmouth, and a friend of Tom Keady, Lehigh's coach. Both are Dartmouth men.

Middies Out to Cheer Navy Team.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 17.—The brigade of midshipmen occupied the stands during practice this afternoon and encouraged the Navy team by giving the songs and yells that will be used at the Polo Grounds on Nov. 29, when the game against the Army is played. The presence of the midshipmen caused lots of enthusiasm, and undoubtedly did the squad a great deal of good. They will be present at all the remaining practices on the home grounds. Nicholls was at quarter back, indicating that he is the probable choice of the coaches to begin the Army game, unless something unforeseen happens. He ran the team with great speed and smoothness in signal drill this afternoon, attention being devoted to the plays which will be used for the first time against West Point. The coaches and friends of the Navy team fear overconfidence more than anything else, and are calling the attention of the players to the big scores made by the Army team in its last two games, against Albright and Villanova, respectively. They point out that the West Pointers have steadily improved and may be expected to be at their highest standard when the final game is played.

Penn Eleven Has Day Off.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 17.—With nearly two weeks ahead in which to prepare for the final game of the season with Cornell on Thanksgiving Day the coaches decided to give the University of Pennsylvania football eleven a rest to-day, and the entire 'Varsity squad spent the afternoon in lounging about the training house. All of the men, with the exception of Chester Minds, the full back, came out of the Michigan game in the best of shape. Minds is still carrying his arm in a sling as a result of the injury to his shoulder sustained in the Dartmouth game, and grave fears are being held out that he will be lost to the team for the contest with Cornell. The coaches plan to work the team at an easy pace for the next few days, and it will likely be Thursday before another scrimmaging is given the regulars.

Michigan Football Captains.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Nov. 17.—James W. Raynsford, '15, engineer of Detroit, was to-day elected Captain of the University of Michigan football eleven for 1914. Raynsford has been playing left end this Fall.

LANSING, Mich., Nov. 17.—George E. Julian of Rochester, N. Y., was to-day elected Captain of the Michigan Agricultural College football eleven for 1914.

YALE MEN ALL FIT TO PLAY HARVARD

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 17.—"Every Yale player who faced Princeton last Saturday will be in shape to go against Harvard," said John Mack, the Yale trainer to-night.

Mack returned to-day from Fairfield, where he went with the regular squad Saturday night, and looked after the two elevens that fought out two hours drill to-day in order to give the substitutes who will be used Saturday some practice with the Harvard formations.

Two players who were in the Princeton game, Nate Wheeler and "Bud" Wiser, were on the 'Varsity eleven that was marshalled. Wheeler caught punts perfectly and Wiser was the stellar ground gainer of the afternoon, crashing through centre for 40 yards at one time. Russell Cooney returned to the game and is apparently in prime condition. He was tried as snap-back to-day, and if he gets into the Harvard game, it will be as understudy to Henry Marting. Harold Pumpelly was given an afternoon of scrimmage routine, his first day to drive through the entire practice. He was placed at fullback and exhibited ragged form in defensive play, although he improved toward the close of the afternoon.

"Red" Brann, who has featured in quick recoveries of fumbles all the season, furnished the fireworks for the practice by snatching a poor pass from centre Miller to half back McDonald of the scrubs, and racing 40 yards for a touchdown. This closed the first 20 minutes practice which was devoted to testing the 'Varsity line with Harvard formations, which the scrubs used.

Taking the ball at their own 10 yard line, the 'Varsity drove back 90 yards in eighty plays, long dashes by Wiser and MacLeish covering half the distance.

Wheeler kept the eleven on the high gear and the regulars were never held till the third down. Arnold's smashing through and Loughridge's open field play starred for the rush line members. The coaches present included Howard Jones, Spalding, Bomeisler, Gallauer, Bull and Heffelfinger and the practice was secret.

The regulars returned to-night in time for supper at their training table, every table apparently in the pink of form. Captain Ketcham said that he believed every member would be able to get into the Harvard game.

By way of variety to-night the Yale football eleven relaxed training hours and attended an entertainment in the Prospect Hill residence of Major Louis Stoddard. Several players from the Poli Circuit appeared before the players, who were allowed considerable liberty in their diet for the evening.

TO BRACE HARVARD RUSH LINE

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Nov. 17.—Harvard began its last week's work to-day in preparation for the Yale game, all hands being in good shape, and the Crimson is now assured of being able to send its best and strongest team against the Blue. Hitchcock wrenched his ankle in the Brown game, but the injury did not amount to much, and he will not be handicapped, except that he will not work too hard until the middle of the week. The next four days will be spent in getting the team in shape on the offensive, and in inspiring the eleven with "ginger," which was more apparent at the beginning of the season than it has been lately.

Yale's showing against the Tigers has inspired the Harvard, 1912, champions with the knowledge that only their best football will suffice to beat Yale, and that the result of the game will depend largely on the fighting qualities of the eleven as much as on the football the elevens have to put on.

The Harvard coaches art not yet satisfied with the work of their rush line, and every effort will be made to get the players together. The return of Trumbull to play centre will be a great asset in the week's work, as Trumbull not only is the best fighter on the team, but also is a leader whom every one follows. He is ready to play, but at the same time there is grave doubts of his being able to remain throughout the game. He attended the Yale-Princeton match at New Haven, and was much impressed with the New Haven rush line.

The week's work will include considerable defense, although it is doubtful whether the players will be allowed to scrimmage.

On attack there are also many plays to get running smooth, and all week the punters and drop-kickers will be busy, for, more than ever, it looks as if the kicking game would figure largely on Saturday.

The team will go to the country probably on Friday, as it is understood that the Faculty is inclined not to favor an earlier departure. The betting on the game has fallen off since Harvard refused to continue the 10 to 6 odds that were offered so profusely a couple of weeks ago. Yale will not give even money, and Harvard, with its veteran team and last year's record as well as that of this Fall, probably will have to return to at least 10 to 8 odds to do business.

Lafayette Seems Overtrained.

EASTON, Penn., Nov. 17.—This afternoon on March Field Lafayette eleven started its preparation for the game with Lehigh, the biggest game on the schedule of each team. There are mingled feelings of rejoicing and sorrow among the coaches and those who are close to the team—rejoicing because there is not a serious injury on the team and, barring accidents, Lafayette will present her strongest line-up on Saturday; sorrow because there are evidence that Lafayette is not in the best of condition as a team. There are evidences of overtraining. This was seen in the game on Saturday, especially in the case of Scheeren. To-day when the men worked on March Field there were still further signs of this unfortunate state of affairs. The men tried their best, but there was a certain slowness and artificiality in their spirits which showed that they were not just on edge as they should be in a crisis like this. However, there are four more days to go.

The practice this afternoon was confined strictly to signal work on the new plays. The team has had these plays for some time, but they have never been used in public. The purpose of this practice was to get the stiffness out of the men. After supper there was a gathering of the whole squad in Brainard Hall, where they discussed the plays to be used against Lehigh. These meetings will be held every night this week.

CORNELL PRIMING FOR PENN.

Coach Sharpe to Stand Pat on Present Team Combination.

ITHACA, N. Y., Nov. 17.—The Cornell football team began its practice this afternoon for the final game of the year with Pennsylvania. The Ithaca scouts who had seen the Pennsylvania-Michigan game at Ann Arbor returned with a full report on the Quaker style of play and the formations that Coach Brooke's team used against Michigan, and for an hour this evening Head Coach Sharpe explained these plays to the Cornell eleven in a blackboard demonstration, and from now until the team leaves for Philadelphia the 'Varsity will be sent against the scrubs in a series of scrimmages, with the second team employing the Pennsylvania formations.

The eleven came out of the Lafayette game in good shape, although a few of them were injured. Barrett suffered a leg bruise that put him out of the game, but it was said to-day that it was not serious, and that Cornell's star would be back in the line-up to-morrow. The coaches expect to get the players in tip-top physical condition for the contest with the Quakers, and they feel that they can do this and still drive the team hard throughout the week.

"The men need a pile of work," declared Dr. Sharpe to-day. He said that he was firmly convinced the newly organized eleven was stronger than the old, and that he intends to stand pat on it. On the other hand, he does not feel that the eleven did itself justice in the game against Lafayette, and was displeased at the ragged team play which the game brought forth.

CORNELL'S $50,000 APPEAL.

That Sum Needed to Complete New Athletic Field by Next Fall.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Nov. 17.—According to a report of the Cornell Alumni Field Committee, football games may be played on the new Cornell field next Fall, if a sum ranging between $50,000 and $60,000 is forthcoming in a short time. This sum would complete the football field and running track and build the stadium and inclosure around the field in time for the 1914 football season. The Alumni Field Committee has practically exhausted its resources. It will have spent about $220,000 on the grading of the track, the erection of the baseball cage, and the Schoelkopf Memorial Clubhouse by the time the latter structure completed next Summer.

In addition to the sum required for the football field and stadium, about $45,000 more will be needed later for laying out and equipping the baseball field.

The committeemen present, who include Col. Henry W. Sackett and Willard D. Straight, voted to designate the new baseball cage the Bacon Practice Hall, in honor of George W. Bacon of New York, Chairman of the Alumni Field Committee, and one of the most active men in the movement.

ARMY TEAM IN GOOD SHAPE.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 17.—The Army team came through the Villanova contest in fine shape. Benedict and Huston are now the only real cripples. The former is expected to return to the squad this week. He has been idle since the Tufts encounter three weeks ago. Huston's last workout was for a few minutes in the Notre Dame contest, but he, too, is expected to get back in time to play a portion of the game scheduled for next Saturday with Springfield.

The squad got their usual Monday curtain lecture from the coaches and were then sent through a fast and snappy signal drill. Head Coach Daly and his assistants will work hard with the team during the half-dozen scrimmages that are planned before the Navy game. The line men will continue to come in for special instructions. In both the Albright and Villanova games the forwards showed greatly improved form, but their playing is not yet entirely satisfactory to the coaches, and there may be one or two shifts in the line this week. All the practices from now until the navy game will be secret.

Indians Won't Be Caught Napping.

Special to The New York Times.

CARLISLE, Penn., Nov. 17.—The Carlisle Indians are looking toward the Syracuse game at Syracuse on Saturday with more apprehension than would be generally expected of the team which defeated Dartmouth so decisively. Coach Warner's men feel that superhuman effort will be made by the New York football team to catch them off their guard, as they did two years ago, when the red skins, in sublime confidence of their powers, ran into a slump in the Syracuse game. Carlisle will not be taken by surprise this year. To-day the dusky aborigines had a light practice. Notwithstanding permission was given the 'Varsity men to lay-off, nearly all appeared in togs so as to refute any ideas that they were banged up. Usual fundamentals were run through, and after comprehensive signal drill, in which the scrub teams followed the formations used against Dartmouth, a twenty-minute scrimmage closed the day's work.

The Carlisle officials this afternoon decided to decline the deluge of offers received from more than forty towns and institutes from the Far West and South for post-season games. The authorities feel that they cannot allow the Indian students to be absented from their studies, as would be necessary by a long trip.

Plan to Foil Ticket Speculators.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 17.—By a change in the manner of marking the tickets for this year's Harvard-Yale football game, the Harvard Athletic authorities hope to be able to prevent ticket speculation. On each ticket is stamped the name of the individual applicant and he alone will be allowed to use it. If a ticket is presented at the Stadium by a person other than the one whose name appears on the card it will be confiscated and the one to whom it was issued will be deprived of the right to apply for tickets to future games. Frederick W. Moore, graduate Treasurer of the Harvard Athletic Association, to-day began the distribution of about 27,000 tickets to Harvard graduates and undergraduates.

Morristown School's Fine Eleven.

Special to The New York Times.

MORRISTOWN, N. J., Nov. 17.—Morristown School is still happy over its victory of Saturday, when it defeated the strong Hackley School team 20 to 8. This game ended the season for Morristown in what proved to be the best the school has ever had. Seven games won was its record, and one it could well be proud of. Young Wendell, brother of Percy Wendell, Captain of last year's Harvard team, was the star of the team, and showed his mettle in every game. His friends expect him to make good at Harvard as well as he did at Morristown.

HOPPE RETAINS 18.2 BALK-LINE TITLE

Champion's Billiard Skill Too Much for Demarest in Match at Astor.

William Hoppe, the 18.2-balkline billiard champion, playing as he always does in championship play, with rare skill and cunning, successfully defended his title against Calvin Demarest of Chicago in the Ball Room of the Hotel Astor last night. Victory came comparatively easy to Hoppe, and he won by a score of 500 to 294. The champion's average was 21 17-23, and his high runs were 121, 81, and 57. Demarest started poorly, but made a great rally in the fourteenth inning, when he made a fine run of 115 and passed Hoppe. This rally by Demarest was the incentive which awoke Hoppe to his best game, and after that he clicked off the carroms in rapid succession, the balls responding marvelously to the wizardry of his technique.

The Ball Room of the Astor was crowded with enthusiastic spectators, including several hundred women. Even the tier boxes were filled. Both players were uncertain at the start, Demarest being very slow in getting started. Hoppe played with the same easy, careless skill which makes him a cue master. His conception of angles was wonderful. He played fast, chosing his shots with good judgment and seldom erring. The champion's high run of 121 saw him at his best. He showed a great versatility of play and a certainty of execution. Both players were at times daring and their intricate solution of many shots was greeted with genuinely enthusiastic applause. Hoppe had seven zero innings, an unusually large number of misses for him, while Demarest failed to score in six innings.

Demarest won the bank and chose the white ball. He missed the first shot, and Hoppe followed suit. The Chicago youth was perceptibly nervous, and missed a natural carrom after tallying 4 in the second. Hoppe rolled up 1 in the third, but, after resorting to three cushion shots, failed to gather the balls. In the fourth, after Demarest seemed to be in his stride, he missed an easy draw on his ninth shot. The champion had the balls under good control in the sixth and clicked off 39, when his run terminated on a miscue. In this collection of tallies Hoppe found the balls lined up closely on his twenty-first shot. He got out of the difficulty by playing a beautiful bank shot. He registered his thirty-sixth point of this collection with a daring follow, which brought forth a round of applause.

Hoppe continued his skillful cue work in the seventh inning, chalking up 57 carroms before succumbing to an easy natural on the lower rail. The champion's twenty-seventh point of this run was tallied on a difficult massé, in which the cue ball spun more than a foot to the second object ball. Hoppe gathered another bevy of 55 carroms in the eighth inning. On this visit to the table Hoppe carried the balls from one panel to the other until he had carried the balls all the way around the table. After showing a deftly played nursing game, the balls spread out over the table on a too vigorous shot, and the champion then showed his skill at three cushions, gathering the balls again in the lower rectangle, where he fell down on a draw shot on his fifty-fifth attempt.

Up to this inning Demarest was still nervous and failed to get the balls under control. In the eighth inning Hoppe had piled up a commanding lead of 172 points over the challenger.

Demarest overcame his timidity in the twelfth inning, and after a dazzling exhibition of open and close billiards, he executed a pretty run of 58. After clicking off a score of carroms, the balls were spread widely over the table. With two vigorous three-cushion strikes Demarest brought forth a storm of applause by collecting the ivories at the upper rail, on two unusually clever draw shots of great length. Then he nursed the balls, shaving the balk line closely. His fifty-sixth shot was a long bank and a beauty.

This run of Demarest's came to an end when he missed a long follow shot on the side rail by a hair. After making a foolish miss in the thirteenth inning Demarest then gave as fine an exhibition of nerve as has ever been seen in an important billiard match. The challenger went to the table in the fourteenth inning, 107 points behind Hoppe. With great skill and rare judgment Demarest gamely climbed up on the champion until he tied him on the two hundred and first point. Demarest was cheered wildly for his feat.

He executed a run of 115 before he failed on a difficult three-cushion attempt, which he missed by a narrow margin. Demarest suffered a bit of hard luck on his one hundred and fourteenth shot, when he found his cue ball frozen close to the lower rail. The balls were spotted for the challenger, and he registered his one hundred and fifteenth carrom, but the balls were left widely spread out. The only solution of the intricate situation was a three-cushion shot, and Demarest missed it.

The challenger made 3 points in the next inning, but failed to get the balls out of balk.

Hoppe, undismayed at his opponent's great spurt, took the lead again in the fifteenth inning with a dazzling run of 81. Hoppe failed to get the ivories out of balk on his eighty-second shot.

The champion gave a wonderful display of the balk line game in this inning, his nursing at the lines calling a delicacy of stroke and a remarkable finesse, such as only Hoppe is master of. With the lightest imaginable contact of cue tip and ball, the champion kept the balls rolling to and fro over the balk lines, the kiss of the spheres being only faintly audible.

Following this run with cleverly earned clusters of 19 and 38 Hoppe reached a total of 339 points in the seventeenth inning, with a lead of 120 over the challenger. Demarest collected 48 points, when he was again the victim of a hard three-cushion shot.

Hoppe, in the nineteenth inning, tolled off 121 caroms, the high run of the game. The playing of the young master in gathering this generous collection was at times uncommonly brilliant. He showed a wide variance of play, the most spectacular shot of many being a six-cushion carom, which netted him his one hundred and twentieth point. Hoppe played open table billiards, and a close nursing game, as pleased his fancy. He collected the balls with marvellous skill, and the ivories gathered after each shot as if by magic response. This brought the champion's total to 462. Another pretty run of 32 brought Hoppe within half a dozen points of victory in the twenty-first inning. An unfinished run of 6 carried him to the 500 mark in the twenty-third inning. The score by innings:

Hoppe—0 10 24 2 0 39 57 55 0 0 3 7 4 0 81 19 38 2 121 0 32 0 6—500.

GIANTS WIN IN RAIN.

Oregonians So Keen for Game It Was Played in a Storm.

By JOHN J. McGRAW,
Manager the New York Giants.

Special to The New York Times.

MEDFORD, Ore., Nov. 17.—Wiltse had the White Sox at his mercy here to-day in a rainstorm game and the Giants shut out the Chicago White Sox, 3 to 0, in six innings. When Umpire Klem called the game the fans, who had paid $2 a seat, cried for more, but the work of Jupiter Pluvius was too much for the players and the fans too. The game was a farce, by no means, though Magee, our left fielder, did make a spectacular one-handed catch with an umbrella over his head. Jack Sheridan umpired in an overcoat, but it wasn't a cold rain.

When we arrived here rain was falling, and Mr. Comiskey and I wanted to call the game off, but the committee begged us to play, as Oregonians were keen for the contest. It was a pretty game, the first inning, particularly, when the Giants got the two-run lead. Then it rained for what might have been good for four innings, and it was some time before the game could continue.

Lobert and Merkle pulled out a couple of two-baggers and scored. Another run came in the fifth inning. Joe Rader, who was a member of the White Sox training camp here last Spring and a resident here, played third base for Schaefer, who has an injured back. Following the game a banquet was tendered us, and then we started for Portland, where a game will be played to-morrow, and a banquet will follow. The score:

GUNBOAT SMITH WINS BOUT.

Sam Langford Defeated in Twelve-Round Battle in Boston.

BOSTON, Nov. 17.—Gunboat Smith of New York received the decision over Sam Langford of Boston at the end of a twelve-round bout here to-night.

Smith at the start jabbed away with his left, supplying nearly all the action. Langford did not seem to be bothered by the long-range blows, turning many away without great effort and standing up under others without defense. Occasionally he interjected a right or left on Smith's body, but not until the seventh round did he make any apparent attempt to maintain the battle. Then Langford started a short-range fight, which in the eighth round resulted in opening Smith's cheek under the left eye.

Smith's cheek bled freely as the fight neared the end, the blood getting into his eye and blinding him. Smith seemed fatigued, and hung on to his opponent, while Langford, although apparently carrying more weight than at any time in his career, appeared the stronger. Langford escaped unmarked.

Italian Cycle Team Sails.

Maurice Brocco and Francisco Verri, who will make up the Italian team in the coming six-day bicycle race at Madison Square Garden, sailed from Havre Saturday on the French liner La France for this city. On their arrival here the pair will go to Newark and work out at the Velodrome in preparation for the long grind. The other European contestants will sail from Havre next Saturday on La Lorraine. Verri, who holds the Italian championship, has never figured in a six-day race in this country, but he has established a big reputation in European cycling circles. Brocco has appeared here before and is one of the most popular riders who has figured in the long races. Walter Rutt, the German champion, will be a member of the party which sails from Havre this week.

Water Polo at Columbia.

Water polo practice for Columbia's 'Varsity team began yesterday. Montgomery Maze, Captain, issued the first call for candidates. Twenty men reported in the pool in the university gymnasium to Dr. George B. Holm and Frank Kennedy, the coaches. They were put through a half hour's tackling and scrimmaging. The sophomores outplayed the juniors in a rough and exciting game in the pool yesterday afternoon by a score of 10 to 5.

Boxer Coulon Heard From.

CHICAGO, Nov. 17.—Friends of Johnny Coulon, the bantamweight champion, who feared that he had met with harm during the recent storm on the Great Lakes, were reassured to-day when a letter was received stating that he would remain hunting in the Canadian wilds for another month.

Mt. St. Mary's to Play Fordham.

The request of Mount St. Mary's College of Emmitsburg, Md., for the Thanksgiving Day game with Fordham has been granted by the Maroon football management. The game will be played at Fordham Field, and it will mark the first appearance in New York of the strong Mount St' Mary's eleven. It was expected that New York University and Fordham would clash on the open date, but the Violet eleven winds up its schedule with the Navy on Saturday and did not care to continue in training. The poor tackling of the Fordham wing men and the secondary defense in recent games has caused the use of the tackling dummy, and for the rest of the week the eleven will return to the fundamentals. After the Holy Cross disaster last Saturday at Worcester, Mass., Head Coach Tom Thorpe is sure to make a shake-up in the Maroon eleven.

BROOKLYN RELEASES MANAGER DAHLEN

Jake Daubert Most Likely to be Selected as Superbas' New Leader.

William F. Dahlen, manager of the Brooklyn baseball club for the past four seasons, was released unconditionally yesterday by President Charles H. Ebbets. The Brooklyn club owner declined to name the man who will succeed Dahlen, but declared he is well known to baseball followers. The name will be announced during the latter part of the present week, President Ebbets declared.

The release of Dahlen did not occasion much surprise to close followers of Brooklyn baseball. It has been rumored since the closing weeks of the past season that Dahlen was to be deposed, but President Ebbets refused to admit that such a thing was under consideration. Ebbets has always been a strong admirer of "Bad Bill," as he was named during his career as an active player, and he has continually voiced sentiments of his high regard for Dahlen as a manager. This feeling was not general, however, among the stockholders of the Brooklyn club, and it is understood that pressure was brought to bear on Ebbets which brought about Dahlen's release.

Jake Daubert, the Brooklyn Captain, and Harry Smith, who piloted Newark to a championship in the International League, have been mentioned prominently as Dahlen's successor since the rumor first gained circulation that he was to go. The Newark team is controlled by Ebbets and the McKeever brothers, and this fact lent weight to the Smith story. At the close of the regular season Daubert took charge of the Brooklyn team for a series of games in Cuba, and he is expected to reach Brooklyn this week. This fact, coupled with Ebbets's declaration yesterday that he would introduce the new manager Thursday, leads to belief that Daubert is the man.

The name of Wilbert Robinson of Baltimore was added to the list of managerial possibilities yesterday. Robinson is alleged to have mentioned recently to a Baltimore man that he was in line for the Brooklyn management, and the news came out during the recent Federal League meeting at Chicago. The Federal League at that time was angling for Robinson's services. Robinson has held the position as assistant to McGraw for the past few years, but three weeks ago he drew an unconditional release from the Giants. It is a certainty that such a release would be forthcoming from McGraw in case Robinson had an opportunity to take the management of Brooklyn or any other major league club.

Others who have been mentioned as a possible pilot of the Brooklyn team are Fielder Jones, who led the Chicago White Sox to a pennant and a world's championship in 1906; Roger Bresnahan, ex-manager of the Cardinals and now with the Chicago Cubs, and Jake Stahl, former manager of the Boston Red Sox. Of the last named trio Jones and Stahl are free agents, but it would be necessary to put through a deal with Chicago to secure Bresnahan. President Ebbets had a talk with Jones during the recent minor league meeting in Columbus, where Jones was looking after the interests of the Northwestern League, of which he is president, and Ebbets was looking after the Newark interests. Ebbets made no offer to Jones, simply saying that Fielder was too high priced to be considered. Jones answered that only a big contract would get him back into the game, as he is interested in big timber interests in the Northwest. Harry Smith signed a contract a few days ago to manage Newark again, but this could be broken easily if Smith is wanted in Brooklyn.

Dahlen's failure to put the Brooklyn team into the first division during his four years at the helm has made him unpopular with the fans on the other side of the bridge, and for more than a year they have been clamoring for his release. The showing proved the biggest disappointment, as the work of the team in the early weeks of the season, when it was a contender for first place with Philadelphia, led to the belief that a pennant was in sight. Despite its great start, Brooklyn got no better than sixth place, and when Boston beat out the Superbas for the lead of the second division Dahlen's leadership was doomed.

During his four years at the head of the Superbas, Dahlen did not land the team above fifth place, finishing sixth in 1910 and 1913 and seventh in the two intervening years. Not since 1902 has Brooklyn been able to finish in the first division. Dahlen has shown himself a good judge of players since he assumed the Brooklyn management and has completely reorganized the team. The only players now with the team who were there when Dahlen took charge are Rucker, Wheat and Hummel.

Newark Club Meeting Postponed.

The annual meeting for the election of officers of the Newark Baseball Club, which was scheduled to be held last night in Newark, was postponed until Tuesday, Dec. 2. The reason given for the postponement was that, on account of the serious illness of his brother, James, at his home in the Bronx, Charles H. Ebbets, President of the Brooklyn Baseball Club, and the largest stockholder in the Newark organization, was unable to attend. Considerable interest attended the scheduled meeting owing to the various changes of officers, which, it is rumored, would be made, and also to the current rumor that Charles H. Ebbets, Jr., would be selected as President.

Colored Baseball League Next.

PIERRE, S. D., Nov. 17.—Articles of incorporation were filed with the Secretary of State here to-day for the Colored National Baseball League of the United States. The league is capitalized for $50,000, and is backed by Chicago men.

Swedish Protest of Olympic Rule.

STOCKHOLM, Nov. 17.—The Swedish Olympic Committee has sent two delegates to Berlin to protest against the proposal of the British, American, and German committees to curtail the shooting programme by eliminating the running deer and several short-range competitions.

OLYMPIC CLUB OPENS.

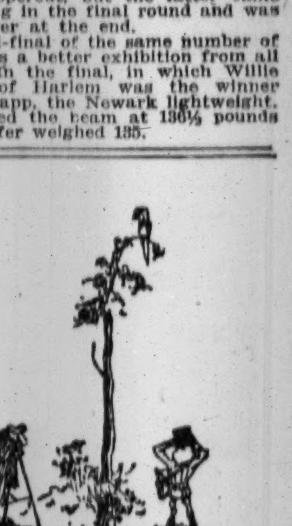
"One Round" Hogan Defeated in Ten Rounds by Haas.

The Olympic A. C. of Harlem after a lapse of several months resumed boxing last night with two ten-round bouts as the feature attractions. In the final "One-Round" Hogan of California essayed an Eastern come-back with Freddy Haas of Harlem as his opponent, and evidently got more than he bargained for in his reappearance, being defeated by a good margin. Hogan's weight as announced was 140 pounds, while Haas scared at 135.

The bout for the greater part of the time was a slugging match, as the only pretense at any clever work was done by the local boy, who managed to score many times on Hogan's face with a straight left. Hogan's only work was executtd at close range, and more than once he came in for criticism by the crowd for his unsportsmanship in hitting his opponent when his hands were locked, and also in the breakaway.

Haas had the better of the two opening rounds, during which the Californian's swings went wide of their intended marks, and Haas managed to get in some good jabs. As the bout progressed Hogan seemed to recover himself more than at the start, but Haas stood up and fought toe to toe, usually getting an even break in he clinches. In the eighth round he shook up Hogan with a right uppercut, but the latter came back strong in the final round and was the tsronger at the end.

The semi-final of the same number of rounds was a better exhibition from all angles than the final, in which Willie Schaefer of Harlem was the winner over ert Papp, the Newark lightweight. Papp tipped the beam at 136½ pounds and Schaefer weighed 135.



Seeing Snakes with Roosevelt!

The many friends of our Mr. Anthony Fiala, who accompanies Colonel Roosevelt on his South American expedition as manager and official photographer, will be interested to hear of his progress.

Mr. Fiala writes that his first stop was at Barbados, where he made a few purchases for the expedition; then to Bahia, formerly capital of Brazil, and then on to Rio de Janeiro, in both of which cities the party were guests of the Brazilian government.

Mr. Roosevelt left the party at Rio until mid-December, and in his absence Mr. Fiala has charge of the expedition. He will complete his equipment at Buenos Aires, whence thirty native paddlers will carry impedimenta to the headwaters of the Arinos River, where Mr. Fiala will establish camp.

When Mr. Roosevelt rejoins the party they will set out through Brazil; along the Arinos to the Tapajos River and up the latter to its junction with the Amazon; thence to Manaos and up the Rio Negro—from there on, it's a case of "We don't know where we're going, but we're on our way."

Much of the territory traversed is practically unknown, such as the Matto Grasso in Brazil, and from all accounts will put to the test Mr. Fiala's equipment, about which Mr. Roosevelt has expressed great satisfaction.

TACTICS OF CURRENCY LEGISLATION.

There was no mistaking the disapproval of the House Currency bill by the banking sentiment of the country, regardless of geographical situation or financial proportions. As the bill left the House it was too bad to be possible. As the Senate Committee made the necessary changes the bill gradually became too good to be Democratic. The Democratic conference put a stop to this process of amendment only to bring it into operation in another quarter. It is now the Republican turn to pander to the ignorance and prejudice of the politicians, rather than to enact the best bill they know how to frame. A Republican suggestion of a guarantee of bank deposits is a fair offset to the Democratic proposal of making the banknotes legal tender. At this rate there is not a single nostrum which the country has condemned which the bill will not contain. Congress seems to think that this is the year of the Lord and of financial-folly of four or five Presidential campaigns ago.

If the bill takes the form now indicated those responsible for its crudities and follies will undergo another painful process of education like that which taught the country that sound finance is the only policy that carries elections. The Republican plan, apparently, is to make the bill so bad that it will divide the Democrats, and give the Republicans a partisan advantage. The Republicans should know that this is not the time nor the topic for that sort of manoeuvre. The Republicans should support what is good in the Democratic programme rather than rival what is bad. The Republicans have the better record in this class of legislation, and are therefore more to blame than the Democrats for the affront to the country's intelligence in their present policy. If the Republicans have the patience to wait the Democrats are in the way to present them with this issue as the Republicans presented the Democrats with the tariff issue. But by yielding to the Democratic dementia they may disorder at once the politics and finances of the country.

Both parties act as though the country had no escape from accepting whatever Congress chooses to enact. The country no more has to accept fiat legislation than fiat money. Unless the bill embodies the sterling value of what the country knows through bitter experience the [illegible] of the fiat will cling to it in spite of all the politicians may do. There are more ways than one of [illegible] fiat legislation or fiat money. The banks are under threat that if they will not accept the bill they will be made to suffer loss through their bonds. There is no way to make the banks suffer through their bonds without the country suffering worse. What would it profit the Democrats to enact legislation containing within it the sure seeds of party defeat and national discredit? Let them put value into the bill and the banknotes, and there will be no need of fiat for either. If they put the fiat in instead of the value there can be no doubt of penitential days for themselves and for the country.

FORFEITABLE MOTOR CAR ACCIDENT POLICIES.

Suppose the automobile accident policies issued by the casualty companies should contain a clause providing that if an accident occurred during [illegible] increasing both actually and relatively to the increase of cars. If a man sets fire to his own house or barn his fire insurance policy is immediately forfeit. Why should not an automobile policy be made forfeitable in case of an accident incidental to a violation of the State laws?

President F. A. BROWN of the Casualty Claim Men's Association of Detroit declared in a recent issue of The Spectator that more than 95 per cent. of automobile accidents are due to carelessness, and that the "condition has reached a point where it "has become serious." Could anything be done that would meet this serious situation more directly and effectually than a statute requiring the insertion in accident policies of a clause such as that suggested? The objection may be made that an owner while responsible for the negligence of his agent—in this case a reckless chauffeur—should have the right to transfer his penalty of civil damages to a casualty company. On the other hand, if the owner might not waive damages he would be extremely careful in selecting a driver and in instructing him not to violate the laws. His life would be safer, and the lives of the public would be safer. We publish the suggestion for what it may be worth.

THE OPERA TICKET SCANDAL.

The deplorable scandal caused by the withholding of tickets for the opera, which had been bought through an agent and paid for, has not been silenced by the compromise through which this week's tickets have been released to their owners. It is likely that there will be many weeks of bewilderment and that litigation may be necessary, even if criminal prosecution is not had. Some dissent has been expressed to the opinion offered here the other day that all this trouble would be avoided if subscribers to the opera would take the little extra trouble required to get their seats directly from the box office of the Opera House. Yet that plan is perfectly feasible, and a general agreement of all the regular subscribers to get along without the aid of the agent, who saves them very little trouble at any time, would soon deprive those middlemen of any share of the profit on season subscriptions.

Of course, the agents would still subscribe, but only for as many seats as they felt sure of disposing of to chance buyers. We can scarcely hope at present for any such general public movement as would be required to suppress speculation in opera or theatre tickets. It was a great boon to get rid of the troublesome sidewalk speculator. The services of the various agencies are too useful to people who do not care to make up their minds too far ahead when they want to see a play or an opera. But in the case of most of these opera subscriptions the agent does nothing more than take over the vouchers for seats held from year to year in the names of the same persons and hold them for delivery. He performs a service which any clerk could perform as easily. Many subscribers have always preferred to get their seats directly from the box office, and they have been as well served.

WHO GOT THE MONEY?

For the people of this city there is one point of absorbing interest in the investigation begun by Mr. WHITMAN into the levying of blackmail in the form of campaign contributions upon the contractors for highway and canal work. It is, Who got the money? Into what receptacle or reservoir did these contributions find their way? The exceeding great solicitude of MURPHY to retain his hold upon the Democratic organization up-State, all through the State, has seemed to be a fact not wholly unrelated to the policy of highway and canal improvement under which the State is spending more than $200,000,000. The relation of political control to contracts has been made known in a thousand ways.

September and October are harvest months not for the husbandman alone. It has long been believed that in those two months the revenues of Tammany are customarily swollen by multitudinous contributions for campaign expenses. That the money is all spent for speakers, for the hire of halls, literature, postage, and election workers, would be believed only by the credulous. There is a very great probability that the graft trail which Mr. WHITMAN is following will, if he follows it far enough, lead him into Tammany Hall.

The District Attorney is having trouble with his witnesses. One of them almost collapsed under the strain of examination. Another, it appears, has reconsidered his half-formed resolve to become communicative. Is it fear that restrains their tongues, or is there some other motive? [illegible] committee, for a consideration. The Insurance Investigation, more than any other one thing, put an end to that. It is singular that the contractors should hold back, when by giving all possible aid to the District Attorney they might destroy the system which compels them to give up so much money.

Whatever the contractors may elect to do, the people of the State can have but one interest. It is that the graft in the highway and canal work may be completely exposed. The money comes from them, not from those who actually pay it over to the collector. It is paid by the people, either in the form of higher prices for contract work, or in the still worse form of fraudulent specifications or skimped performance. No investigation since Mr. TILDEN's exposure of the canal frauds almost forty years ago has been so rich in promise of punishment for the guilty and benefit to the people as the work which Mr. WHITMAN has now undertaken.

ABOLISH SING SING.

The State Prison Association points out the fact that since 1906 this State has been committed to the principle of doing away with Sing Sing Prison. The whole system under which this institution is conducted, for the reform of those undergoing for the first time a felon's sentence, is pernicious. The principle, first and last, is that of confinement, not of reform. Confinement breeds disease. As a disease-breeder Sing Sing has a record almost unequaled in the history of contemporary prisons. The physical infection is a sign, also, of lasting moral infection. The prisoners are not reformed. They are merely penalized, and in the worst way.

The State Prison Association has asked Gov. GLYNN to discountenance the pleas made for the renovation of the old prison and to expedite the plans for doing away with it altogether by building a prison industrial farm. The only plausible argument in favor of retaining Sing Sing is that the cell block may be rebuilt and amplified. That is, the principle of confinement may be extended, and it will cost the State less to extend it than to build a convict farm that could be run in the interest of really reforming the prisoners.

Such reformatories are sure to be healthful, since they require work in the fields, and not a life within dark walls. New Jersey has bought 1,000 acres for such a farm, Pennsylvania 500 acres for its central prison, the District of Columbia is building a house of correction on 1,000 acres, and Ohio is looking about for a farm site with broad acreage to replace the old State penitentiary at Columbus. In the Western States the prisoners are being transferred to the roads and fields, and cell blocks with their high prison walls are being abandoned. It is time we had more prisons like that at Great Meadow, where the inmates are locked in their cells only while asleep.

GOV. GLYNN.

It is a very practical beginning of economy in the State service which Gov. GLYNN makes by cutting the expenditures of the executive office in two. Seventy thousand dollars is not a large sum in the monstrous total the State spends, but the ratio of reduction is a striking one. The principle on which the reduction is made is also a sound and promising one. To stop the endless drains, to do away with extravagant show, to keep the appropriation so low that those who expend it will have to be careful at every point, and especially to leave no margin for pilfering and plunder, that is setting an example that gives the Governor authority and influence with his associates and subordinates. It sets a gait which he can, with great effect, demand that they also shall adopt and maintain.

Of still greater importance and cheerful significance is the offer Gov. GLYNN made of appointment to the Public Service Commission to Democrats of high standing. Unfortunately the offer was not accepted, but the standard was announced. It may be taken as notice to the Senate and to the party leaders generally that the Governor is not to be their humble servitor, also that he is not disposed to trade in State appointments, but will consider primarily the interests of the public. Doubtless at first the Senate majority will meet him in a chastened mood, and that will be his chance to establish good working relations with them on the basis of the standard of fitness for appointments which he has already adopted. Neither the Chief nor the Sub-Chiefs of Tammany can just now care to challenge further condemnation by resisting the Governor's plan to raise the level of the public service. They will for some time yet be too much engaged in escaping the meshes of the net which Mr. WHITMAN is spreading to [illegible]

ART, LETTERS AND THE SENSE OF HUMOR.

[illegible] or individually to dissuade their contemporaries from seeking such comprehension of art and letters as they may derive from any accessible sources. They make no claim to a monopoly of all the art and all the letters to be discovered between longitude 67 and 124 west and latitude 25 and 49 north. They have, as we infer from the all too imperfect reports of their proceedings, all they need in their business and they do not care who knows it.

That the country at large does not indicate any increase of pride in its aesthetic development because of their incorporation does not disturb the Institute or depress the spirits of the Academy. The fact of their joint corporate existence is established beyond dispute, and what more could reasonably be asked? To exist and to dwell together in harmony, felicitating each other, and avoiding the foolish dissensions which of old disturbed communities of the elect—these blessings satisfy our self-appointed guides. It is a pity, therefore, that although the annual love feast was held without a hint of bickering, there should be a controversial sequel.

To the utterly undebatable suggestion that the constitution of the corporation should be changed to admit women to membership, the adroit reply was made that the women might form an Academy and an Institute of their own. As that is precisely the plan followed by the self-selected "Immortals" and their associates, the reply was certainly sufficient. There is no earthly reason why any Americans, male or female, should not form an Institute and Academy of their own, to establish as best they may their ante-mortem fame. Some of the members, however, seem to have been "talked to" since they came home. They are trying to hedge. What ought to be an end of the controversy, however, may be found in a pertinent remark of Mr. ROBERT W. CHAMBERS, one of the Founders of the Institute. He, like the others who have spoken, believes that there should be "no distinction in art because of sex," but, he declares, "This sort of thing does not interest "me. You see, I have a sense of "humor." We do not believe that Mr. CHAMBERS intends to imply that his associates generally lack a sense of humor. On the contrary, he must believe, as the rest of us do, that they are all very much alive to the humor of the present situation.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Happiness Outweighs the Pain. Fox hunting has been defended before on the plea that to all concerned—the men, the horses, the dogs, and even the fox—it gave a large amount of innocent pleasure. This plea, because of its inclusion of the fox, has generally passed as a rather cruel jest, invented by somebody who didn't really care whether or not the object of the chase enjoyed a heart-breaking flight before savage enemies or its usual termination in a death hardly to be called calm. Now, however, that the Archbishop of York, in dedicating a memorial to a clergyman who had indulged in this sport, felt compelled to use practically the same argument, and to do it seriously, the theory of cynical jesting must be abandoned, at least for once, and one must give the case of the hunted fox more careful attention than it ordinarily receives.

Evidently the Archbishop admitted that the burden of proof rested on the fox hunters, and the best he could, or the most that he would, say for them was that their amusement was not necessarily or absolutely wrong, and for its excuse he suggested the undeniable possibility that "the balance of happiness" outweighed the pain inflicted, not only for the man, the horses, and the dogs, but also for the fox.

This is not easy to see, at first, but one can, and perhaps the Archbishop did, figure out the fox's balance in this way: Were it not for hunting, certainly few foxes, and probably none, would be allowed to live in such a country as England. To hunting, therefore, the English foxes owe all the joys they have, which are presumably as many, till the end comes, as they are capable of having, and that a violent death ends their existence is a fact not to be viewed from an anthropomorphizing standpoint, but with a clear remembrance that for animals violent death is natural death. With hardly an exception they all perish that way, and it is no worse to be killed by a dog than by any other animal.

The suspicion that there may be an element of sophistry in this argument must of course be dismissed for the reason that it is presented by an Archbishop. His logic simply must be sound.

His Last Service to Science. That the brain of Prince KATSURA, the "Elder Statesman" who has just died in Japan, was heavier by some 300 grams than that possessed by the often mentioned, but extremely rare, "average person," is, of course, an interesting fact. It puts the Prince, in that particular respect, in a group containing some very eminent men, but it no more explains his eminence than it tells why they were great. A vastly greater group could be made of people with big brains who did with them nothing at all notable, while fame has very often been both obtained and earned by those the material contents of whose heads would have made a rather poor showing if put on the scales.

That to man the size of his brain, in comparison with the rest of his body, [illegible] jection to "mutilation" that is comprehensible enough, and is felt in some degree by all, but its emptiness and harmfulness must be apparent to anybody who is willing to think about the subject, instead of simply feeling about it. What the surgeon does, even when he does most, is trivial as compared with what happens to the body when buried or incinerated.

Prince KATSURA rose above the ancient fear, and he had accomplished the even greater triumph of convincing his relatives that the execution of his orders was right and commendable. The ceremonies that marked this necropsy were a curious mingling of ancient ideas with those thoroughly up to date, and therein they were characteristically Japanese.

Researchers Called to New Toils. Latest of the many young girls more or less directly connected with "manifestations" that have passed for supernatural, or at least mystical, is one whose name, as cabled from France, has taken the rather incredible form of RAYMONDE BEEDLARD. Her specialty is a sufficiently ingenious variant of the familiar "stigmata" so well known to the student of psychiatry.

RAYMONDE, however, is not a neurotic of the class most given to the production of signs and symbols on the skin. Her miracles are more after the fashion of common fortune telling, for she is what may be called an epidermal writer who offers to the searchers after wonders whole words that appear on her body as a result of some trickery not yet discovered, and she is said to be an adept in thus disclosing the names of people met for the first time.

Of course RAYMONDE has caused a great excitement in the village of Picardy where she lives. Soon, doubtless, she will be in Paris, and later, unless detection comes too soon and in a manner too convincing, she will presumably be the subject of solemn investigation over here.

Those who like to believe in the supranormal—they sidestep the word "supernatural," nowadays—will say, plausibly enough, that to assume deception in a case like this is unscientific. So it is, in a way, but the innumerable past exposures of girls like RAYMONDE almost excuse the opposite assumption—that they are all frauds, either conscious or unconscious.

There is no more obligation on anybody to explain what they do than to detect the secrets of professional magicians.

APATHETIC GARDENERS.

American Owners Show Little Personal Interest in Plants.

Your correspondent, Mr. M. C. Ebel, in answering Mrs. Martineau's article about American apathy toward gardening, evidently knows little of the interest taken in this subject in England, and his remark that foreign visitors agreed that our great international show last Spring surpassed anything of the kind which can be seen abroad has nothing to do with the point. That show consisted entirely of greenhouse grown plants, and under glass Northern Europe cannot compete with us, because there is not enough sun.

American apathy to matters horticultural seemed clear enough to me when I found the international show nearly empty on the morning I went, although only 25 cents admission was charged. At the Holland House show in London last Summer it took half an hour to reach the entrance because there was such a crush of carriages, and nearly $2 admission was charged.

How many people in New York does Mr. Ebel think would go to a flower show at that price? Then he goes on to say that instead of leaving their gardens too much in the hands of gardeners the American owners of estates do not leave them enough, because they employ so-called landscapers and other "experts." But what I feel sure Mrs. Martineau meant was that the owners took so little personal interest. Whether the gardens are left to gardeners or "landscapers," they can't have the individuality or express long years of loving care and thought, like English gardens, and to any one fond of gardens it is truly sad to see how few owners of fine estates about New York know the difference between an annual and a perennial, or recognize plants when they see them.

I agree with Mr. Ebel that the landscape architects are doing a very great deal of harm because of their often complete ignorance of the requirements of plants. They seem sometimes to imagine that living trees and shrubs can be used by the yard like wood or stone, without considering whether they are to grow in sun or shade, in a sheltered or in an exposed position. And of stone, walls, balustrades, statues, &c., they use far too much, because stone is beautiful in Italy, where the mild, damp climate softens it with moss and ivy. The fact that moss and ivy die on a sunny terrace in this country seems to be ignored. If only their rich patrons knew more about gardening, some of the landscape architects would be unable to continue their ugly and expensive constructions.

What a great public blessing it would be if some one would start a crusade against the dreadful planting in front of our new library at Forty-second Street. Among other horrors, weeping forsythia has been planted at the foot of the wall. It should only be planted on top of a wall or bank where it can hang down. There are erect varieties of forsythia, and why are there no evergreens to gladden our hearts?

Thanksgiving Clubs for Strangers.

The spirit expressed by "W. J. L." in his letter concerning a "Thanksgiving Club" for homeless persons, where they may enjoy a dinner with "pleasant company on the side" is good, and I must take issue with your article regarding it under the caption of "Unhappiness Largely Imaginary."

There are residents of the city as well as strangers in it whose circumstances compel them to provide for the inner man away from a home, and, while you say "the faces seen in our restaurants are not often streaming with tears," it seems to me that some, though not visibly weeping, have hungry hearts and are craving for just such companionship while partaking of the bounteous bird.

It is not an "unhappiness" [illegible] but [illegible] that confronts the compelled [illegible] and a feasible suggestion or plan [illegible] contribute to eradicate that and [illegible] the life of a fellow-creature brighter [illegible] even though for an hour or two [illegible]

CITY COLLEGE PRESIDENCY.

At a recent meeting of the Associate Alumni of the College of the City of New York resolutions were unanimously passed to urge the Board of Trustees to choose the next President of that institution from among its alumni. The object of this letter is not to defend this worthy course, but to suggest for President an alumnus, the mere mentioning of whose name, it is felt, will arouse enthusiasm and support among all who know him, Prof. Charles A. Downer.

When President Finley decided to accept the call to a higher field in the world of education, the fitness of Dr. Downer to succeed Dr. Finley, whom we are reluctantly giving to the service of the State, became apparent to the writer. The manner in which many of his fellow-alumni to whom he has spoken have approved has confirmed him in his belief.

In Dr. Downer we have exemplified many of the characteristics which have contributed to the success of Dr. Finley: Scholarship, affability, devotion to the college and its ideals, leadership, and administrative ability.

The French Government has delighted to honor the head of the Department of Romance Languages by electing him a member of the Legion of Honor. For over twenty-five years he has taught in the public schools of this city, as well as in the college. The Board of Trustees has shown its high esteem for the man and his ability by repeatedly elevating him from one position to another in the Faculty. As the administrator of one of the largest and most successful departments of the college he has proved his ability. Imperceptibly, yet surely and forcefully, he has impressed those who have been fortunate enough to come under his influence as students by the strength of his character and the breadth of his erudition and wisdom. Surely no one is more in touch with the ideals of our city and its college or understands better the youth of our metropolis and how to influence it for efficient civic service.

INACCURATE STATISTICS.

A Protest Against Loose Quotation of Figures.

In the window of the headquarters of a woman suffrage organization is a placard reading: "Are you aware that a baby dies every eleven seconds throughout the civilized world?" As nothing is added, it seemingly implicates the anti-suffrage people of both sexes in the gentle art of murder or neglectfulness of the young. I plead not guilty; nor do I entertain the most remote suspicion of any acquaintance so addicted.

As a contributing member of the Brooklyn Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, I find in its last annual report the names of 961 others, of which 587 are men and 374 are women. A man sufficiently interested in the welfare of the young to contribute money for its preservation or attainment will willingly subscribe in the name of his wife if her interest is equal to his in the object. It seems not "By their fruits shall ye know them."

The above statistics of infant mortality may have been based on the atrocities of the recent Balkan war, in which, according to reports, the warriors of all the nations involved engaged in the slaughter of the innocents as a diversion. The promiscuous utterance of statistics of late years has passed from guesswork or carelessness to almost crime. Those issued by Government, hospitals, banking or insurance institutions are generally dependable because officially and conscientiously collected for important ulterior objects. The exact figures of infant mortality are simply unprocurable, because it is known that many of the so-called civilized countries have no national bureau of vital statistics.

The unreliability of quoted statistics is exhibited in that so-called average of human life which is variously published at from 34 to 46 years. The writer has seen reports from suffragette advocates that the number of females above the age of 20 who are engaged in gainful occupations ranges from 41 to 57 per cent. of the population of that sex. A local preacher recently declared that 70 per cent. of the males of the locality are affected by a certain ailment, whereas the annual report of the Surgeon General of the United States Army exhibits that only seventeen per thousand of applicants for enlistment are rejected for such cause.

Hence, if the principle of accuracy is involved, as it may be for important reasons, when statistics are offered as items of argument, it should be in order to demand the authority and next seek confirmation before acceptance.

INDUSTRIAL PRISON FARMS.

Outdoor Life Would Benefit Convict's Health and Morals.

I have read your comments and the letters about the whipping post in Delaware. Almost any form of punishment has its objections. Imprisonment is an economic loss, and hurts both the mind and body, while the whipping post is brutalizing.

Why this slow progress in the development of the prison farm idea? Wherever it has been tried uniform success has been met. A convicted criminal needs both mental and physical upbuilding. Many have tuberculosis already, and all are exposed to the disease by contact with sufferers and the insanitary prison conditions. Why not have a farm of 1,000 acres in central New York State? A building with iron bars, especially for the new arrivals, would have to be constructed, but on the lines of a hospital rather than a prison.

At first the convicts would work in a restricted or walled area, but on good behavior and toward the termination of a commuted sentence more liberty would be given. A five-year sentence spent in outdoor work and sleeping in quarters as nearly outdoors as conditions permitted would place the offender back in the world with a sound physique. A healthy mind in a body weakened by cell and workshop life cannot be expected.

The "Scotch-Irish" of Ulster.

There are a good many people besides Mr. Wall who would like to know why the term Scotch-Irish is so frequently applied to emigrants coming from Ulster, Ireland, and the question that confronts me is, How much Scotch and how much Irish is there in the composite?

History tells us that during the reign of James I. several counties of Ulster were escheated to the crown, and the lands parceled out to Scotch and English colonists, and I think it is safe to say that the people known as Protestant Ulsterites are the descendants of these settlers. But why call them Scotch-Irish, leaving the poor English out?

Any person who has lived in Ulster knows that the descendants of these English and Scotch settlers have, on account of religious differences, never mixed with the Irish, and I think it safe to say that they are almost as free to-day from any trace of Irish as when Sir John Perrot started his colonization scheme in [illegible].

PATENT MEDICINE MEN

Abraham Flexner Styles "Progressives" in School Board.

The difficulties surrounding the Mayor in the matter of appointments to the Board of Education are very largely due to the unjustified use of a single term utilized to conceal the objects and disqualifications of those who hide behind it. I refer to the use of the term "progressives" by people who, in everything but this deceptive name, are educational reactionaries, bent upon introducing into the school system of New York a species of mongrel control that has failed and been discarded everywhere throughout the country except in a few backward districts. How long are the people of this country going to allow themselves to be duped in this fashion?

I use plain words, but I use them deliberately. In all the negotiations and agitation attending the discussion and ultimate failure, first, of Mayor Gaynor's charter, and, next, of the McKee bills, I was in position to obtain a close view of many of those who are now seeking reappointment and of some of their main backers. My amazement grew at every encounter; nor am I yet able to decide which is the more remarkable—the presumption of men seeking to exercise a power and responsibility for which they possess no competency whatever or the folly of a community which intrusts its interests to the men who compose the present Board of Education of Greater New York!

The recent municipal election meant, if it meant anything, that the people of this city are determined to try specialized competency in public office. Will any one in his senses maintain that most of those whose terms are expiring represent anything remotely resembling specialized competency in education? What is there in their training, experience, temperament, professional or business careers, associations, or performances that suggests special fitness to deal with education—any more than with sanitation, engineering, or any other problem on which study, observation, and experience may throw some light? Out of the millions of men and women from whom the Mayor may choose, who will contend that these eager seekers after tasks for which they are unfit are the best choices that can be made?

I hold no brief for the present educational administration of the New York schools. But the transfer of educational authority to reckless and incapable laymen is not the way to cure its defects. To keep an educational system going, to extend, adapt, and improve it, is one of the most difficult tasks that can be imposed on human intelligence. The situation, the needs, the opportunities change and shift faster than old teachers can remake themselves, faster than new teachers can be introduced and made effective. Thoughtless persons who promise through administrative machinery and petty devices to triumph over inherent difficulties arising from such causes are, on the kindest interpretation, misguided patent-medicine men, be they inside or outside the board.

The remedy must be sought not through the ministrations of self-styled "progressives," but through bringing into the schools the most vigorous and resourceful trained intelligence. There is, to be sure, a pedantic type of school master and school marm whom the modern world has outgrown; they can neither help us nor serve us. The "progressives" talk and act as if there were no other type. As a matter of fact, modern education has developed a strong race of men and women, impatient of convention and tradition, and in thorough sympathy with all the needs of modern society. The real need of the New York schools is to fill every fresh vacancy on the educational side with a man or woman of this sort, constantly infusing new blood into the system, constantly drafting into its service the best talent procurable, in a continuous effort to renovate and improve. Any such policy will be frustrated in advance if the Board of Education is kept in the hands of those who are now in control.

NO BRYAN-MOORE FRICTION.

Secretary and Counsellor Deny Rumor—Talk of Latter Quitting.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—The revival of a report of friction between Secretary of State Bryan and the Counsellor of the department, Dr. John Bassett Moore, was promptly denied to-day by both officials. Mr. Bryan said that he did not know on what basis of fact the report was framed. The best of relations, he said, had always existed between him and Dr. Moore.

When the Counsellor was asked regarding the report that he was to sever his connection with the public service, he gave out the following signed statement:

"There does not appear to be any occasion for a statement by me at the present time concerning what it is alleged I contemplate doing at a date so remote as the 1st of March. There has been no friction between Mr. Bryan and myself."

Major Gen. Carter, in command of the border patrol, has authority to send the troops, and the request was turned over to him.

PANKHURST TOUR SHOWS GOOD PROFIT

English Suffragette Says She Has Made Money to Take Back for British Cause.

HERE FOR FLYING VISIT

Holds Conference on Outlook for Circulation of Vice Books—Plans Triumphal Homecoming.

Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, the English militant suffrage leader, made a flying visit to New York yesterday. For a short time she was at the suffrage headquarters of Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, and later held a council meeting with representatives of The Medical Review of Reviews. This conference, Mrs. Pankhurst said, was to consider whether it would be possible to circulate books upon vice questions.

"We want to find out whether a layman like Anthony Comstock," she explained, "will be allowed to suppress them at will."

Mrs. Pankhurst came from Boston, where she said her meeting at Tremont Temple on Saturday night was so large that the management made several hundred dollars more than the seating capacity of the house called for, partly due, she said, to the unsuccessful attempts of the anti-suffragists to suppress the Pankhurst publications, in this way advertising both them and the meeting.

Later in the day Mrs. Pankhurst cabled to England to contradict statements made by David Lloyd George, the English Chancellor, that she had been allowed to enter this country under certain conditions.

"I came in entirely without conditions," she said, "as to what I was going to do here or as to how long I was going to stay. When I was released I asked if there was anything for me to sign and they said there was nothing, that I was entirely free. The cable sent to English suffragists to the cable address of the militants, read:

"'Contradict statement Lloyd George that my admission to United States was conditional. Entrance entirely unconditional.'"

Mrs. Pankhurst said that she would have much to say at her meeting in Carnegie Hall on Nov. 24 of the social evil and the white slave traffic.

"It is because of these things that many women are becoming suffragists," she asserted. "They feel that not until we can help make the laws will these things be suppressed. I am not interested now in the fallen woman, but in the fallen man. Most of the women who lead an evil life are driven to it by necessity, and where there is one fallen woman she represents at least twenty-five fallen men.

"If a man steals your purse in this country and goes into another State he can be extradited, but if he betrays a girl with a promise of marriage he can go into another State and she has no redress. The whole status of women must be raised, and something must be done that she will not be held so cheap. At the root of all is the subjection of woman and her inferiority."

Asked if she had heard from Sylvia Pankhurst since she had been freed from prison she said:

"Yes, and she was vigorous enough to be ready to challenge a rearrest, if not in Hackney, then in Manchester."

Speaking about the army organized for the suffrage militants in England, Mrs. Pankhurst said:

"Sir Francis Vane is organizing an army to protect the suffragettes. They are doing the same thing in Ulster for another cause."

Concerning the proposed truce with the suffragists in England she explained:

"There can be no truce with us. The only overtures for peace that will be accepted will be those from the Government, and the only thing we will take is the vote. Edward Carson and George Bernard Shaw are preaching sedition, and the Government had better settle with the women, for it seems to be in the way of having a great deal of trouble on its hands.

"I shall leave here on Nov. 26 on the Majestic, and a big series of meetings has been arranged for me when I reach England. I shall land in Plymouth, where there will be a delegation from the union to meet me, and my first large meeting will be one in London to raise money for the war chest for the coming year. The members are already arranging their subscriptions. It remains to be seen what action the Government will take in this country.

"My trip has been most satisfactory, both from an American and from an English point of view. Many Americans who were not suffragists have come to hear me and have been converted, I think, and it has been financially successful, and I have made money to take home to support the English work."

WILSON SEES SUFFRAGISTS.

Good-Humored Invasion by Jersey Women Wins an Audience.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—Tired of waiting for President Wilson to receive them, a delegation of seventy-five suffragists from New Jersey invaded the Executive offices to-day by a good-humored show of force. Their determination seemed to please the President, for, as soon as Secretary Tumulty, after a consultation with two of them, explained the situation to him he ordered the doors thrown open and the women admitted. He then listened to their plea for a Constitutional amendment giving women the vote, spoke of recent conferences he had had on the subject with Congressmen, and shook hands with each delegate before they went away.

Representative McCoy of New Jersey had been sent early in the morning to the White House to arrange for a visit by the delegation. For over an hour the women waited for him to return at the headquarters of the Congressional Union for Woman Suffrage. Becoming impatient, they were about forming a procession to go in search of McCoy when he called up on the telephone to say that the chance of an audience with the President would be decided in the course of the day.

The suffragists decided at once. Under the leadership of Mrs. E. P. Feickert, President of the New Jersey Suffrage Association, and Mrs. Mina C. Van Winkle, President of the Woman's Political Union of New Jersey, the delegation filed through the streets to the White House, with suffrage banners flying from little walking sticks. There they halted for a council of war.

"The President is a New Jersey gentleman and too good a Democrat not to see us," said Mrs. Van Winkle.

That settled things. Mrs. Van Winkle and Mrs. Feickert went in and told Mr. Tumulty of their resolve to see Mr. Wilson, and Mr. Tumulty told the President. As they walked into the offices many of the women deposited their flags outside.

When they were admitted in audience Mrs. Feickert and Mrs. Van Winkle made short addresses asking the President to support in his annual message to Congress the Constitutional amendment now before the Senate giving the vote to women all over the country. They also asked him to urge the creation of a committee on woman suffrage to push the matter in the House.

DOLLAR SHOWS FOR STRAND THEATRE

LESSEE A MOVIES MAN

The long-discussed and much-expected invasion of the Broadway theatrical district by "dollar shows" culminated yesterday when the Anderson Gaiety Company arranged to take over the new Strand Theatre now in course of construction at Broadway and Forty-seventh Street.

And incidentally the leasing of the theatre by the Anderson organization for the purpose of giving that company's dollar shows a New York home is William Anderson's way of squaring things up with the managers of high-priced theatres who are preparing to enter the moving-picture field. William Anderson, known to every moving-picture theatregoer as "Smiling Billy" Anderson, has made a fortune out of the moving-picture business. Anderson, who was formerly an actor, has made a specialty of producing Western pictures in which he appeared himself in the leading cowboy hero rôle.

Last year Anderson was persuaded to enter the field of musical comedy production by J. J. Rosenthal, an advance man and theatrical manager. The Anderson Gaiety Company was organized and a musical comedy called "The Candy Shop" was produced on a lavish scale to play at dollar prices in the West.

The venture was an instantaneous success and the piece, which is now playing in San Francisco, has made a lot of money for its owners.

The Strand Theatre, which is to be one of the largest in New York, has been surrounded by considerable mystery ever since its construction was begun, although it was generally believed that the house would be given over to burlesque. There were rumors, too, that Oscar Hammerstein meant to take over the place for opera.

The date of the opening of the Strand has not been fixed, but every effort is being made to get the theatre part of the building completed as quickly as possible, and work on the building is going on at night as well as in the day time.

MR. HARRIS'S RECITAL.

Songs of Gentle Melancholy Heard in Aeolian Hall.

There was a somewhat too pervasive atmosphere of gentle melancholy enveloping large portions of Mr. George Harris's song recital yesterday afternoon in Aeolian Hall. A considerate and cultivated audience enjoyed the evidence of taste and discrimination that his programme showed; but the injection of other and more vivid emotion expressed in music would have avoided something of the monotony that made itself felt on this occasion.

Nor was Mr. Harris himself wholly to be absolved from a share of the responsibility in it. His style rather emphasized the prevailing mood than varied it; and there was too much of anxious searching after the ultimate refinements of delicate feeling. When he came to something of a more vigorous nature, or that invited from him a more vigorous expression, as the air from Massenet's "Werther," the results were more invigorating. There were interesting songs on the programme. Those by Grieg ("An einem Bache") and Wolf are among their composers' less known ones. Besides several representing American composers, Mr. Harris sang songs by Arensky and Tschaikowsky in Russian, and two by Moussorgsky, in German and English, respectively.

Mr. Harris's light tenor voice has sounded better at some of his previous appearances than it did yesterday. It suggested that he would do well to consider his tone production and forestall the occasional throatiness and even unsteadiness and false intonation that made themselves heard. It would be a pity if these things were more than a passing infelicity of Mr. Harris's delicate art.

The Behman Show, one of the largest of the burlesque organizations in the theatrical world, began a week's engagement at the Columbia Theatre yesterday. Two one-act travesties are presented, one being "The Most Contented Man on Earth," and the other a satire on Bronson Howard's "Shenandoah." The Behman company includes Lew Kelly, Eileen Sheridan, Fred Wycoff, Vic Casmore, Lon Hascall, George Douglas, Tom Martelle, Freda Florence, Laura Hayden, Ameta Pynes, and Gertrude Lynch.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Donald Brian and "The Marriage Market" will end their run at the Knickerbocker Theatre in two weeks and will move on to Boston. Another Frohman production will be brought into the Knickerbocker on Dec. 1.

The Mexican War pictures shown at the Hippodrome Sunday night will be put into the Playhouse and beginning Thursday afternoon the pictures will be shown whenever possible without conflicting with "The Family Cupboard." These four performances are now announced: Thursday and Friday afternoons and Sunday afternoon and evening.

"The House of Glass," a comedy by Max Marcin, is to be the next play produced by Cohan & Harris. Rehearsals of "The House of Glass" will begin immediately under the personal supervision of George Cohan, and the initial production of the piece will be made on New Year's Day.

The Drama Society will hold a meeting of its members and associate members on Friday afternoon at 2:45 at the Hudson Theatre. An address will be made by Canon James Owen Hannay, author of "Gen. John Regan," and Mrs. E. R. Hewitt, President of the Drama Society.

Montgomery and Moore of "The Pleasure Seekers" company and fifty chorus girls from the same organization were the guests of the Simpson Crawford Company yesterday noon at a luncheon in that concern's store.

FRENCH AMBASSADOR'S GIFT

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—Among the gifts received at the White House to-day was a large silver tray from the French Ambassador and Mme. Jusserand, a Louis Quinze pattern, much appreciated by the bride-elect. According to Miss Wilson's wishes no list of checks or gifts will be given out by the White House authorities. All the Ambassadors have sent gifts, although thus far only those of Italy, Russia, Germany, and now France, have become known outside the family circle.

The silver service which Senator Martine of New Jersey has announced as the choice of the Senate, has not yet been definitely selected, much less presented to the bride, while many extravagant articles mentioned in the local prints as gifts for the White House bride are still unappropriated at the local silversmiths.

The bridesmaids' gowns, it is now definitely stated, are of white crêpe, with the new net tunics with accessories of pink, the latter to give the color note to the entire wedding party. The gowns of Miss Eleanor Wilson and Miss Scott of Princeton will show the pink tone in a delicate hydrangea shade, those of Miss Brown, cousin of the bride from Atlanta, Ga., and Miss Mary White of Baltimore, will show a deeper coloring, while Miss Margaret Wilson, who is to be maid of honor, will have the color deepened into a real deep rose. The coloring is along the new pink, which shades from a delicate peach to American Beauty. The hats are of silver net, faced to match the gowns.

At least a dozen rooms have been reserved at a hotel near the White House to accommodate the large family contingent of bride and bridegroom.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph R. Wilson of Baltimore, the former the President's only brother, will arrive at the White House on Sunday to remain over the wedding.

MISS SHERLOCK A BRIDE.

The wedding of Miss Estelle Elizabeth Sherlock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Reginald Sherlock of 316 West Seventy-ninth Street, and Amedee Spadone, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Spadone of 141 West Seventy-second Street, took place yesterday at 4 P. M. at the residence of the bride's parents. The Rev. Dr. Ernest M. Stires, rector of St. Thomas's Church, performed the ceremony in the presence of relatives and intimate friends.

The house was decorated with chrysanthemums and Autumn leaves. The maid of honor was the bride's sister, Mrs. Paul Plunkett. Miss Blanche Spadone, a sister of the bridegroom, was bridesmaid. The best man was E. Stanley McHaig of Philadelphia, a classmate of the bridegroom at Princeton. Paul Plunkett and Constantine C. Galli were the ushers. Masters Reginald Mitchell Sherlock, brother of the bride, and Howard Sherman, Jr., of Montclair, N. J., acted as pages. The flower girls were the Misses Betty and Alice Spadone, little daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Spadone.

The bride wore white satin with a pannier of tulle and duchesse lace and bertha and a duchesse lace veil, worn with a spray of lilies of the valley. The veil was a family heirloom. She carried a bouquet of white orchids and lilies of the valley.

The attendants wore dresses of yellow satin with lace overdresses trimmed with edgings of brown fur and tulle sashes of yellow. Their black hats had gold lace brims. All carried bouquets of yellow roses and lilies of the valley. The flower girls were in white frocks, Watteau pattern, with girdles of yellow and pink bonnets and carried baskets of lilies of the valley on their arms.

WEDDED IN PLAZA BALLROOM.

Miss Hazel Carleton Married to Allen Tobey by the Rev. Dr. Hall.

The wedding of Miss Hazel Carleton, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. B. G. Carleton of 73 West Fiftieth Street, to Allen Tobey took place at 9 o'clock last night in the large ballroom of the Plaza. The Rev. Dr. Frank Oliver Hall, rector of the Church of the Divine Paternity, officiated.

The bride's gown was of white satin cut round length. The court train which fell from the shoulders was lined with silver cloth and was draped with silk tulle with silver leaves embroidered. Her veil was of lace and was caught up with a coronet of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley and orchids.

The maid of honor was Miss Mabel Forsythe, who wore old rose chiffon draped over shell pink and carried an arm bouquet of bridesmaids' roses. The bridesmaids were the Misses Marion Shaw, Anne Bridgman, Martha Birnie, Greta Woodward, Lucille Schulte, Margaret Peters, and Lillian Ulrich, all of this city, and Marian Stephens of New Orleans. They wore gowns of green chiffon over shell pink, and carried bridesmaids' roses.

Harold Tobey was his brother's best man, and the ushers were J. Allan Bertolet of Reading, Penn.; Gray Bryan, Brantz Bryan, Edward Griffith, Deam Mathey, William Carpenter, Frederic Seggerman, and Arthur G. Thompson of this city, all classmates of the bridegroom at Princeton.

Miss Murphy Weds To-morrow.

The wedding of Miss Helen Murphy, the youngest daughter of Mrs. Edward Murphy, Jr., of Troy, N. Y., to J. Norris Miller of this city will take place to-morrow afternoon at 4 o'clock at the home of the bride in Troy. Only the immediate families will attend the ceremony owing to mourning for the bride's father, the late United States Senator Murphy. The engagement of the couple was announced recently.

"STRANGE WOMAN" NOTABLY FINE PLAY

MISS FERGUSON BRILLIANT

Henry Arthur Jones and a number of other estimable gentlemen have made strong pleas for the printing and distributing of plays before the first night, which, for the weary critic, supposing that he did his duty and read them, would in most cases mean a mere duplicating of misfortune. But occasionally a play comes along that we wished we might have read before we saw it. Such a play, indeed, is William Hurlbut's "The Strange Woman," an exceptionally interesting and able piece of work exhibited last night in the Lyceum Theatre.

The reason we should have liked to read Mr. Hurlbut's play before writing about it, is that it presents with a very considerable facility and happiness of expression a number of arguments for that state of love which involves complete sympathy in ideals rather than the supposed sympathy generally held to result from the utterance of set forms.

Arguments of this sort are rather elusive things, and though one may get the drift of them in the theatre their reproduction without the printed page to guide is rather a difficult matter to attain. However, this much may be said unreservedly: Mr. Hurlbut, in spite of some rather overdoing of the domesticated types and incidents, has turned out an unusually fine piece of work.

The conflict of old and new ideas and the clash that follows an effort to press a doctrine of self-development in place of the time-honored one of self-sacrifice are the dominant resident impressions of the play. And its chief value lies in the fact that the conclusion is worked out in a woman's soul rather than in the outward conflict that results.

The latter, indeed, is obvious and natural enough once Inez de Pierrefond, beautiful, exotic, intellectual, and idealistic, is brought from Paris by her devoted lover and set down amid the constraining, narrow, worse than Puritanical surroundings of conventional Delhi, Ia., where 12 churches are "carrying on most of the Lord's work for him" and where the Rev. Mr. Meggs is a wonder and delight since "he can pray for twenty minutes without calling the Lord by the same name twice." And where Inez, pressed to name her religious denomination, must admit that she "isn't even a 'piscopalian."

Why under the circumstances John Hemingway has brought her into his mother's household, knowing as he does that Inez and himself have decided to live their lives on the "truer, higher plane," is one of those questions which will not down. But passing that by, the developments, when they are serious, are reasonable enough. Inez has been once married, and, for very good reasons, left her husband.

She refuses to consider the idea of being legally tied again. And she and John are merely deferring the moment when they shall inform Mrs. Hemingway of what they intend their life to be. In the meantime, however, John's uncle, the village Don Juan, tries to make love to Inez, and the various female hypocrites of the place make discoveries about her. They have heard of "free love," and they charge her with it. And she—in a splendidly written scene—confounds and abashes them. Then, when she is herself about to tell the truth to the mother, the latter's simplicity, humility, and gentleness work a spell.

The curtain to the second act, with the old woman wrapping a scarf about Inez's shoulders, the latter confessing that she is wearing "sackcloth," represents a fresh and exquisitely contrived treatment of a tender, appealing moment. Here as in several other notable passages, Mr. Hurlbut has widely skirted the conventional path to a period, and a result that his play gains immeasurably in depth and feeling and sincerity.

Mr. Hurlbut has been notably happy, also, in the writing of two or three passages in which John and Inez at first voice their complete understanding, then are forced to feel the difference in their viewpoints. For John, once he is in the old Delhi home she has met first in Paris while studying art, comes to realize how much the old ideas mean to the mother whom he loves. And Inez on her part voices the motive of consecrating her freedom to the betterment of the lives of others. But they are lovers, and there is no bitterness; only a mute consciousness of a cloud upon the blue.

There will be those ready to urge that Inez's ultimate conversion to the conventional idea weakens the character, but to our mind it gives her strength and conveys, indeed, the only argument in the play to actually suggest that with her the other path, too, might have led to happiness. For Inez realizes ultimately the perfection of self-sacrifice, and so, much to John's surprise, instead of a revelation, she comes forward with a plea to the mother to come and see them quietly married in the church.

There is so much that is fine in the play that one can but wonder why it has been cheapened with such antique and obvious artificiality as is represented in the sudden conversions of the Delhi-ites in the opening scenes of the last act, and why such overacting of most of the character parts should have been permitted as to almost throw the opening act into the realm of the drama truly rural. But in spite of these things there is much to be thankful for—a play of thought and depth and much cleverness in writing.

Moreover, the acting achievement on the part of Miss Elsie Ferguson is exceptionally brilliant, true, and pleasing. Conveying, to begin with, a completely illusory suggestion of Inez de Pierrefond's foreign environment, with a delightful suggestion of a real accent, Miss Ferguson sounds every note in the character completely and sincerely. In the clashes with the women who are her inferiors mentally and socially she never once transcends the limits of good taste. Always there is the suggestion of breeding, authority, and the comprehending mind.

SOCIAL NOTES.

Colin Macrae Ingersoll of 167 East Seventy-first Street has sent out cards for a reception on Saturday, Dec. 6, to introduce his daughter, Miss Coline M. Ingersoll. Miss Ingersoll is to give a luncheon on Thursday at her home, 167 East Seventy-first Street, for Miss Ruth Draper of Boston, whom she has been visiting.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl L. Victor are receiving congratulations on the birth of a son at 132 East Seventy-second Street. Mrs. Victor was Miss Martha K. Orr.

HER FORTUNE GIVEN TO RELIGIOUS WORK

$1,000 FOR FREE TRACTS

Missionary Societies and Bible Teachers in Heathen Lands Provided For in Small Bequests.

Miss Sarah B. Hills, who died on Nov. 8 and whose will was filed for probate yesterday in the Surrogates' Court, left the bulk of her property, valued at $150,000, to the Board of Church Erection of the Presbyterian Church in America and the American Sunday School Union of Philadelphia, instructing both institutions to use the funds in work in the rural districts of the West. The Board of Church Erection in addition to half the residuary estate received realty known as 213 and 215 Van Brunt Street, Brooklyn.

In explanation of these two bequests the testatrix stated:

"I have made these legacies in fulfillment of a most sacred trust received by me from my beloved brother, James R. Hills of New York City, who made me his sole heir that I might enjoy the use and benefit of his estate and dispose of his property in accordance with his wishes. It is to his love and generosity, and to his wife and to their faithful care of my property that I am indebted for nearly all I possess."

The other charitable bequests under the will comprised $1,000 each to the American Tract Society, to be used in free distribution of reading matter in the rural districts of the West; the Children's Aid Society, to be used in placing its wards among country families; the Hampton Normal and Agricultural Institute, for scholarships; the Women's Union Missionary Society of America for Heathen Lands, to be used in paying the salaries of native Bible teachers; the Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church in America, to be used in work in China, and the Board of Home Missions of the Presbyterian Church.

SUES ARTHUR HAMMERSTEIN

Wm. Pettibone, Asking $10,000 Damages, Says He Was Assaulted.

Charging that Arthur Hammerstein, general manager for his father, Oscar Hammerstein, in the latter's grand opera ventures, had struck him and thrown him out of the Victoria Theatre on Oct. 14, William Pettibone yesterday filed suit in the County Clerk's office against the younger Hammerstein for $10,000 damages.

Pettibone, who is a dealer in millinery goods at 21 West Thirty-first Street, said yesterday that he went to Hammerstein's office last month to collect a bill for goods which he had supplied to the Victoria Theatre. Instead of getting any money he was struck in the face by Arthur Hammerstein, he says, and then ejected from the building at Mr. Hammerstein's orders.

Arthur Hammerstein is out of the city, but employes at the theatre said last night that Pettibone, who was abusive, was ordered to leave the theatre and left without being unduly urged.

WEEK'S BILLS IN THEATRES.

In the theatres where the programme is changed weekly and where vaudeville, burlesque or stock is played the attractions this week include "The Blue Bird" at the Grand Opera House; "Trilby," at the Academy of Music; "Kindling," at Keith's Harlem Opera House; "Little Lost Sister," at the Prospect Theatre; "The Spring Maid," at the Bronx Opera House; "Snow White," at the West End Theatre; "What Happened to Mary," at the Royal Theatre; Al Reeves's company, at the Murray Hill Theatre; the Behman Show at the Columbia Theatre; "The College Girls," at Miner's Bronx Theatre; Roble's "Beauty Show," at Miner's People's Theatre, and German plays at the Irving Place Theatre.

At Proctor's Fifth Avenue Gus Edwards, with his Revue, and Frank Sheridan and company, in "Blackmail," lead the bill. Kelley and Emma Pollock in "Ginger Snaps," The Four Bards, Percy Bronson and Winnie Baldwin, Lockett and Waldron, and Montambo and Wells.

REV. ALEX. IRVINE AS ACTOR.

Before a large audience at Hammerstein's yesterday afternoon the Rev. Alexander Irvine, former night preacher at the Fifth Avenue Church of the Ascension, made his début in New York as an actor, appearing in a sketch which he wrote himself, "The Rector of St. Jude's." The ex-minister appeared on the programme following Van Hoven, "The Mad Magician," and was followed by Van and Schenck, cabaret singers.

The Rev. Mr. Irvine lost his position with the Fifth Avenue church on account of his socialistic tendencies. His vaudeville play is announced as showing what actually took place in the church when he was dismissed, and in the little play the scene is laid in the vestry room of St. Jude's Church. For preaching socialism the rector is ordered to leave by one of the rich vestrymen, who also has intercepted a love letter from the minister to his daughter. The girl arrives and admits her love for the preacher and sides with him in his fight for the workers, the rich man's employes, who are on strike. One of the workmen whose daughter has been shot by the armed guards of the rich man's property also arrives, and there are several violent arguments for and against socialism. The minister finally brings the two men together, both agreeing that the way to settle the social question is to vote right at election time.

The Rev. Mr. Irvine is far from being a bad actor, and, although his sketch is tiresome, it has many lines which appealed to the audience yesterday. After the fall of the curtain he was forced to make a speech, in which he explained that he had done a great many different kinds of work in the twenty-five years he had spent in this country, from "driving a milk wagon to acting on Hammerstein's stage." He went on to say that he found the people in the vaudeville world as human and as splendid as the people in any other walk of life.

WM. O'B. MACDONOUGH DEAD

William O'B. Macdonough died on his ranch at Menlo Park, Cal., on last Saturday, from a stroke of paralysis. He was in apparent good health up to the time of the attack.

A student of many subjects and with a mind trained for investigation, Mr. Macdonough gave many years to the study of thoroughbred breeding and tried intelligently to discover the general causes producing the horse which goes the fastest on the race course, and shows the best stamina and courage in cavalry use, in the hunting field, and in general service. He collected a mass of statistics which he was analyzing, and up to the last believed that his studies would reveal the cause of the variation in results when the best strains of blood were mated.

Mr. Macdonough had acquired a minute knowledge of blood lines and of the Stud Book and spared neither time nor means in putting his knowledge to the practical test. In 1892 he brought to his ranch in California the English stallion Ormonde, supposed then to represent the highest development of the thoroughbred racer.

Col. Telemaque E. d'Apery.

Col. Telemaque E. d'Apery, who was at one time Treasurer of the Ottoman Empire, died on last Saturday in Philadelphia, aged 88 years. Col. d'Apery served for more than forty years as an officer in the Turkish Army and rose to the post of Imperial Treasurer through the rank of civil engineer in chief of the Turkish Sultan. He was a son of Count Helie d'Apery, one of the staff officers of Napoleon. Miss Olive Harper, the writer, whose name in private life before her marriage was Ellen Burrell, was Col. d'Apery's wife. She died several years ago, leaving a son, in whose home Col. d'Apery died. Mme. d'Apery was the writer of sixty-eight books. One of her novels is "A Lotus of the Nile."

GUILD TO EXHIBIT EXQUISITE BINDINGS

MUCH SPLENDID TOOLING

Both Professional and Amateur Work Offered—A Majority of the Exhibits from Women.

Every one interested in beautiful hand-tooled books will enjoy the seventh annual exhibition of the members of the Guild of Book Workers, which will open to-morrow in the rooms of the Architectural League, 215 West Fifty-seventh Street. There is fine leather in abundance, exquisite tooling, and attractive and appropriate designs. The work is that of professionals and amateurs, and a majority of the exhibits are women's.

Interesting among the professional entries is one of Miss Edith Diehl. It is a guest book, and any one would be delighted to transcribe his or her name in it. It is bound in dark blue seal, the tooling, in fine lines of gold, forming a border. It is simple and effective, and the same worker has another book, the "Sonnets of Michael Angelo," with these same lines in the tooling. Miss Fanny Preston shows Whistler in leaf brown seal with tooled corners of gold and on-laid bands. Mrs. H. K. Pomeroy has a charming volume on impressionist painting, the sage green crushed levant with borders of flowers across top and bottom.

Especially fine is one of the largest books in the collection, the binding a beautiful piece of calf with only a simple medallion tooled in the centre, by Miss Eleanora Sweringen. This is the "Histoire de Louys XI.," the old spelling of the name. The same worker offers Maeterlinck's "Inner Beauty," the feature of which is appropriately the inner side of the cover, the doublour vellum, that most difficult material to work, tooled in gold, with on-lays of color. A book of verse in manuscript, which will be a treasured present to some one, has been bound by Miss Emily Preston in dark blue levant with corner designs tooled.

Stevenson's "Child's Garden of Verses" has been most attractively bound by one of the amateurs, Miss Katherine Dorshay of Brooklyn. It is in dark blue crushed levant, the decoration all on the lower part of the cover, the title and two straight little trees forming the entrance to the garden, with on-lays in crimson and green. Mrs. James Montgomery Flagg has George Barr McCutcheon's "The Hollow of Her Hand," a vellum copy presented to her by the author, which she has bound in royal purple crushed levant with crimson on-lay and fan designs in tooling. Edmund Burke Thompson has bound the works of De Musset, which he translated into English, in crushed levant with on-lays of dark red.

The work of C. & C. McLeish of London and of Sangorski & Sutcliffe is beautiful professional work from the other side, which is in a case by itself.

The guild was formed for the purpose of "establishing and maintaining a feeling of kinship and mutual interest among the workers of the several book crafts by forming a centre for the collection and distribution of useful and reliable information and by giving an exhibition of the work of its members in this and other cities."

The work of the guild members is different from that of foreign work in that each book is entirely the work of the individual while the foreign books are made by experts in the different lines of work. The latter show sometimes a more technical excellence.

Miss Elizabeth Thompson.

Miss Elizabeth Thompson, whose family is one of the oldest in the country, died yesterday at her home, 36 East Sixty-seventh Street, in the seventy-fifth year of her age. Her father was David Thompson, who, until his death in 1871, had been President of the New York Life Insurance and Trust Company for twenty-five years, and her mother was a Miss Sarah Diodati Gardiner, whose paternal ancestor, Lyon Gardiner, purchased and settled on Gardiner's Island, off the eastern end of Long Island, in 1639. Miss Thompson is survived by two sisters, Mrs. David L. Gardiner and Miss Mary G. Thompson, and a brother, Charles G. Thompson. Mr. Thompson, although retired from active business, is a Trustee for the New York Life Insurance and Trust Company and the Union Square Savings Bank. Miss Thompson was a member of the Colonial Dames of America.

MONEY BILL MAY GET TO SENATE SATURDAY

Meantime There Is Talk of Adjourning Present Session Sine Die on That Day.

MEANS MILEAGE CHECKS

Mann to Oppose Appropriation if Adjournment Is Taken So Near Regular Session.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—There were many indications to-day that Congress might adjourn sine die on Saturday. It has already been tacitly agreed that adjournments would be taken for Tuesday, the day Miss Jessie Wilson marries Francis B. Sayre, and on Thursday, which is Thanksgiving Day. Leaders feel that nothing can be gained by keeping Congress nominally in session for the broken week, while adjournment would facilitate the distribution of $225,000 in mileage, of which Senators would receive $50,000 and House members $175,000.

It now looks as if the Currency bill will be formally reported to the Senate by Saturday. If a caucus of the Democrats is then called to consider it, there would be no objection to adjourning the session, according to a statement by Senator Kern. Senator Owen, the Administration spokesman on the Banking and Currency Committee, said he thought adjournment would be taken, and his remark is construed as meaning that the President does not object. All hope of passing the Currency bill at this session vanished long ago.

In spite of the willingness of the party leaders in the Senate to put an end to the session there are many chances that something will intervene. The House is without a quorum, and should a motion be made to adjourn the objection of a single member would kill the proposal by disclosing the absence of a [illegible]

Mayor Is Ignorant as to His Whereabouts, but Does Not Worry.

Mayor Kline has had no word from Park Commissioner Stover since Mr. Stover went on his vacation more than a month ago. The Mayor's secretary, Robert Adamson, was asked yesterday about a report that the missing Park Commissioner had written the Mayor a letter.

"The Mayor does not know where Mr. Stover is," replied Mr. Adamson. "All he knows is that a letter mailed in Philadelphia last Tuesday was received on Wednesday by a clerk of the Park Commission at the Arsenal. So far as I know that was the last communication received from Mr. Stover. But those who know Mr. Stover are not worrying about his welfare."

Mr. Adamson said that Mayor Kline was not at all uneasy about the absence of Mr. Stover. The Park Commissioner, he said, had not had a vacation in four years and was entitled to one.

The official copy of the marriage certificate of Napoleon Bonaparte and the Empress Josephine, dated Paris, March 10, 1796, was knocked down for $500 to John Gilbert at the opening session of Part II. of William J. Latta's celebrated Napoleon collection. A letter signed Bonaparte, written in 1796 and relating to the campaign in Italy, was bought by Rosenbach & Co. of Philadelphia for $100. Two leaves of the memoirs dictated to Gen. Gourgaud by Napoleon at St. Helena, with interlineations and corrections in Napoleon's autograph, went to L. C. Harper for $82.50. Another letter signed Bonaparte and addressed to Marshal Berthier was obtained by Dr. Rosenbach for $85. A document conferring the title of Chevalier of the Legion of Honor on Louis Hubert, dated Saint Cloud, Aug. 20, 1810, and signed "Napoleon," went to W. H. Hoffman of Providence, R. I., for $102.50. Five lines of verse in the handwriting of Bonaparte's son, the Duc de Reichstadt, went to Mr. Harper for $48. Dr. Rosenbach paid $55 for a letter of the Empress Josephine, written in 1804. Two letters of Edmund Burke were bought by P. F. Madigan for $41.50.

Welfare Director Tells of Need for Public Laundry Plant—10,000 Families Aided Yearly.

The New York Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor held its annual meeting last night in the assembly hall of the United Charities Building, 105 East Twenty-second Street, bringing to a close a four-day celebration of the organization's seventieth birthday.

The hall was crowded to capacity, and the celebration programmes, bound in brown vellum, were the gift of Mrs. Helen Hartley Jenkins in memory of her grandfather's services to the cause of humanity in founding the New York Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor. They contained portraits of Robert Milham Hartley, with a brief sketch of his career. Mr. Hartley founded the organization in 1843 and served as its chief executive officer until 1876. He originated public activities to obtain improved housing, instruction in hygiene and nutrition, pure milk, care of neglected and wayward children, prevention of truancy, systematic care of the sick and crippled, better sewerage, cleaner streets, and sanitary markets.

Among the institutions maintained by the organization which he founded are the Sea Breeze Home and Sea Breeze Hospital, Surf Avenue and Twenty-ninth Street, Coney Island; Caroline Rest, Hartsdale, N. Y.; the Home Hospital, Seventy-eighth Street and John Jay Park, and the Milbank Memorial Bath, 325 East Thirty-eighth Street.

R. Fulton Cutting, T. Franklin Smith, M. D., De Witt J. Seligman, Robert Shaw Minturn, Percy R. Pyne, John Greenough, Henry G. Barbey, Charles Wisner, John Seely Ward, Eugene Delano, George S. The Women's Advisory Committee tendered a reception to the members and guests of the association after the meeting, in the course of which a collation was served.

CONSOLS CALLED FORGERIES

Suit Over Lot That Caused Col. Cornwell to Kill Himself.

A suit for the possession of $23,000 in consols was begun before Justice Blanchard in the Supreme Court yesterday on the ground that the signatures authorizing their transfer in the Spring of 1908 were forgeries. No accusations were made against any person in this proceeding, the only question involved being whether or not the signatures were genuine. It was intimated, however, that this particular transaction was mainly responsible for the sensational suicide on Aug. 5, 1912, of Col. Gibbons Gray Cornwell, commander of the Sixth Regiment, National Guard of Pennsylvania, and one of the conspicuous men in that State.

The consols were issued by the Securities Company of this city and are now in the possession of the Equitable Securities Company. They were formerly part of the Ann W. Roberts trust fund that aggregated $100,000, of which Capt. B. T. Cornwell, the Colonel's father, was executor. They were registered in the name of the Chester County (Penn.) Guarantee Trust and Safe Deposit Company.

It was charged that the transfer signatures were forged and that the bonds were used as collateral to bolster up the speculative stock account that Col. Cornwell carried in Philadelphia.

The Colonel was arrested in this city on Aug. 5 on the charge of having swindled Col. George R. Dyer, former commander of the New York National Guard, by selling him bogus bonds. It was charged that he had been guilty of swindling operations to the amount of $300,000. He was turned over to Constable William Mullen of West Chester, Penn., who started home with him. Just as the train was pulling into the Broad Street Station in Philadelphia the Colonel sent a bullet into his brain.

Among the witnesses yesterday was the widow of the Colonel, who told of having found a receipt from the broker to whom the consols were given by her husband. Two sons of [illegible], former President of the Trust and Safe Deposit Company, testified that their father had not written the signature on the bonds which purported to be his.

PEARL CASE ENDED.

Sealed Verdict Will Settle Its Ownership To-day.

A sealed verdict in the suit for possession of the now famous $18,000 pink pearl will be handed up to Supreme Court Justice Donnelly at 10:30 o'clock this morning. Mrs. Jules Vatable, who asserts that it belongs to her and not to Ludwig Nissen & Co., was certain yesterday when the case closed that the jury would find a verdict for her. But S. Stanwood Menken, the lawyer for Nissen, was as sure that Mrs. Vatable would lose the pearl.

Mrs. Vatable was greatly provoked at the delay. She confidently expected to get a verdict before nightfall yesterday [illegible]

CHARLES LAMB is authority for the statement that, according to Confucius, the art of roasting or broiling was discovered by the accidental burning of a litter of nine new farrowed pigs when a Chinaman's dwelling caught fire.

Not that the art is lost, but rather that, in the rush and roar of the modern minute, it has fallen by the wayside, neglected and forgotten.

COAL TERMINALS UNDER SCRUTINY

SIFT BURNS BROS.' LEASES

Trestles and Coal Pockets on Jersey Central Land—Manhattan Lighterage Co. a Railroad Subsidiary.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 17.—The groundwork of the investigation by the Interstate Commerce Commission of the anthracite coal roads to determine whether their rates are reasonable and whether they are obstructing interstate commerce was laid to-day with the calling of witnesses before Commissioner John H. Marble to testify as to the facilities of the roads for handling coal.

It was the object of the commission's attorneys to learn how these facilities compared with those for the transportation of other commodities, the labor costs involved, and the methods of operation, with a view to their relation to the freight rates charged. This testimony will be supplemented later with that of accountants and other officials who will be called to show the cost of the investment of the roads devoted to the transportation of coal. These costs will be checked up with the commission's own figures.

The witnesses who testified to-day were division superintendents and yardmasters of the Central Railroad of New Jersey and the Reading. They described in detail the methods of handling coal and the amount charged at the various tidewater terminals.

TO ISSUE BULLETIN ON ACCOUNTANCY

LIGHT ON STORE PROBLEMS

The National Retail Dry Goods Association will issue an eight-page bulletin on the subject of accountancy for retail dry goods stores early next week. It will contain a number of answers to questions arising from practical merchandising problems. A few of the more important questions and the association's answers follow:

Question 1.—"We wish you would submit us your method of figuring stock turnovers. We are herewith inclosing you figures of one of our departments for the year 1912. We wish you would use these figures in submitting us your method."

|---|---|
| Total of 13 inventory balances | $28,294.00 |
| Divided by 13 | 2,175.69 |
| Inventory Jan. 1, 1912 | $1,697.00 |
| Add purchases year 1912 | 11,522.78 |
| Total | $13,219.78 |
| Less, inventory Jan. 1, 1912 | 2,717.00 |
| | $10,502.78 |
| Merchandise cost of sales | $10,502.78 |
| Turnover | 4.8 Times |

Question 2.—"Will you please advise us what, in your opinion, is an average yearly percentage of loss on credit accounts in department store experience?"

Our experience with stores doing a considerable volume of charge business places the average loss at between one-fifth and one-third of one per cent. of the total amount charged. In cases where the loss has run higher than the limits cited above, there has been some special reason for the high loss, and should not be given consideration in arriving at a proper limit.

Question 3: "One of the problems that has arisen in keeping stock at cost and retail is the transfer of merchandise from one department to another. In our ordinary transactions we take off both the cost and retail of the one department and add the two items to the other department, but we have one or two instances where we wish goods transferred to one department, but wish the first department to make the profit. To be more explicit, we have a dressmaking department which we are satisfied to furnish with findings and small items at cost and retail stock, but on laces, trimmings, and silks, which are used in the dressmaking department, we desire that the original department make their regular profit."

The merchandise transfer form, on which goods are transferred from one department to another, should show columns for both price and amount under the folowing headings: Cost transferred at; retail transferred from, and retail transferred to. In case of the items which you wish to transfer at retail the amount under the heading "cost transferred at" and "retail transferred from" would be the same, and we suggest that in these cases the "cost transferred at" columns be left blank. When these transfers are recapitulated for the month's work the total of these transfers will be a credit to the original department's sale, or whatever department may be affected.

Question 4. "Please advise us if freight and express and traveling expense should be charged to the merchandise or the expense accounts of a department. How is the help of a soda-fountain and luncheonette department charged, such as waitresses, cooks, etc., to expense or merchandise?"

Question 5.—We have been at a loss to known just how to treat customers with reference to taking out on approval such goods as ladies' tailored shirtwaists. We have many times been asked by some of our best customers to be allowed to take out on approval as many as half a dozen tailored waists which are laundered in the very best style and fitted in the box with a pasteboard which makes them very attractive and salable. Usually these waists come back badly mussed, because of being tried on, and it is necessary to sell them at a big reduction. The thing we wish is a consensus of opinion as to what is the proper course to follow in selling this class of merchandise.

Every store than we know of is having more or less shrinkage in the waist department on account of soiled goods, which are returned by customers after having been out on approval. One store has been able to reduce this condition very greatly by placing a sign in the department to the effect that tailored and lingerie waists are not returnable. They do not enforce the rule strictly, but it tends to reduce the quantity returned.

The association has had an accountancy bureau for more than a year, under the direction of a well-known local firm of public accountants, and the foregoing questions and answers have been selected, with several others, from the large number of queries the bureau has received as most representative of problems confronted by the owner of the average retails store.

The legal department of the association, which was organized about two years ago and which is under the direction of Harold Remington, will also issue a bulletin shortly. According to Secretary Pinkham of the association, it will probably be ready to send out by week after next.

INSTALL 200 FIRE DRILLS

But Report of Cloakmakers' Board Says There Is Still Much to Do.

The Fire Prevention Bureau of the Joint Board of Sanitary Control of the cloak and suit and waist and dress industries reports its work to date as follows:

During October one squad, consisting of Mr. Rosenblatt and the two firemen, have succeeded in introducing fire drills into 200 shops, which gives an average rate of about 11 drills per day in view of the short month we had in October. During the first two weeks of November we have introduced drills into 75 additional shops, making a total of 275 new drills introduced during October and November. We have also made the first monthly redrill in 124 shops.

The Cloak, Suit and Skirt Manufacturers' Protective Association, and the Dress and Waist Manufacturers' Association, through their managers, have given very valuable co-operation and assistance in the establishment of this division and its success. The managers of the two associations have sent out letters to their members urging them to make application for fire drills. A letter was also sent out from this office to all independent manufacturers having shops above the fifth floor. The result of this activity was that we have received so far 245 applications, as follows:

It appears, therefore, that 151 members of the Cloak, Suit and Skirt Manufacturers' Protective Association, 191 members of the Dress and Waist Manufacturers' Association, and 473 independent manufacturers, who have shops above the fifth floor, or 815 firms, have not as yet responded to the appeal, and have not as yet made application for fire drills. Some method of procedure as to how to deal with these owners should be devised by this board in view of the fact that the board decided to revoke the sanitary certificates of all those firms who have made no applications for fire drills before Nov. 1.

This department was established by the board some time ago in anticipation of the fire prevention provisions of the State labor law, which became effective on Oct. 1.

WOMEN TO RAISE $150,000.

Plan Four Weeks' Campaign for Washington Heights Hospital.

The Women's Auxiliary of the Washington Heights Hospital was founded eight years ago and in celebration of the anniversary a luncheon was held yesterday at Delmonico's, when plans were made for a four weeks' campaign to raise $150,000 for a new hospital building on the grounds on 165th Street near Broadway. This hospital takes care of all the sick poor on Washington Heights. The district has grown so rapidly that the present buildings are greatly overtaxed.

During the campaign there will be a meeting at the Hotel Savoy twice each week, on Tuesday and Friday mornings, between 10 and 12 o'clock, to report on the subscriptions to the fund. At the same hours and on the same days there will be meetings at the hospital on Washington Heights, where reports by the uptown members of the auxiliary will be made. A committee of fifty men will meet to-morrow night at the Hotel Savoy to make plans for helping in the work.

The Women's Auxiliary was organized by Mrs. Adolph Heller, with a nucleus of twelve women. The auxiliary now has more than 625 members. The officers of the auxiliary are: Mrs. Adolph Heller, President; Mrs. Jeremiah C. Lyons, First Vice President; Mrs. Ernest A. Limburg, Second Vice President; Mrs. S. Marcus Harris, Treasurer; Mrs. Elek John Ludvig, Corresponding Secretary; Mrs. Henry E. Wise, Financial Secretary; Mrs. Henry Wolf, Recording Secretary.

SIDELIGHTS ON SELLING.

The general strength of the local cotton goods market is shown by the fact that recent price advances have in no way interfered with distribution. Some grades of napped goods are already sold up for the season.

Orders for the holiday season are now increasing the already heavy demand for women's neckwear. A feature of the present season is the discontinuance of boxing holiday neckwear by the majority of manufacturers of high-grade goods.

The early confidence shown in velvet as a feature fabric for Fall and Winter is fully borne out by the current fashions in women's clothing. Velvet has proved so far to be about the most popular fabric of the season.

CITY CLUB'S YEAR.

Congratulates Itself on Amendment No. 1 and Popular Opera.

At the annual meeting of the City Club, held last evening in the clubhouse in West Forty-fourth Street, these trustees were elected: For one year—Lincoln Cromwell, Joseph M. Price, Francis D. Pollak, and Henry C. Wright; for two years—George W. Alger, Richard S. Childs, Edward Kellogg Baird, Joseph G. Deane, Norman Hapgood, Alexander H. Spencer, Nelson H. Spencer, and Charles H. Strong.

The annual meeting was the occasion for the Board of Trustees' report on the work of the year just past, showing that year to have been the most successful in the club's history. This was true internally as well as in the club's civic work. Although $2,300 has been set aside for depreciation, the operating profit of the clubhouse has amounted to $4,863.22.

Attention is called to an amendment to the club's constitution, adopted within the year, which expressly imposes the limitation, always recognized in practice, that the City Club should not participate in any way in the nomination, election, or appointment of any one to office. Under the amended constitution, says the report, the club has been able to concern itself not merely with the machinery of city government but with the various economic and social problems affecting the city's life. The extent of the club's activity in one respect alone is indicated by the statement that during the last regular session of the Legislature at Albany the Legislation Committee considered in all 615 separate measures, favoring 84 and opposing 147.

The City Club regards Amendment No. 1, voted on at the last election, as its own, and speaks with gratification of the fact that it appears to have passed.

A special section of the report is reserved for the popular opera movement launched by the City Club and now in full swing at the Century. Says the report:

"No enterprise ever undertaken by the club has made it so widely known. It is no exaggeration to say that through this the City Club is known in every substantial town in the United States."

ARRAIGN GIBSON AS FORGER.

Cleared of Killing Mrs. Szabo, He Must Explain Her Affairs.

Burton W. Gibson, who several weeks ago was released after two trials for the murder of Rosa Szabo in Greenwood Lake, was arraigned yesterday before Judge Crain in the Court of General Sessions on four indictments, growing out of the handling of Mrs. Szabo's estate. Gibson pleaded not guilty to all four indictments, three of which charged grand larceny and one forgery in the second degree.

Gibson told Judge Crain that he had no funds and the court designated Louis Hymes as his counsel, and gave Gibson until Nov. 21 to make motions or change his plea.

Mexico Railways Pays Notes.

Through arrangements made in Paris last June, the National Railways Company of Mexico was enabled yesterday to pay $13,000,000 of 6 per cent. notes which matured Nov. 15. Funds were provided for this purpose by the sale of $26,730,000 of 6 per cent. two-year gold notes. The Railways will have no further obligations to meet till Dec. 1, when a half-year's interest must be paid on the new notes.

BUSINESS NOTES.

The Board of Directors of the National Retail Dry Goods Association will meet in this city on Dec. 4. The board will consider Elizabeth Gannon's preliminary report on conditions existing in the department stores of the country, and will discuss plans for promoting instruction in salesmanship in public schools. It will also discuss Secretary Pinkham's tentative profit-sharing plan for employes.

A recent report that a number of small concerns, backed by Dutch capitalists, had been lately incorporated in this State and would compete in the local condensed milk trade is creating no little interest among producers and dealers.

Max G. Conn & Co., Incorporated, were recently appointed American selling agents for the Rhenish Rubber and Celluloid Company of Mannheim-Neckarau, Germany.

Imports of silk fabrics at New York in the week ended Nov. 8 were valued at $951,058, against $669,564 in the week before. Withdrawals from bonded warehouses were valued at $102,484, or a loss of $38,714 from the previous week.

COMMODITIES MARKETS

WHEAT.

Early cables said yesterday that heavy rains had fallen over a large part of the Argentine, and threatened to do serious damage in the north, where the wheat is about ready for harvest, and on this news and strength abroad, prices advanced ¾@⅞c. Later cables reported clearing conditions, and during the afternoon the market sagged slowly until just before the close, when there was a sharp decline on the increase in the visible supply, and final prices were net unchanged to ⅛c lower.

Export bids were higher, and sales were reported of about 50 loads of Manitoba wheat, but while it was said that offerings of all American grades were smaller, stocks are still too large to ignore. Receipts were quite liberal at Northwestern points, and the visible supply in the United States increased 4,807,000 bushels of native wheat, while bonded decreased 883,000. World's exports for the week were 15,056,000 bushels, compared with 15,200,000 last week, and 14,864,000 last year.

In the local cash market No. 2 red Winter wheat was quoted at 97½c, cost, insurance, and freight, New York export basis, and 99c, free on board; No. 1 Northern, Duluth, 96¼c, free on board.

CORN.

Values in the corn market advanced ¾ to 1¼c early in the day on active covering on the part of December shorts and on general buying by commission houses, prompted by unsettled weather conditions in the West, which were expected to interfere with the movement. Advices from the interior reported larger offerings from the country and lower cash markets, however, and late in the session prices were easier, closing at net gains of ⅛ to ⅜c.

The visible supply decreased 1,410,000 bushels. World's exports were 3,197,000 bushels, compared with 5,535,000 last week and 6,179,000 last year. In the local cash market export corn was nominal.

OATS.

Prices in the oats market advanced early in sympathy with corn and on comparatively light offerings in the cash position and from Canada, but eased off late, closing net unchanged to ¼c higher. The visible supply decreased 28,000 bushels.

The local cash market was firm; standard white being quoted at 46@47c; No. 2, 47@47½c; No. 3, 45½@46c; No. 4, 44½@45c; ordinary clipped white, 44½@46½c; fancy clipped white, 47@48c, all elevator.

COTTON.

The cotton market was unsettled yesterday, with prices easing off after an early advance, and closing steady at a decline of 6 to 7 points on the near months and 15 to 17 points on January and later deliveries. Unfavorable outside conditions, such as the threat of labor troubles spreading in New England textile circles, nervousness over the Mexican situation, and talk of tight money markets abroad, seemed to be responsible for much of the bearish sentiment expressed around the local ring.

The steady tone noted during the early trading reflected covering by near-month shorts. First prices were 1 to 4 points lower, but this was better than due on the cables, and the market sold 5 to 9 points net higher during the first hour. Wall Street houses were good buyers of near months, supposedly for short covering, but the demand for December appeared to be pretty well supplied on the advance to 13.58c for that position, and the market eased as soon as buying slackened. Closing prices were a shade up from the lowest on covering, while New Orleans advanced 4 or 5 points after business here had ended for the day.

According to latest rumors, returns to one of the more prominent bureaus indicate a total ginning of 10,423,000 bales to Nov. 14. This would mean a ginning of over 1,500,000 bales for the first half of November, or the second largest on record, and returns in excess of any of the three preceding years. Southern spot markets as officially reported were unchanged to ⅛c lower.

COTTONSEED OIL.

A slightly firmer tone prevailed in the cottonseed oil market during the early operations, due to firmness in the near positions, which led to covering. The demand at no time was active, and late in the day, when offerings increased and were thought to represent selling by refiners, prices became easy and closed at 2 points net advance to 4 points decline.

COFFEE.

Prices were lower from the start, the opening being 8@15 points lower in response to weakness abroad and, with only occasional slight rallies, values continued to decline until at the close they showed net losses of 20@25 points. The Havre market was inactive but weak, closing at net declines of 2@2¼f, while Hamburg was ¾@1½ pfennigs lower. Cost and freight offers from Brazil were easy, Santos 4s being here at 11.70c, while Rio 7s were offered at 9c. Stocks in Rio are 454,000 bags, compared with 294,000 last year. The trade is not disposed to operate on opinions regarding the next crop.

The local spot market was inactive and easier, Rio 7s being quoted at 9⅝c.

PROVISIONS.

The provision market was firmer early in the day owing to renewed buying by commission houses, but the hog markets were lower, and late in the session prices lost about all of the early gain. Receipts of hogs at Chicago were 48,000; estimated for Tuesday, 23,000. Kansas City received 9,000 and Omaha 6,000.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Chemical and Mineral Substances Subject to Different Rates of Duty.

The United States Court of Custom Appeals has decided that chemical substances and mineral substances are distinguished for dutiable purposes under the tariff act. This was determined in an appeal by the Government from a decision of the Board of General Appraisers in favor of Kraemer & Co. This firm imported a patented plate powder, which was assessed by the Collector of Customs at New York at the rate of 35 per cent. ad valorem under paragraph 95, Tariff act of 1909, as an article composed wholly or in chief value of earthy or mineral substances.

The board sustained the protest and decided that the merchandise was properly dutiable at ¼ of 1 cent a pound by similitude under paragraph 54, as whiting and Paris white, dry. The Government then asserted that the powder was dutiable under paragraph 3 at 25 per cent. ad valorem as a chemical compound. The court, in affirming the board's decision, held that, as the powder contained 94.89 per cent. of mineral substance, it did not fall under the provision in the law for chemical mixtures.

The court, in passing upon protests by Meyer & Lange and others, decided that appeals taken by petition, omitting names of importers, but giving the protest numbers of the cases, were insufficient. All such appeals, the court rules, must contain the names of the protestants as well as the protest numbers. The merchandise involved in the case consisted of preserved plums in hermetically sealed tins. The goods were assessed at 1 cent a pound and 35 per cent. ad valorem under paragraph 274, act of 1909, as fruit preserved in syrup or their own juices. The importers demanded a rate of 2 cents a pound under paragraph 275, as plums. The board's action in finding against the importers was affirmed by the court.

MISCELLANEOUS MARKETS.

BEEF.—There were no wholesale price changes yesterday for Western beef cuts.

SUGAR.—No change was reported in the local refined sugar market. The raw sugar market was firmer yesterday, and, although no sales were reported, buyers were willing to take supplies at Saturday's price levels, which were $3.67 for centrifugal, $3.17 for muscovado, and $2.92 for molasses sugar. The London beet sugar market was steady and unchanged at 9s 5¼d for November, 9s 6d for December, and 9s 10½d for May.

MOLASSES AND SYRUPS.—Molasses prices were firm yesterday owing to the strike in the Southwest, which may somewhat retard the movement. There was a fair demand from local jobbers, but prices showed no change. The demand for syrups was light and prices were unchanged.

RICE.—The demand for rice was small yesterday and prices were as last quoted.

FLOUR AND MEAL.—The flour market was inactive and buyers were inclined to hold off because of the feverish undertone in the wheat market.

OILS.—No price changes were reported in the oil market.

NAVAL STORES.—The turpentine market was firmer as a result of the higher prices at Savannah. The demand, however, was small and prices were unchanged. Resin was steady and tar was dull and unchanged.

CONSULAR TRADE NOTES.

A report from Greece says that a French syndicate with a capital of $8,000,000 is studying the possibilities of agricultural development in Macedonia and Thessaly, and that a Graeco-French company is about to apply for a concession of the numerous and valuable Grecian medicinal springs in that locality.

A recent Nanking dispatch says that a syndicate comprising numerous merchants of that city has been formed to rebuild as rapidly as possible the houses and factories that were destroyed in the last revolution.

IN THE BUSINESS WORLD

Coupons Not Trading Stamps.

An important decision favoring the United Cigar Stores Company of America was handed down recently at New Orleans by Judge King of the Civil District Court, in which he held that the coupons distributed by the company with its sales could not be classified as trading stamps. The decision was rendered in a suit brought against the United Company by the Louisiana Tax Collector, through which the State sought to collect the heavy tax levied on trading stamp companies operating there. The opinion of Judge King was based partly on the fact that the United Company redeemed its coupons without their being used in general trade. It is said that the decision will probably be appealed.

Co-operative Investing Plan.

A new plan for encouraging thrift among its employes has been put into operation in a prominent Ohio department store. It is a co-operative investment scheme, the object of which is to promote saving and to assist employes desirous of making investments on small capital. The movement is being carried on under the head of a Savings Bureau, and it began work with a pledged deposit of $4,100. This amount consisted entirely of pledges made by the buyers of the store. This money, together with other deposits received from the employes, will be deposited with a trust company at 4 per cent. interest until it has grown large enough to be invested. In addition to the interest paid, it is planned to pay dividends semi-annually, on deposits of three months or more, from the future earnings of the fund. A regular weekly or monthly deduction from the salaries of the employes making use of the bureau may be arranged by them if desired. The store paymaster will apply the deducted amounts direct to the employe's account in the bureau.

A Record in Returned Purchases.

What is considered to be the acme of the return purchase evil has been brought to light in a story told of a well-known department store. A certain woman brought a smoking jacket into the men's furnishing department of this store, said that she had bought it there, and that she wanted to return it. Her husband had died, she explained, and she had no use for it. The salesman to whom she brought the coat examined it carefully, and then told her politely that she must be mistaken in her claim that the coat had been bought there. She insisted that she was right, however, and the department head was called. He was skeptical also, but finally agreed to accept the coat and give credit if the customer could show that it had come from his department. He thought that he had disposed of the matter diplomatically enough, but the next day the woman came back. With her she brought a bill which showed that the coat had been bought in that department—but fourteen years ago. The husband had died about the time of the purchase, she said, and his estate, including the coat, had been involved all that time. Though almost overcome with surprise, the manager kept his word and made out a credit slip.

Spring Styles in Neckwear.

Advance Spring advices regarding women's neckwear indicate a continued popularity of fichus and long-sleeved guimpes. New styles in collars are cut narrow in the back and circular in the front, with a very low neck. Both deep and shallow points are featured. Favored materials for collar and cuff sets are radium cloths, snowflake voiles, embroidered nets, and chiffons. The trend toward colors in embroideries is likely to be reflected in neckwear. Paris reports regarding silk collars are attracting attention here. None of these collars has yet been shown in New York, and they are not likely to gain much headway before Easter. Neckwear generally will be as rich and lacy as ever. Ruchings and plaitings will be much in evidence.

A suggestion was made recently to local corset manufacturers that an identification mark, designating what type of figure each corset was intended for, should be put on corset boxes. It was said that such marks would save saleswomen's time in fitting customers properly, and would also be more satisfactory to the customers. A prominent corset manufacturer said yesterday that he considered the plan impractical, and that the demand for goods marked in that way would be limited to the larger cities, where the women were constantly adopting the newest corset styles. He said also that style changes made it impossible to gauge any particular style to any one woman, citing the fact that the corset styles this year often required stays that were two sizes larger than formerly. "Such a plan for markings," he went on, "would cause considerable trouble to the retailer. It was recently brought to the attention of the Directors of the Corset Manufacturers' Association of the United States, and was condemned as impractical."

Notice is hereby given that, pursuant to an order of the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York, the undersigned, Robert T. Oliver, receiver in bankruptcy of Alexander Zieling, offers for sale the property, assets, and effects of the said bankrupt.

I. Fixtures and stock of cigars, cigarettes, pipes, and tobacco in store at No. 589 Ninth Avenue, Borough of Manhattan, New York City, New York.

II. Stock of cigars, cigarettes, and tobacco in stand at No. 1,552 Broadway, Borough of Manhattan, New York City, New York, together with all the right, title, and interest of the receiver to the lease of said stand, which expires on May 1, 1914. The business at said stand is being carried on by the receiver and will be offered as a going concern.

Bids may be offered for either Lots I. and II. or for said property as an entirety. The property situated at No. 589 Ninth Avenue, Borough of Manhattan, New York City, New York, may be inspected on the premises from November 19th to November 21st, between the hours of 3 P. M. and 5 P. M., and the property situated at the stand at No. 1,552 Broadway, Borough of Manhattan, New York City, New York, may be inspected on the premises from November 19th to November 21st, between the hours of 10 A. M. and 5 P. M.

Sealed bids for the above described property, assets, and effects may be submitted to the receiver at his office, No. 22 William Street, Borough of Manhattan, New York City, on or before 10:30 o'clock in the forenoon of November 24, 1913, at which time and place the bids will be opened by him and creditors may attend and express themselves in reference thereto. Each bid must be accompanied by a certified check or cash for at least ten (10%) per cent. of the amount of the bid. The receiver reserves the right to reject any and all bids, in which event the said property will be sold at public auction on the premises at No. 589 Ninth Avenue, Borough of Manhattan, New York City, by Charles Shongood, on November 28, 1913, at 10:30 o'clock in the forenoon.

Dated New York, November 17, 1913.

(About Investments)

It is often assumed that a security which returns a high yield carries with it a proportionate amount of risk. This is not always so. Some securities are selling at low price because they were not thoroughly distributed, or for reasons which similarly do not affect the real value of security. Stocks and bonds in this position are desirable, and discriminating investors look for them. Correspondence is invited.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Prices Move Little in Dullest Full Day's Trading in Five Months.

Trading on the Stock Exchange fell yesterday to the smallest volume in five months. It is necessary to go back to July 15 last to find recorded as slim a full day's business on the Exchange. Barring a few exceptional cases the net effect upon prices was commensurate with the smallness of the dealings. Some traders after reading the morning's news regarding the Mexican situation were prepared for a sharp break. Our relations with Mexico, they thought, had reached a sufficiently critical stage to cause a good deal of unsettlement on the Stock Exchange. Nothing of the kind happened. It is true the opening transactions were made at fairly large concessions from Saturday's final quotations, but without show of activity at any time the great majority of stocks recovered most of their first loss soon after the opening. Thereafter the market drifted idly to its close, which showed a small decline in the general level.

The fact of the matter was that the Mexican situation appeared no more critical than it had on one or two previous occasions and the stock market had already adjusted itself to the possibility of such news as was contained in yesterday morning's dispatches. The relative firmness of the market in the face of more or less alarming suggestions in respect to our relations with Mexico was all the more worthy of note for the reason that some important banking interests profess to see no other outcome than this country's intervention for the re-establishment of peace in Mexico. But this thought is by no means new to the stock market. Its action yesterday indicated that it would take something unexpected in the news to lift the market from the apathy into which during recent days it has been sinking deeper and deeper.

Saturday's bank statement which was more favorable than had been counted upon, gave assurance of continued, and, perhaps, increased ease in money. This was a sustaining influence in the face of the more or less unfavorable Mexican news, but the Stock Exchange did not seem consciously swayed by money market considerations. There was a disposition in some quarters, however, to lay greater emphasis on the probable relation between the forces now at work in the money market and the future of the bond market. That market at present is very quiet, but an increasing number are anticipating for the not distant future a broadening of the investment demand which will apply in the first instance to bonds of high grade which yet yield relatively large returns.

Much interest attaches to the investigation into the rates and practices of the anthracite roads, in which hearings were begun by the Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday. This is an inquiry in which, when it was first announced, the market found cause for some concern, but traders seemed more or less indifferent to it yesterday. The fact that the market has been engaged in a process of discounting adverse possibilities offers one, and, perhaps, the best reason why continued discussion of such possibilities is currently exerting less influence upon prices as a whole and upon the volume of Stock Exchange dealings than it was exerting some time ago.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Too Much Politics.

On Dec. 1 the National Railways of Mexico must pay $800,000 interest on its new two-year notes sold abroad last June, and one month later it will have its regular semi-annual bond interest, amounting to about $2,000,000, to meet. Preparations have been started to finance the Dec. 1 charge, but it was said yesterday by bankers familiar with the situation that much depended upon the political developments of the next fortnight. Given half a chance, the National Railways can earn its fixed charges, and given a few years of peace it could pay dividends on its preferred stock again, but outside capital is reluctant to make further advances to the Railways while unsettled conditions continue.

The Backbone of a Strike.

When the copper miners of the Lake Superior district went out on strike three months ago it was said in quarters familiar with conditions in the region that many stopped work against their will. Only the insistence of those of their number who were already members of the Western Federation of Miners that the union should be recognized was believed to have made a general strike possible. The continuance of trouble for so long a period was not looked for except by the employers, who knew how great would be the influence of the union, and were cognizant of the resources of the men when it came to meeting living expenses through a long lay-off. The union lent some assistance in this line, but the miners were well prepared with "sinews of war" on their own account. An officer of one of the companies said yesterday that shortly before the strike began the savings banks of Houghton County, Mich., alone contained about $9,000,000, which represented, for the most part, the savings of miners, while there was on deposit in all the banks of the county something like $15,000,000.

Minority Fight to the Courts.

The refusal of the Directors of the Brooklyn Union Gas Company to postpone the annual meeting of stockholders for a week to allow time for a conference with a committee of the minority is likely to result in an appeal to the courts, according to a member of the committee. Plans are under way for suits against the Directors for an amount in excess of $1,000,000, the committee alleging extravagant expenditures during the past year. The self-appointed minority committee, consisting of W. Bourke Cockran, Thomas Read, and L. Napoleon Levy has obtained a digest of the company's accounts from Haskins & Sells.

Realization Shares Fall.

Stocks of the Assets Realization Company slumped 20 points in yesterday's market, following a break of 14 points last week. In contrast with a high point of 120 for the year, the shares were quoted yesterday at 40. The Street has become familiar with declines in inactive stocks, but so extensive a contraction in market value as 34 points in a few days could not be passed over without much comment. An officer of the company was quoted as saying that some of its investments in real estate were "slow" because of the dull state of the real estate market, but this explanation was partly offset by the assertion that the company's business was still good. In market circles the assumption was taken from the action of the stock that the next dividend would show a reduction from the usual 7 per cent. annual basis. No intimation of an official sort was given, however, that earnings were such as to necessitate a smaller return to shareholders.

A New England View.

"During the past month there have been marked evidences of a general business recession throughout the United States," says the First National Bank of Boston. "A contraction in business similar to that which took place in New England several months ago has now made itself apparent throughout the country. There has been a general shrinkage in production [illegible]

OUTSIDE SECURITIES

Oil Shares Advance in Curb Market, but Tobacco Issues Close Lower.

Trading in outside securities was on a rather small scale, and the movement of prices was irregular, with strength in the oil stocks and a heavy tone in the tobacco issues. Among the latter Tobacco Products preferred closed with a net loss of a point, while United Cigar Stores fell off 1⅝. Standard Oil of New Jersey gained 2 points on the day, with the closing price at 377. Riker-Hegeman shares opened off 20 points, but recovered the decline, and closed unchanged at 160.

London Market Opens Weak, but Recovers—Continental Prices Easy.

LONDON, Tuesday, Nov. 18.—The Times says in its City article to-day:

"There was a good inquiry for money yesterday, owing chiefly to the late arrival of the American mail, against which considerable money had been kept in hand. At the close hasty efforts were made to employ these unused balances for the night, the mail being still undelivered. Rates were firm for daily advances and short fixtures. A moderate business was done by the Bank in short paper.

"In the discount market rates for three and six months' bills rose slightly.

"On the Stock Exchange the morning's news from Mexico City, which indicated that the outlook had become gloomier and more uncertain, caused American and Mexican securities to open flat. Other sections of the house were dull in sympathy.

"It was found that there was no pressure to sell and the tone of the markets became steadier. In the afternoon the buoyancy of home railway stocks tended to impart an air of cheerfulness in other directions."

PARIS, Nov. 17.—Prices were easy on the Bourse to-day.

BERLIN, Nov. 17.—Trading was quiet and prices were rather weak on the Boerse to-day.

BIG YEAR FOR B. & O.

But Flood Losses of $4,500,000 and Heavy Costs Cut Surplus Down.

In the annual report of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, made public to-day, President Daniel Willard says that the final cost of the severe floods which submerged a large part of the company's lines last March is estimated at $4,500,000, of which $3,000,000 was direct property loss.

The Baltimore & Ohio did a gross business of $101,556,000, an increase of $8,961,000 over the preceding year, and spent $9,000,000 more in operation. The operating ratio, which was 69.8 per cent. in 1912, went up to 72.6 per cent. last year. The net income after the payment of fixed charges was $13,382,000, a loss of $558,000 from the previous year.

Of the surplus, $48,000 was set aside for sinking funds, and $2,354,000 was paid out on the preferred stock, leaving a balance of $10,979,000 for the common. Of this, $9,120,000 was required by the 6 per cent. dividend.

The balance sheet shows an increase of $2,779,000 in working liabilities, with an increase of $7,366,000 in working assets. The balance to the credit of profit and loss was lessened by $3,844,000 as a result of the year's changes.

The report shows that fifty-four new locomotives and 6,977 freight cars were added to equipment during the past year; 150 steam locomotives, an electric motor, 111 all-steel passenger cars, and 2,030 steel freight cars are contracted for and will be delivered during the present fiscal year.

Examination of H. B. Hollins & Co.

The examination of members of the bankrupt brokerage firm of H. B. Hollins & Co. of 15 Wall Street will begin this morning in the Federal Building at 10 o'clock before Commissioner Gilchrist. The examination has been asked for by A. Lee Everett, the receiver.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

There were transactions on the Consolidated Exchange in a number of stocks of which no sales were recorded elsewhere in Wall Street. In this class were Third Avenue, Great Northern preferred, Consolidated Gas, American Cotton Oil and Chesapeake & Ohio. Mexican intervention fears again exerted a depressing influence, particularly in the early trading. On the 9:30 o'clock call general declines were recorded in a full point from Saturday, while Union Pacific was down ⅞, Reading and Steel each down ¾, Southern Pacific and Atchison each down ½, Copper and Can each [illegible]. The market rallied later, but nervousness continued, and there was an evident disposition to await Mexican news before undertaking of aggressive operations on either side of the account.

STIRS UP GOV. GLYNN ON LOUISIANA BONDS

FIGHT ON THE NEW CONSOLS

Attorney General Said to Have Reversed Himself in Admitting Them to Savings Banks.

Gov. Glynn has taken official cognizance of complaints regarding the action of Attorney General Carmody in reversing himself, as well as his predecessor, Attorney General O'Malley, in regard to defaulted bonds of Louisiana. E. L. Andrews of 25 Broad Street, counsel for holders of the repudiated "baby" bonds, received a letter yesterday from the Governor's secretary expressing the Governor's thanks for bringing the matter to his attention and saying that he would take it up with the Attorney General.

The "baby" bonds—so-called because they were issued in denominations of $5—differ from the repudiated obligations of several Southern States in that they are not "carpet-bag" bonds, but were issued in 1880, long after the reconstruction period. Louisiana contends, however, that they are not general obligations of the State, but were issued against certain revenues, which proved insufficient to meet them.

The banking law in this State forbids the investment of the funds of savings depositors in the obligations of any State that has been in default within ten years, and Attorney General O'Malley ruled that under this provision the present consols of Louisiana were not legal investments for the savings banks of the State. After George C. Van Tuyl, Jr., became Superintendent of Banks, he asked Attorney General Carmody for a ruling and Mr. Carmody upheld his predecessor.

The result was that the savings banks were required to sell their Louisiana bonds, and it is understood that many of them were taken back by the bond dealers who had sold them to the banks. The consols will fall due on Jan. 1, and Louisiana is preparing to make a new issue of $11,000,000, from the proceeds of which it intends to pay the consols. The new bonds would have been equally under the ban, and if they could not be sold Louisiana would be unable to pay the maturing consols, which would be left on the hands of the bond dealers who had taken them back.

This was the situation a few weeks ago, when Gov. Hall of Louisiana spent some time in New York and Albany. After an ex parte hearing of Gov. Hall's side of the case Attorney General Carmody reversed his former ruling, and held that the present and prospective bonds of Louisiana were legal investments for the banks. In doing so he necessarily had to hold that the baby bonds were not legal obligations.

Mr. Andrews protested vigorously to Mr. Carmody against his opinion invalidating the baby bonds, but Mr. Carmody refused to reopen the matter except at the instance of the Banking Department, which tacitly took the position that its sole duty in the matter was to conform to the opinions of the Attorney General.

Mr. Andrews then wrote to Gov. Glynn, invoking his interest in behalf of the depositors in savings banks, whose funds, he argued, were about to be opened up to a defaulting State, and asking an investigation to disclose who were the "interested parties" in the proceedings, speaking of "the struggle by defaulted debtors and parties interested in their securities for the possession of the funds in our savings banks."

"It is a curious situation," said Mr. Andrews, "that the hundreds of thousands of savings bank depositors seem to be without protection against these defaulters engaged in the effort to dispose of their obligations. The Bank Department has exerted every effort to guard the deposits against the schemes of these defaulted applicants. It obtained the opinion of Attorney General Carmody excluding these applicants. But that decision was hardly cold when the same Attorney General, acting at the instance of the defaulters themselves, now declares that the savings banks' doors are open to their paper promises.

"In pursuing this course he has attacked other obligations of the same debtor. In order to excuse the default and to admit some of this debtor's obligations to investment, he holds that the issue belonging to my clients is not valid. We are thus forcibly enlisted for the protection of the savings bank depositors—we are so enlisted for our own protection.

"After all, in this exigency, the sole direct protector, for the time being, of these depositors is the Governor of the State, charged with the duty of safeguarding the execution of the laws."

After reviewing the earlier rulings, Mr. Andrews said in his letter to Gov. Glynn:

"This financial condition continued until the 22d day of last month. At that time the whole status of this business was suddenly changed, and Louisiana consols became apparently transformed into eligible purchases by Trustees of savings banks. How was this feat accomplished? There was no change in financial conditions—the defaulted bonds of Louisiana had not been paid. The Constitution and laws of Louisiana remain the same as they were on July 3, 1912, when Attorney General Carmody ejected Louisiana consols from our banks, because that State did not pay her baby bonds.

"At best, does not this financial kaleidoscope present a peculiar—not to say a startling—condition in its bearing on the security of savings banks? As far as we are aware, this practical self-reversal by an Attorney General in reference to bank investments is unique. It is not based upon any change in the laws of New York. But the Attorney General now claims that the bonds held by my clients—which he had pronounced to be valid debts, and to be in default, by his opinion of last year—are not debts of Louisiana; that they are mere agreements to pay the interest and sinking fund out of certain tax collections; that Louisiana is under no obligation to pay the baby bonds from her Treasury.

"Incidentally it may be noted that the officials of Louisiana concede that the State has misappropriated the special funds provided as security for our bonds.

"Every sanction known to our system of Government is back of these bonds—a constitutional convention, an act of the Legislature, and an audit by a funding board, (see Attorney General Carmody's opinion of July 3, 1912.)

"In the face of these records, what could be presented to countervail them? If defaults upon these bonds do not disable Louisiana from receiving credit from our savings institutions, the statutes become the merest gossamer.

"We submit that this business has reached a point where it should be presented to the Chief Executive of the State, unless our savings bank system is to be subjected to an irruption of obligations of defaulting States."

MARK PACKAGES PROPERLY.

Merchants' Association Suggests Rules to Expedite Shipping.

Illegible or improperly executed bills of lading or shipping orders or improper marks on packages lead to erroneous billing, improper classification and ratings, and also cause delay and losses expensive alike to the shipper and carrier.

The transportation companies, combating laxity on the part of shipping clerks in the preparation of legible and definite bills of lading or shipping orders, have asked the Merchants' Association for co-operation in bringing about an improvement in the situation. The members are therefore urged in the association's bulletin to-day to aid by having their shipping departments observe the following suggestions:

"The bill of lading or shipping ticket should be typewritten when practicable, and when not should be written legibly in ink or indelible pencil. All abbreviations, wherever practicable, should be avoided. Name of consignee and destination should be shown in full. The number of packages and weight, routing where specific routing is desired, and prepayment where shipment is to be prepaid should also be noted. Care should be taken to have articles described as provided for in the classification (avoiding trade names) as to the definite name of the article offered for transportation, and the character of the packages should be indicated.

"Packages should be marked to show plainly the consignee's name and destination in conformity with the bill of lading. As additional precaution for the recovery of goods should they go astray or arrive at destination and be uncalled for, the shipper's name and the point of shipment preceded by the word 'from' should be marked on each package. The proper marking of packages also aids in obtaining correct loading, prompt forwarding, and proper delivery."

Taking Over Surety Co.

It was learned yesterday that the American Surety Company had arranged to take over the surety business of the Title Guaranty and Surety Company of Scranton, Penn. The agreement between the companies calls for the payment to the Scranton company of a commission of 30 per cent. a year on the surety business on its books as well as on the business which comes from its customers for a period of five years. The Scranton company will in the future confine its work to the guaranteeing of titles.

A. C. A. MAY TAKE OVER NEW GARAGE

Lease of Former Car Barns on 88th St. Is Contemplated—After Auto Thieves.

Negotiations are under way for the leasing by the Automobile Club of America of the Fifth Avenue Garage, formerly the car barns, which runs from Eighty-eighth to Eighty-ninth Street, and from Madison to Park Avenues. This building is being largely reconstructed and elaborately fitted by the New York Transportation Company as a garage of the most modern sort. It is understood that no lease has yet been closed, but that the A. C. A. is looking on the property with a favorable eye. The club has great difficulty in taking care of enough cars at the garage in connection with the clubhouse in West Fifty-fourth Street, in spite of the fact that it has accommodations for as many as 700 machines. It is, therefore, interested in obtaining a supplemental garage, and has been looking for one on the upper East Side.

The American Motorists' Protective Association has arranged with a detective agency to establish a special department at its headquarters in twenty leading cities for the detection, apprehension and prosecution of motor car thieves. The association is offering a cash reward of $100 for the arrest and conviction of any person "holding up" a car belonging to a member, and a reward of $25 for the arrest of any person stealing tools or other articles of value from a member's car.

⁂

During the recent heavy snow storm in Akron, while the street car lines were tied up by drifts and their snow plows could not operate, heavy motor trucks from one of the big rubber factories of Akron, many of whose 15,000 employes were snow bound, were used as improvised snow plows and soon had the car lines clear.

⁂

"Automobile Row" heard of many personal changes last week. Charles P. Skinner has been appointed manager of the Mitchell Motor Company of New York. His brother, George A. Skinner, succeeds W. W. Burke as sales manager. Gilbert M. Stratton has been appointed representative in this vicinity of the Thomas B. Jeffrey Company, operating here under the name of the Stratton Motor Car Company. J. V. Harding has become special representative for the Motz Tire and Rubber Company. Frederick P. Nehrbas has been appointed factory manager of the Lyons-Atlas Company, makers of Lyons-Knight cars. R. C. Hoffman has become chief draughtsman of the Haynes Automobile Company. William J. Foster has taken charge of the used car department of the Stewart Automobile Company in this city. Melvin J. Adams has joined the Carl M. Green Company of Detroit, advertising agents. H. R. Clough has been elected assistant secretary, and will have charge of the automobile departments of the Automobile Insurance Company of Hartford, and the Aetna Accident and Liability Company.

At the last regular meeting of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers the subject of the evening was electric lighting systems as applied to motor cars. Papers were presented by A. E. Waller, Alexander Churchward, and Frank Conrad and some general specifications for motor car lighting systems were laid down by H. Ward Leonard. Many members of the Society of Automobile Engineers took part in the discussion.

With the advancement of the holiday season, Times Square becomes more and more a centre of business activities. The recent establishment within its radius of large mercantile enterprises, of new theatres, and of new hotels, together with the near completion of additional subway lines centering on it, this section of New York City is growing in importance more rapidly, perhaps, than any other. Nowhere else in the world is there a more valuable location for the business or professional man than the

The Weather

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—With the exception of local snows and rains in New England and local rains in the Middle and South Atlantic States Sunday night, there was no precipitation of consequence east of the Rocky Mountains. It is considerably warmer over the great central basin of the country and colder in the South Atlantic States and the extreme Northwest. Over the latter section there was a sharp fall in temperature, accompanied by rapidly rising pressure.

Unsettled weather, with local rains, will prevail Tuesday in the great central valleys, probably continuing Wednesday, and extending [illegible]

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Automobile Club of America Preparing to Lease Big East Side Garage—Purchase for Mercantile Improvement in West Fifty-second Street—Long Beach Club Rumor.

It was ascertained yesterday that negotiations are nearly closed for the leasing by the Automobile Club of America of the former garage used by the New York Transportation Company, which operates the Fifth Avenue stages, in Eighty-eighth and Eighty-ninth Streets, between Park and Madison Avenues. The property runs through the block, having a frontage on Eighty-eighth Street of 103.4 feet and 102.2 on Eighty-ninth Street, being 82 feet west of Park Avenue.

The property belongs to Mrs. Elliott F. Shepard, and was leased by the New York Transportation Company a few years ago for a long term of years. The transportation company recently completed a new two-story garage on 102d Street, between Fifth and Madison Avenues, and that is now being used for the stage service.

The Automobile Club of America conducts a large garage for its members in connection with its club house in Fifty-fourth Street, between Broadway and Eighth Avenue, but the need of more room for the storage of members' cars has long been felt, and many members are anxious to secure for the club use a large garage in the eastern part of the city which would be readily accessible to residents in that locality. The Eighty-eighth Street garage is a two-story building, and is admirably equipped for the accommodation of several hundred cars.

Big Sale in 52d Street.

The two-story stable at 306 to 312 West Fifty-second Street, covering a plot 100 by 100, has been sold by J. B. Wakeman for the [illegible] Investing Company. The buyer is said to be an investor who is planning a mercantile building for the plot. The property, which is 150 feet west of Eighth Avenue, was held at $80,000.

Church Use for Theatre Site.

The People's Pulpit Association has taken title to the property 33 to 35 West Sixty-third Street, 100 by 100, between Central Park West and Broadway. The recording of the deed shows that the new owners foreclosed it subject to a [illegible]

[illegible] has placed a loan of $20,000 at 5½ per cent. on [illegible] West Twenty-second Street; also placed a loan of $25,000 on Westchester County Farm.

New Washington Heights Theatre.

Plans are being prepared by Louis A. [illegible] Steinert for a fireproof moving-picture theatre to be erected on the west side of Fort Washington Avenue, 300 feet north of Broadway, to cost $30,000. The structure will seat 1,500.

$100,000 Apartments for Brooklyn.

Shampan & Shampan have filed plans for two apartment houses on a plot of 100 by 100 on the north side of [illegible] Avenue, 300 feet east of Sumner Avenue, Brooklyn, for the G. & M. Improvement Company. The cost is estimated at $100,000.

Real Estate Notes.

The Dinsmore Estate Corporation has been organized with a capital of $500,000 for the purpose of handling the realty of the late William B. Dinsmore, who was succeeded as President of the Adams Express Company by the late John Hoey.

The property was left by Mr. Dinsmore to his three children, William B. Dinsmore, Madeline T. Dinsmore, and Helen Dinsmore Huntington, the latter of whom is engaged to marry Vincent Astor.

The property involved in the new corporation consists of 1 East Forty-[illegible] Street, a new six-story business building; [illegible] Fifth Avenue, northeast corner of Thirty-first Street; the adjoining house, 2 West Thirty-first Street; 45 Sixth Avenue, and 190 West Tenth Street, the private stable of the Dinsmores.

A loan of [illegible] has been made by [illegible] to the Levy Dairy Company on the new building to be erected on the southwest corner of Avenue B and Fifteenth Street, a plot 53 by 120.

TUNNEL HIGHWAYS TO JERSEY LIKELY

WORK PRACTICAL AND CHEAP

While It Would Cost $42,000,000 to Span the North River, Traffic Tunnels Are Figured at $11,000,000.

Huge tunnel highways under the North River between downtown New York and Jersey City seem to be a somewhat definite project now. The plan at present seems to be in high favor with the joint New York and New Jersey Bridge and Tunnel Commission, which has been studying the transportation problem for the past seven years. Such a highway, it is said, is not only practicable, but, as such engineering feats go, cheap. To construct the tunnels with a capacity of 5,000,000 vehicles each year would cost only $11,000,000. A bridge, it has been estimated by engineers, would cost in the end approximately $42,000,000.

With immediate action in view, it is the intention of the commission, so it was said yesterday, to take the matter before the State Legislature next year. In New York State the Legislature will be asked to consider the project at its next session, which opens in January. A meeting of the sub-committee of the commission, of which A. J. Shamberg is Chairman, was held yesterday at the offices at 115 Broadway, and the question was thoroughly discussed. The sub-committee will shortly report to the joint commission. W. H. Noyes, Chairman of the commission, said last night that there would be as little delay as possible after that.

"We are going to have some action," he said, "and as soon as the sub-committee makes its report steps will be taken to give the movement for better traffic conditions between New York and New Jersey an added impetus."

Mr. Noyes was asked if a tunnel would be recommended and the plan for a bridge condemned.

"I wouldn't say that," he replied. "The question of both bridge and tunnels will be brought up."

A comprehensive description of the proposed tunnels was given in THE TIMES in the edition of May 5, 1912, showing just how the scheme could be carried out with the present engineering facilities at the disposal of the builders. The present plan is to have the tunnels extend from the foot of Canal Street to the extended line of Twelfth Street in Jersey City. It has been recommended that the tunnels be built in pairs, one for eastbound traffic and one for westbound traffic, with roadways seventeen feet in width. In illustration of the fact that highway tunnels are practicable it has been pointed out that several are now in operation in other countries, including the Blackwall and Rotherhithe tunnels under the Thames in England.

Investigations by engineers for the commission have shown that it would be practically impossible to build a bridge further downtown than Fifty-seventh Street, while a tunnel could be placed at any point where the people want it. Another investigation has shown that the number of vehicles crossing the Hudson daily is 19,660 and that all except 2,000 cross below Twenty-third Street.

On April 21 last the "Interstate Commission," as it has been termed, filed a report with the Legislature at Albany setting forth the results of its investigations. In that report the cost of a bridge was given as follows: River span, $27,100,000; approaches, $1,900,000; engineering and contingencies, $2,900,000; real estate, $4,800,000; interest during construction, $5,300,000. In the same report it was estimated that each pair of tunnels would cost not more than $11,000,000. The report did not flatly recommend tunnel construction, but its conclusions seemed to hint that tunnels were considered more advisable from many standpoints.

Charles M. Jacobs and J. Vipond Davies of 30 Church Street, who built the present Hudson tunnels to Jersey City and Hoboken, are the engineers who prepared the plans for the proposed highway tunnels. In speaking about tunnel construction as opposed to bridge construction, Mr. Jacobs has said:

"Every condition is against the construction of a bridge; every condition is favorable to the construction of tunnels. Favorable conditions for a long span bridge require the combination, if possible, of high shores with a comparatively shallow depth to bedrock for intermediate supporting piers. Here we have flat shores, deep water, and great depth to bedrock.

"The uniqueness of tunnels is that they can be placed where the people want them. Now, the people, it is safe to say, want their first highway tunnel where the highways of the land meet in a common point. The map shows that so far as the highways from Elizabeth, Newark, Paterson, and Passaic are concerned they all merge in Jersey City and Hoboken, opposite the southerly portion of Manhattan."

COPPER STRIKE SHOOTING.

Deputy and Striker Wounded in Exchange of Pistol Shots.

CALUMET, Mich., Nov. 17.—Six striking copper miners were arrested to-day as a result of a shooting at the Quincy mine this morning, in which Deputy Sheriff Edward Barker and one striker were wounded. Sheriff Cruse believes that two other strikers were wounded, but were taken away by friends before their identity was learned.

The fight started when a parade of strikers on their way to Hancock met non-union men going to work. The parade stopped and deputies along the route ordered the strikers to move on. They refused, and a shot was fired from the strikers' ranks which struck Barker. He returned the fire, the bullet hitting John Trocia, who is alleged to have fired the first shot. A general fight ensued.

Both the Quincy and the Copper Range mining companies are preparing to mount deputies to replace the cavalry relieved from duty. Some of the members of the Detroit and South Haven cavalry are expected to return here to take positions as mounted deputies.

The Volturno Fund.

The fund for the relief of those left destitute when the Volturno burned at sea, continues to grow. The American National Red Cross Society reports that these contributions were made yesterday: Miss Lily L. Bach, $3; W. F. Mott, $10; Charles Mathé, $2; C. B. Barnes, $2; the Rev. Dr. John Henry Hopkins, $2.50; Temple Beth Sholom, Bath Beach and Bensonhurst, $112; W. Appleton Lawrence, $5; Selmar Hess, $25, and F. J., $2. This makes a total of $6,352 collected to date.

The France Delayed in Sailing.

The French Line received cabled information yesterday that the steamship France, which was scheduled to sail from Havre for New York last Saturday, did not get away until Sunday. Rough weather at Havre was the cause of the delay. The France is due to arrive Saturday instead of Friday, as a result of the delay.

Cup Yacht Keel to Weigh 84 Tons.

BRISTOL, R. I., Nov. 17.—Eighty-four tons of lead to be used in the keel of the Vanderbilt syndicate seventy-five-foot sloop for the America's Cup defense trials next season was landed here to-day. Preparations for actual construction work on the boat are going forward rapidly. The marine railway down which the yacht will slide was completed to-day, and an examination of the [illegible] board for the boat's frame showed it to be satisfactory.

L. FRANKEL A SUICIDE.

Well-Known Hotel Man Despondent Over Recent Reverses.

Despondent because of business reverses, Louis Frankel, 60 years old, formerly manager of the old Gilsey House, and for many years a well-known hotel man and restaurateur in this city, shot and killed himself late yesterday afternoon in a secluded spot on the brow of Lookout Hill in Prospect Park, Brooklyn. The shot was heard by Patrolman James F. Kierney of the Prospect Park precinct, who was on duty near the Ocean Avenue entrance. Kierney found Frankel lying face downward upon the ground with a bullet wound in his right temple. An ambulance was summoned from the Seney Hospital, and Dr. Tilden, who answered the call, said that death had been instantaneous. The body was taken to the park police station.

There were no papers or other means of identification on the dead man, except a small card upon which was pencilled this request: "Please notify Mr. Lesvinier, 450 Nostrand Avenue, head of the American Sample Shop." The police communicated by telephone with Mr. Lesvinier, who, upon hearing the description of the suicide, said that he was probably Mr. Frankel, whose adopted daughter, Mrs. Hattie Petersen, was employed by his concern. Later Mrs. Petersen visited the police station and identified the body as that of her foster father, and it was removed to the family home at 863 Sterling Place, where Frankel lived with his adopted daughter and his wife, Ella.

For eight years past the dead man had been associated with Frederick Schwartze in the restaurant and café business. Under the firm name of Schwartze & Frankel, they ran the bowling alleys and café at Franklin Avenue and Fulton Street, which was formerly the headquarters of the Brooklyn National League Baseball Club, and at one time was owned by Charles Ebbets. Four months ago Frankel and his partner opened the Montague Grill at 200 Montague Street, Brooklyn, of which Frankel acted as manager.

Friends of the dead man said last night that his business reverses began about fifteen years ago, when he gave up the management of the Hotel Albert, at University Place and Eleventh Street, Manhattan, which he had managed successfully for fourteen years, to take over the management of the Old Gilsey House, at Twenty-ninth Street and Broadway. Frankel ran the Gilsey House for two years and lost considerable money in the venture. Later he embarked in the Summer hotel business and took the management of the Kaaterskill Hotel at Kaaterskill, N. Y., which proved a failure in two seasons. His next enterprise was the Lakewood Hotel at Lakewood, N. J., a Winter resort. Half a season sufficed to compel him to abandon this also.

Frankel visited the Montague Grill yesterday morning as usual, but left the place before the head bartender arrived at 10 o'clock. The latter found only a small amount of money in the cash register together with this note:

> Dear Charles: I can only leave you so much money in the drawer. Kindly pay the help. You will hear from me later in the evening.

On a separate card was written the combination of the safe. The note was signed with Frankel's full name. Werner stated last night that Frankel had been despondent and morose for several days.

DANA SUES E. D. MORGAN.

Demands Return of Commissions on Mexican Business.

Ex-Assemblyman Charles A. Dana, as executor under the will of Charles Dana, began suit yesterday in the Federal District Court to set aside certain contracts which the Corralitos Company of 100 Broadway, a Mexican ranching concern, entered into with its former President, Edwin D. Morgan. These provided for the sums to be paid to Mr. Morgan, who is a resident of Rhode Island, as compensation for his services as general agent. It is contended that these were excessive, and that Mr. Morgan should restore to the company the difference between the amount he received and the fair and reasonable value of his services.

The Corralitos Company, a Colorado corporation with $1,500,000 capital, was organized on Feb. 1, 1889, partly as a ranching and partly as a mining concern in the State of Chihuahua, Mexico. Charles Dana at the time of his death owned 1,920 shares of the preferred stock and 2,000 shares of the common stock. The Corralitos Company transferred all its mining interests to the Candelaria Company, which was owned by the same group of individuals, and on Dec. 7, 1910, the defendant, Mr. Morgan, resigned the Presidency of the Corralitos Company and made a contract with it to act for ten years for it as an expert agent in the ranching business.

This contract was modified on May 8, 1911, in such a way as to make Mr. Morgan's compensation depend on the amount of the dividends on the preferred stock, but it is complained that even under this arrangement it was possible for Morgan to receive as much or more than was paid out to the owners of $600,000 of preferred stock.

The complaint alleges that the Corralitos Company never earned enough money to pay any such commission or salary, and that in 1911 and 1912 Mr. Morgan received more than $32,000, although his services were not worth more than $2,500. Further complaint is made of the large commission which Mr. Morgan was to receive on sales of stock in 1911, and it is alleged that that was a subterfuge to compensate him for his services as President in 1910, for which he was entitled to no pay.

Mr. Dana also objects to the alleged contribution by the Corralitos Company in 1908 of $60,000 toward the $100,000 capital of the Leon Mining Company, to which the Candelaria Company had transferred its mining properties. Moreover, when the Leon Mining Company was reorganized, it is asserted, the Corralitos Company made a further and larger contribution. Upon these grounds Mr. Dana, in behalf of the estate of Charles Dana and all other stockholders who did not consent to the contracts with Mr. Morgan, asks for the cancellation of the contracts, the return of such sums as have been paid to Morgan in excess of the value of his services and the enjoining of the Corralitos Company from paying out any more money to him under the contracts.

FINDS REAL SEGREGATION.

Effect is "Startling," Says Investigator in a Washington Departments.

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People made public yesterday the report of a special agent sent to Washington to investigate the segregation of white and colored employes in Government departments. The investigation followed many complaints and inquiries. The association has twenty branches throughout the country. Moorfield Storey of Boston is President. Oswald G. Villard of New York is Chairman of the Board of Directors, which includes, among other members, Miss Jane Addams and Miss Lillian D. Wald.

"The effect of segregation," says the report, "is startling. Competition has been eliminated. Those segregated are regarded almost as lepers and get what no one else wants. Segregation in work has been effected so far without official orders. Generally the excuse is a readjustment of work to increase efficiency."

Taking up individual departments, the report says:

"In the Miscellaneous and Examining Division of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing workers have been paired according to race. In the Dead Letter Office of the Post Office Department colored employes have been segregated back of a row of lockers in a corner of the room.

"In fact, in this department segregation practically amounts to elimination. In the Treasury Building colored clerks have not yet been segregated, but it seems to be understood that as many as possible are to be segregated in the Registry Division.

"In the office of the Auditor for the Post Office segregation seems to have been most skillfully worked out. In one room colored men operate what is known as the 'gang punch,' and in another room the force working at the 'assorting machines' is entirely colored."

ACCUSES REALTY CO. OF LARGE FRAUDS

ASSETS FOUND WORTHLESS

Monaton Realty Investing Company Sold "Participating Certificates" in Form of Insurance Policies.

According to an announcement made yesterday at the New York office of the State Insurance Department a verified complaint has been filed with District Attorney Whitman against the Monaton Realty Investing Company, with general offices at 220 West Forty-second Street and several out-of-town branch offices, with a view to instituting criminal actions against the corporation and its officers.

This matter was taken up by the State Department at a conference held in this city between William T. Emmet, State Superintendent of Insurance, and James J. Hoey, second Deputy Superintendent. In explaining the department's action Supt. Emmet said:

"A complaint having been made to the State Insurance Department by a holder of a participating certificate in the Monaton Realty Investing Corporation, the conditions surrounding the methods used by this company to defraud the public have been investigated, and it appears that although it is not an insurance matter, their methods are such that the citizens of the various localities where this and similar concerns are operating should be advised of their true character.

"The situation, as it has been presented to the Insurance Department, shows that the above company, which was incorporated under the General Business law of this State in 1907, with a stated capital of $1,000,000, has sold a large amount of its securities in the form of bonds and preferred stock, with the proceeds of which they stated their intention to conduct a general real estate business. The company also issued so-called accumulative participating certificates, which were made up in such form as to give them all the appearances of an insurance policy, and their rate cards and illustrations of payments and maturity values, were also made upon forms customarily used by legitimate insurance companies.

"These certificates call for payments on an annual, semi-annual, quarterly or monthly basis, with the privilege of withdrawal of the accounts paid in 'on the second or later anniversary,' together with 4 per cent. interest. The complainant in this case, who had made thirty monthly payments, the last receipt being dated Nov. 10, of this year, demanded of the company the 'cash payment,' in accordance with the terms of the certificate, and was advised by the officer of the company to whom he made his demand, that, as he had not presented his claim on the day of the second anniversary, it would be necessary for him to wait until the day of the third anniversary.

"The officers of the company are: President, Pierre M. Looker; Vice President, Curtis A. Doolittle; Secretary, Walter E. Pratt; Treasurer—— Hargraves.

"The company has maintained offices in New York, Brooklyn, Buffalo, and Rochester, N. Y.; in Hartford, and Bridgeport, Conn.; in Providence, R. I.; in Philadelphia, Penn.; in Washington, D. C.; in Boston and Springfield, Mass., and Chicago, Ill., from which centres their agents have not only disposed of bonds and stock of the corporation itself, but have sold upward of a $1,000,000 of certificates.

"Although this corporation purports to engage in the real estate business, the character of its certificates, cards, and other literature made it appear as though it was some form of insurance.

"The assets scheduled in the last annual report to the Controller have, to a certain extent, been investigated, and it has developed that the company possesses no real interest of any value in any of the properties contained in this report. As an example, it was found that 37 parcels of land, reported by them as owned in the Borough of Brooklyn, were not only mortgaged, but mortgaged beyond their value, and are now in process of being foreclosed. Three pieces of property in Manhattan, which were investigated, were found not to be owned by the corporation at all.

"The State Banking Department lately investigated a complaint against this company, but found that it was unable to proceed on account of lack of jurisdiction, as the bill which passed the last Legislature, giving to that department the same supervision of fake banking propositions that is now given to the Insurance Department in the case of fake insurance companies, was vetoed by the Governor on May 17, 1913.

"The Attorney General's office has commenced a civil action looking toward the cancellation of this company's charter, but in view of the fact that there are many concerns of a similar character operating throughout the country, the Insurance Department has felt that immediate action should be taken to protect the citizens of this and other States.

"The Insurance Department therefore had a verified complaint filed with the District Attorney of New York County, and it is expected that he will at once proceed criminally against the corporation and its officers. As a result of this investigation some legislation will be no doubt presented to the forthcoming Legislature looking toward the protection of the public in matters of this kind. The postal authorities will also be requested to make an investigation into the activities of certain other concerns operating along the same lines in different parts of the country."

Attempts to reach Pierre M. Looker, President of the Monaton Realty Investing Company, and Curtis M. Doolittle, its Vice President, and Walter E. Platt, its Secretary, proved fruitless last night. No one was at the office of the company, 220 West Forty-second Street. This was the only address given in the City Directory and telephone book for Looker, Doolittle & Platt.

EDNA HARDENBERGH HOME.

Had Taken a Job as a Nurse—Byrne Sure His Daughter's Safe.

Miss Edna Hardenbergh, the 16-year-old daughter of Louis V. D. Hardenbergh, a reporter for the New York City News Association, who disappeared from her home, 31 Lake Street, Gravesend, on Thursday morning, came yesterday to the County Court House in Manhattan looking for her father. A general police alarm had been sent out for her, in the belief that she had been kidnapped.

She told her father that she had grown tired of going to school and had secured employment as a nurse, under an assumed name, in the home of Joseph Hare, a shoe dealer, of 218 Graham Avenue, Brooklyn, and had been in charge of his three small children. She read no newspapers and knew nothing of the search for her. But at last she got homesick and went to the Court House, where her father is employed, to look for him. He investigated her story and found that she had been at the Hare home from Thursday.

Joseph Byrne, father of three-year-old Winifred Byrne, who disappeared on Saturday evening from before her home, 243 East Thirty-eighth Street, said last night that he was satisfied his little girl had wandered away and was not kidnapped. He denied the statement in afternoon newspapers that a Japanese was suspected of stealing the child. Byrne is a florist in moderate circumstances, and has, he says, no known enemies.

He cannot imagine that any one has any motive for kidnapping the little girl, and he has himself traced her through neighbors as far as Thirty-fourth Street and Third Avenue, two blocks away. He expressed the belief yesterday that she had been picked up by persons who did not read newspapers in English, and who were taking care of her.

SCHOOLBOY MISSING.

Parents Distracted by Harry Butts's Disappearance—Behind in Studies.

Harry Butts, the fourteen-year-old son of Stephen H. Butte, whom many persons know as the proprietor of the barber shop at the St. Regis, has been missing for more than ten days. For a week detectives have been seeking a clue to his disappearance. Every morning for a week his mother has got up at daybreak and gone to Riverside Drive and scanned the shore for a long distance, in fear lest the answer would be there.

Young Butts, who was a pupil at the public school at Eighty-ninth street and Amsterdam avenue, left his home at 66 West Ninety-third street at 8 o'clock on Nov. 7 to go to school as usual. He carried his books with him. Detectives have traced him as far as the school, where he was seen in front of the building a little after 8 o'clock by several of his schoolmates. There he disappeared, or at least, there is no record of his having entered the school building, and nobody has been found who saw him after that.

The boy, who has dark brown hair and brown eyes, and is about five feet three inches tall, was wearing a blue serge knickerbocker suit, with a cap of the same material, and a gray sweater under his coat, black stockings, black laced shoes, and yellow gloves. So far as his parents knew, he had no money in his possession. He had an allowance of a quarter a week, did not smoke and read a great deal. He had been singing for some time in a church choir.

When the boy did not come home the first night, his parents remembered that he had not turned in his school report of the day before to be signed, and upon investigating, they learned that that day's report had not been up to its usual standard. It was thought that this might be the reason for his disappearance.

Some of the schoolboy friends of Harry told the detectives that a well dressed man had been in the habit of distributing dimes and quarters in the park of late, and engaging them in conversation. The police are looking for this man. Mr. and Mrs. Butts, who are distracted by Harry's disappearance, have two other children, a daughter, who is older, and a son, younger than Harry.

PLACE FOR JEWISH FARMERS

None Like This Country, Says Convention Speaker.

The greatest opportunities for Jewish farmers is in America, according to Abraham Rostow of Hartford, Conn., a tobacco grower, who addressed the fifth annual convention of the Federation of Jewish Farmers of America at its first day's session yesterday at the Educational Alliance, East Broadway and Jefferson Street.

"You can go from Argentina to Canada and nowhere will you find such opportunities for Jewish farmers," he said. "This country is the best place for Jewish farmers the world over."

Lipman Lakovitz of Nassau, N. Y., said that the children of the farmers deserted their parents who had tilled the soil for years and left them in their old age to finish the battle of life alone. He made a plea for the training of children so that they would stick to the farms. Without such training for the youth, he said, the Jewish farmers' movement would be a failure. Mrs. L. Busker, a delegate from the Ladies' Auxiliary, said that the wife of the Jewish farmer should be taught to help her husband.

"The woman on the farm has not had the proper education or the social and moral help she should have," she said. "We want lectures on agriculture and other topics. There is not a single wife of a farmer who would not be willing to help her husband if she only knew how. If we are not going to have Jewish farmers made out of our children we do not want to be farmers at all."

During the session a silver loving cup from Jewish students at Cornell Agricultural College was presented to the Directors of the Jewish Agricultural and Aid Society.

Chi Phi Annual Congress.

The annual congress of the Chi Phi Fraternity will be held at the Hotel Astor on Nov. 28 and 29. The dinner will be held in the ballroom on the evening of the 28th. There are about 800 members of the Chi Phi Fraternity in and about New York.

L. C. Wallick Buys Out Brother.

Louis C. Wallick, President of the Cadillac Hotel Company, operating the Hotel Wallick and Wallick's Restaurant, at Forty-third street and Broadway, and the Secor Hotel Company, operating the Secor Hotel in Toledo, Ohio, bought yesterday the interests of his brother, London I. Wallick, in these two companies, representing $165,000. Mr. Wallick is now sole owner of the two companies. He has just signed a twenty-five-year lease for the direction of the Deshler Hotel, in course of construction in Columbus, Ohio.

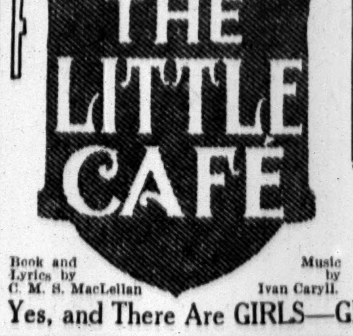
The Musical Comedy Par Excellence



Book and Lyrics by C. M. S. MacLellan
Music by Ivan Caryll.

The Exhilarating Punch

of "The Little Cafe" is intoxicating all New York! With its morceaux of wit, its atmosphere of gaiety, its sparkling, champagne-like melody, all served so brilliantly to tempt the jaded appetite, where can one spend three happier hours? Its intimacy with gay Paree, its charming femininity, its quips and jests, and unflagging air of youth and abandon transform this particular "Little Cafe" at the New Amsterdam Theatre into an elysium:

"Where the nights are filled with music,
Fold up their tents like the Arabs,

NOW PLAYING TO CAPACITY AT EVERY PERFORMANCE!

Yes, and There Are GIRLS—GIRLS—GIRLS—and Then Some!

"After the 'Deep Purples' and the 'Master Minds' and the 'Raffleses' and the other sincere insincerities of Crookdom offered as fodder to the Sarah-Jane mind in a recent unforgettable epidemic, it was quite a relief last night to view
